

Jennifer Sprague

Madoc teen named "Miss Madoc Fair"

Pretty fair-haired Jennifer Sprague was named "Miss Madoc Fair" during Saturday's opening program of the 70th annual fall fair here.

Jennifer, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Sprague of St. Lawrence Street, is 16 years of age and stands 5'3" tall. She is a great lover of horses and the outdoors. An interesting list of hobbies includes reading, knitting, sewing and crocheting.

First runner-up in the contest was Judy Blackburn of Eldorado and second runner-up was Joy Ann Johnston of Queensboro. Both of these girls are also 16 years of age. The Queen received one dozen red carnations and $25. cash prize, while each of the runners-up were presented with one-half dozen red carnations and $10 cash.

The newly-crowned Queen takes active participation in her community. She has completed different 4-H Homemaking club projects and is a member of the 4-H Horse and Pony Club, for which she has served as press reporter. She is a grade eleven student of C.H.S.S., where she is a member of the Outdoor Education Group and the Outers Club. Although she doesn't have a horse of her own to show at the fair, she was on hand on the grounds to give assistance to Mr. and Mrs. James Irish of Eldorado with the care of their horses. She showed one of the Irish's horses in competition and took second place in the class entered. Her ambitions are many, and at the top of them stands hopes of becoming a veterinarian.

Jennifer has always been an enthusiastic exhibitor at the Madoc fair and this year her decorative candle and her entry of art work made with pull tabs from soft drink cans in the open class won first place. Her fruit loaf won a third prize in the baking department. She would have had many handicraft entries had she decided earlier to enter the Queen competition, as most of the needlework she has done over the year has been given away as gifts.

"Miss Madoc Fair" will be representing Madoc in the "Sweetheart of the Fairs" contest at the Canadian National Exhibition next August.

$300 damage in Highway 37 accident

Damage was estimated by police at $300 Friday morning in a two-vehicle accident on Highway 37, 1.5 miles north of Thomastown.

Police said Laurison Grills, 51, of RR 2, Tweed, was the driver of a van that collided with a car driven by Carl Albert McWilliams, 55, of Scarborough.

Grills was attempting a left turn off the highway when the accident occurred. No injuries were reported in the accident.

Fall Fair receipts hit record high

With the weather co-operating, the gate receipts at the 70th annual fall fair held on Saturday and Sunday, September 27th and 28th, reached a record high this year.

Saturday's admission alone, amounting to over $5,000 was as big as any other year's total, but over $8,300 was taken in during the two-day event. This compares considerably to the total of $4,800 taken in during 1974.

Everyone from the oldest to the youngest thoroughly enjoyed the fair; but the most excited this year were the older ones who participated in the Madoc High School reunion. Between two and three hundred registered in the big tent on the grounds. The chatting and laughter and renewing of acquaintances with hugs and kisses were evident from any viewpoint, as the group crowded around the tent. Coming from as far away as Monterey, California, British Columbia, Niagara Falls N.Y., and many other distant points, the classmates had a very exciting day. Most of the group were able to join the tour through the present school building, Centre Hastings Secondary School. This had been arranged by Miss Lamoine West, who also gave considerable assistance to the organizing committee. The luncheon and dance in the Kiwanis Centre that evening drew a capacity crowd, who enthusiastically participated in the get-together that went on into the early morning hours. Great visiting and renewing of friendships went on all the while. The committee reports that they were most pleased with the tremendous response to their preparatory work. Many voiced an enthusiastic wish for a repetition of the event. Allan "Shorty" Ross of the Conklin Midway, a former Madocer, was the original promoter of the event. He supplied the large registration tent and the banner for it. Chairman of the committee, Mel Caverly, reports that he has "never seen such enthusiasm in a group". "It's something you have to experience to appreciate", he says.

Saturday afternoon the fair was officially opened by Mrs. Janet Hamilton of Trenton, President of the Ontario Agricultural Societies, Ladies Division of Ontario Fairs. The platform contests, capably m.c.'d by Harold Tompkins of CJBQ Radio, assisted by Grant Ketcheson, President of the Madoc Agricultural Society, drew many competitors for the numerous contests, including nail driving and step dancing.

Saturday evening's drawing match drew a total of 21 teams for competition in the light and heavy horse divisions as well as numerous spectators. Judged by Eugene Hulton of Wolfe Island, winner of the Light Horse Division, drawing 8,600 pounds, was a team owned by Clinton Greer of Richmond, Ontario. In second place was the team of Ken McNeeley from Winchester; 3rd, Kenny Greer of Richmond; 4th, Gerry Barry, Queensboro; 5th, Stirling Laffin, Smiths Falls; 6th, Murray Clifford of Norwood. In this division, the award for the best team went to Ken McNeeley and the best teamster prize went to Mervyn Plaunt of Franktown.

Clinton Greer of Richmond also had the top team in the heavy horse division, which drew 9,000 pounds, and took the trophy as best team. Cecil White of Hartington was best teamster in this class. Second prize went to a team owned by Ken McNeeley of Winchester; 3rd, Fred Morrow of South Mountain; 4th, Cecil White; 5th, Ralph Hermer of Perth; and 6th, Clifford Manion of Plevna.

Under bright and sunny skies Sunday afternoon the platform entertainment featuring George Hamilton IV was a big attraction. It is hoped that the results of Sunday's horse and pony show, which had a good number of entries, and of the Pony Drawing Match will be turned in for next week's issue.

Thousands still wrong on fall coloring reasons

Ancient Indian legend probably says it's the work of the Great Manitou, but today thousands of us still mistakenly believe the reason is frost.

But the real reason the leaves of hardwood trees become violently colorful this time of year is slightly more complicated, according to the foresters.

Up until the beginning of the fall season our broadleaved or deciduous trees are virtually "programmed" to grow. Suddenly, because of moisture levels, temperature, amounts of energy stored in the roots, genetics and a dozen other influences, that growing period begins to slacken. All over the tree, the systems begin to shut down in preparation for the dormant period.

In the leaves the production of green chlorophyll stops and the remaining chlorophyll is destroyed by sunlight. Until now the green chlorophyll pigment has been dominant, blocking out all others and giving the leaves their green colors.

Two of the other pigments are called carotinoids. One is orange and is called carotin after the carrot in which it is the main coloring agent. The other pigment - a yellow - is called xanthophyll.

But there's another group of pigments, the anthocyanins, the reds and purples which form the the cell sap and contrast sharply with the oranges and yellows. The reds and purples may be present throughout the growing season, for example in beets, red cabbage, purple Spanish onions and egg plants, or they may be produced in autumn as in ripening apples, plums and grapes.

The quicker chlorophyll production diminishes, the more obvious becomes the gaudy influence of the other pigments, until that brief moment arrives just before the falling-off period when the hardwoods on the landscape seem to be on fire with golds, scarlets, yellows and purples. At the peak in their color, another change in the leaves occurs. Between the stem of the leaf and the branch is a layer of cells - the separation layer - which breaks down gradually causing the leaf to eventually break off and fall.

Bright days and cool nights - about five degrees Celsius - produce the most colorful autumns and the most dramatic cascades of falling leaves, not frost.

Early frosts can actually ruin the show. They kill the leaves before the separation layer develops, turning them a dull brown and causing them to cling to the tree well into winter.

According to Hank DeVries, supervisor of the ministry of natural resources Kemptville Nursery, Eastern Ontario's autumn color change is two weeks ahead of schedule and promises to be gaudy.

"The trees seem to be approximately two weeks ahead this year, probably because everything warmed up and stayed that way early in the growing season," he said.

The first trees to change leaf color are usually the ashes and hickories, followed by the maples. Halfway through the seasonal change the elms and birches join the group, while the last to abandon their green are usually the poplars and oaks.

Village service station under new management

Smith's Service Station at the corner of McGill and Main Streets has been sold to a Belleville couple.

Murney and Pansy Cooney took over the business on Saturday, October 27, from Mrs. Mabel Smith, who, with her late husband, Tom, operated it for 23 years.

The business will be renamed Tim's Texaco for the Cooneys' 11 year old son, Tim.

Mr. Cooney will continue with his position as Food Manager at Campbellford Memorial Hospital, leaving his wife to operate the business. Mrs. Cooney is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Lucas of Marmora. Mr. Cooney is originally from Ivanhoe.

The Cooneys plan to make some changes in the lunchroom area to make it possible for them to have a take-out service of chips, submarine sandwiches, fried chicken, hot dogs and hamburgers.

They will continue to sell gasoline, batteries and oil, and hopefully some time in the future, to operate a car repair service.

Mrs. Smith and son, Ron, have moved to a new home in the Beaver Creek area.

Tour Crowe watershed

Some of the most scenic spots in this part of the province were visited last Thursday during a tour of the Crowe Valley watershed by two busloads of municipal officials and members of the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority.

The trip, the first in 10 years, was sponsored by the Public Education Committee of the authority. Chairman Walter Van Steenburgh and vice-chairman John Wilkes, along with resources manager Bryan Boyce, acted as tour conductors, giving background information on the different sites.

Leaving Havelock at 9:30 a.m., the authority's new Belmont dam was the first stop, followed by a visit to the Crowebridge Conservation Area.

A look at Allan's Mill dam and the 400-acre nature park on Crowe River, which is to be left in its natural state, was next on the agenda.

Also noticed on the tour was the poor condition of the Marmora dam, which is to be the object of an engineering study to determine whether it should be repaired or replaced.

Following an after-lunch visit to the Marmora filtration plant, the tour headed north to St. Ola Lake, headwater of Beaver Creek, a tributary in the system.

New owners take over

Today's edition first of Cembal Publications

With today's edition of this newspaper, Cembal Publications takes over the ownership of five area community newspapers - Marmora Herald, Madoc Review, Havelock Citizen, Norwood Register and Hastings Star.

The five newspapers will now be associated with the company that publishes the Picton Gazette (Canada's oldest community newspaper) and The Heritage (Amherstview).

Through this association we hope to develop even further the fine newspapers recently owned by Don and Bev Mullan under the name, Mullan Publications.

The same staff members will be serving their local newspapers although we intend to add new staff members as the papers grow. Mr. Don Mullan remains as publisher.

We will continue to mirror the activities of the local communities served and we solicit YOUR continued co-operation in this endeavour.

We welcome your suggestions for the continued improvement of the newspapers and solicit news items from contributors.

A weekly newspaper occupies the position of special trust in the community and that is why publishing a newspaper is more than just running a business for profit. Because of this position of trust, weekly newspaper people are people involved in their community.

Cembal Publications will continue to foster a sense of community in their readers, and will attempt to reflect fully the happenings of the communities served.

Although your local papers are now associated with a larger group they will remain truly local in operation and in content. Local residents will continue to provide the news stories and pictures, and will continue to produce the newspaper.

Joseph Cembal, president of Cembal Publications and the Gazette group, is confident that the former Mullan Publications will continue to grow and improve in the years ahead.

At the time of going to press today, the Madoc Fair, which is being held today, October 3rd, 1928, promises to excel itself in every detail. In the large building there are hundreds of exhibits, more than any previous year. The midway has been on the grounds for the past two days, furnishing amusement for all. Last night, a good crowd attended the Arlie Marks Company Show in the Masonic Hall. Although the weather this morning isn't the best, if it continues to be fair, the Fair will have the largest attendance in its history.

A County road gang in charge of William Tennyson of Madoc, has just completed a splendid job on Lusk's Hill on the Bogart Road. This hill has been cut down and the road straightened. Tickle's Hill on the Sulphide Road has also been cut down considerably. It is possible now to see the road on the other side of it when you are approaching it.

Last week Mr. John Wesley Baalim of Hazzard's Corners brought into this office ripe black raspberries that were the second growth for this season. This is very unusual for this time of year.

Some fortunate boy or girl will win a C.C.M. Bicycle offered as a prize by the local Kiwanis Club in connection with their Peanut Tag Day next week (Fair week - October 3, 1951). The bicycle will go to the student who turns in the largest amount of money from the sale of peanuts. Help your favourite contestant by buying your peanuts from him or her. All money raised by the Kiwanis Club from this event will be spent on welfare work. The following are the names of the students selling peanuts: Elizabeth Baker, Tom Blue, Carl Derry, Doug Devolin, Jimmie Ellis, Francis Forestell, Bill Gawley, Gerry Gendron, Donna Govier, June Hatch, Marvin Johnston, Ronnie Laten, Terry Lahey, Norman Mahoney, Phyllis Plane, Pauline Quinn, Larry Stickwood, Don Bellinger, George Crawford, Gordon Johnston, Grace Edwards, Joan Barton, Betty Dean, Carol Johnston, Keith Love, Pat Plane, Marion Yearwood, Barry McCann, Shirley Ward, Donna Devolin, Shirley Edwards and Cliff Derry.

Mr. E. C. Woodstock of Toronto and Crowe Lake has forwarded the following to the Herald in regard to the word 'Marmora':

Marmora, in Hastings County, where iron deposits are to be developed, has long been known for its iron and even for gold. A huge plant for manufacture of the cobalt alloy, stellite, is located near the village. But the township of Marmora got its name from another of its natural resources. Marmor (plural Marmora) is Latin for marble. There are few townships with Latin names in Ontario.

Carol Johnston of Flesherton, formerly of Madoc, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Johnston, was successful in obtaining "The Atkinson Foundation Bursary" of $400 and also the Bateman Scholarship of $100 given at the Bateman picnic, to the one of the clan obtaining highest matriculation marks and entering University. Carol was successful in twelve subjects in grade thirteen and has entered McMaster University for further study. Carol's many Madoc friends wish her every success.

Next year, the International Plowing Match will be held in Hastings County. To encourage and help those interested in Match Plowing, the International Plowing Match Committee has arranged, with the co-operation of the high schools, a series of coaching classes. On Wednesday, September 28th, 1960, and actual plowing competition was held at West Huntingdon. Thirty-two High School boys entered the competition, Madoc High School being represented by David Foley, Madoc; Donald Bailey, Cooper; Gerrard Forestell, Madoc; Ralph Holland, Crookston; Allan Bailey, Eldorado; and Jim Cotton, Eldorado. First prize went to Kenneth Claus of Mohawk, Indian Reserve; 2nd, David Foley, of Madoc; 3rd, Donald Bailey, Cooper. Five Madoc boys finished in the top ten. The judge of the match was Mr. Joseph Tran of Claremont, who represented Canada at one of the World's Ploughing Matches in Europe.

AMONG TOP 25

A Marmora woman has been nominated as an outstanding woman of the Province of Ontario for International Women's Year, 1975.

Lillian O'Connor has received a letter from Premier William G. Davis congratulating her on being named as one of the 25 outstanding women in the Province.

Mrs. O'Connor's nomination was submitted by Marmora Catholic Women's League in recognition of her outstanding contribution to her Church, her community and Country.

Mr. Davis said in his letter that he joined with members of the Cabinet in saluting her for the contribution she has made to the Province of Ontario.

"The record of the achievements of those nominated stand collectively as a remarkable tribute to the women of Ontario. Without your contribution the record would be diminished", Mr. Davis told Mrs. O'Connor.

Mrs. O'Connor was raised and educated in Toronto. She worked as secretary at Queen's Park before her marriage to Breen O'Connor, of Marmora, and has been a resident of this area since that time.

She is the mother of 14 children and grandmother of three.

Standing on the promises

The September meeting of the Women's Mission Circle was held at the home of Mrs. George Wood on Monday, September 29th, at 2:00 p.m.

Mrs. George Moorcroft presided. The meeting opened by the singing of Hymn, "Standing on the Promises."

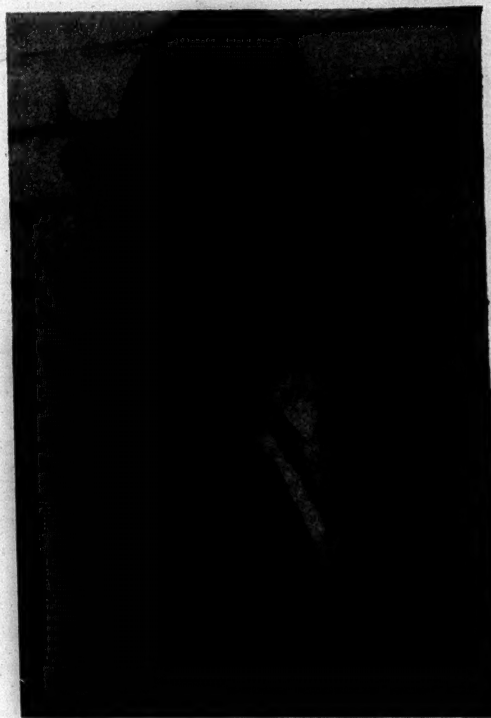

Mrs. Moorcroft read two poems, "God Will Be with You", and, "God Has Promised a New Heaven and a New Earth", and led in prayer.

The minutes of the last meeting were read. Roll call was answered with a promise from the Bible. Offering was received.

Mrs. George Wood, Program Convener, conducted a study on the Bible and the promises contained therein. We should have a desire to read and to study the Bible which is a history and contains promises and prophecy. Heb. 4-12 tells us that the Word of God is a discernor of the thoughts and contents of the heart. We will be judged by the Word of God as well as by Jesus. Jesus said, "Search the Scriptures which make us wise unto Salvation. Reasons for reading and studying Scriptures: (1) God's word is pure and tried; (2) Jesus said, "Come, Learn of me"; (3) Jesus has the words of Eternal Life; (4) He says, "Come and Learn of Me"; (5) The words of Christ should dwell in us; (6) By holding forth the Word of God we may convince gainsayers; (7) Grow in the Christian Life (now standing still); (8) Be grounded in the Word of God so we may have assurance. We may know that we have Eternal Life; (9) In order to know God's will for us, Romans 8 - 28. Ephesians 6, 10-18 was read by Mrs. Dennis Parsons. Mrs. Wood read a poem, "Sheltered by the Rock". Mrs. Reid read, "God's Word Means What It Says". Mrs. Gates then read, "The Bible Stands". After a season of prayer, Hymn, "I Must Tell Jesus", was sung. The meeting closed with prayer.

A social half-hour was enjoyed.

Barlows celebrate 50th anniversary

Friends and relatives from near and far converged upon St. Mark's Anglican Church Saturday as Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary.

The church hall was beautifully decorated with the many flowers the celebrants received, and of special interest were old photographs displayed among a table containing the various gifts and cards well-wishers had presented them.

The bride was the former Laura McKeown, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John S. McKeown and the groom was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jess Barlow.

They were married Wed. Sept. 23, 1925 at the Burnbrae Presbyterian Manse. The attendants were the bride's sister Lillian, and Reg McGee.

There was a dinner for the immediate families at the farm home. The couple later left for a honeymoon trip to Pittsburgh, returning by Buffalo and Niagara Falls.

The bride, after attending Peterborough Normal School, taught school for three years and later did some relief work at Bonarlaw. She has been active in church work and the Women's Institute and is at present president of the ACW, secretary-treasurer of the Springbrook Women's Institute and treasurer of Marmora OES.

Mr. Barlow has been very active in church and community work. At present he is completing 38 years as clerk of Rawdon township. He has been warden of St. Mark's Church at different periods of time. He is PM of Marmora Masonic Lodge; PDDGM of the Springbrook IOOF; and PP of the Marmora OES. He is also a member of the LOL.

After 40 years in business at Bonarlaw he retired a few years ago and was given a retirement party by the community. He was presented with a movie camera and projector.

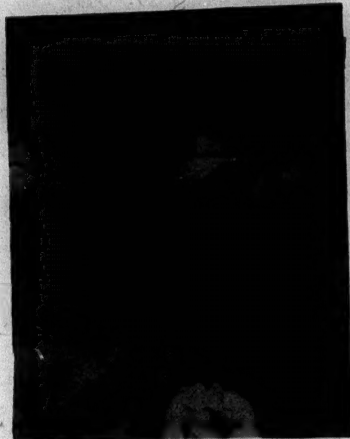

At the open house in St. Mark's, the bride wore a long mint green dress with a golden yellow rose corsage and gold accessories. Mrs. C.L. McKeown and Mrs. H. Mumby, Port Hope, Mrs. Don Sutton, Consecon, Mrs. J. Barber, Bolton, and Mrs. Russell Rowe, Cobourg, poured tea while nieces served the lunch provided by the ladies of St. Mark's Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Rowe received the guests at the door and Janice Rowe looked after the guest book.

Rawdon township councillors and their wives and the road superintendent and treasurer and their wives came as a group and presented Mr. and Mrs. Barlow each with a gift.

The bride and groom and the bride's immediate family went out for dinner later in the evening, entertaining more guests at their home.

A small turnout but a good time at run day

HAVELOCK - Throughout the summer plans were being prepared by the Havelock Rotary Club for a special fun day for the crippled children of the area. Misfortune of one kind or another met their efforts and by the time final details were ironed out at the end of August, it was discovered there were not enough children.

Invitations sent out to Peterborough and Belleville were not accepted but it was decided to go ahead for the seven children who could attend.

Girl guides and boy scouts were called in to help the children and to have as good a day as possible for themselves.

The date of the event was postponed a week due to rainy weather but the new day also saw cool temperatures and wet weather.

The morning was spent on a bus trip to the Sobin mine where the children were given a guided tour and were presented with several souvenirs. One boy who arrived late was taken on a short trip to the open pit mine at Marmora, but the other children made certain he also received similar souvenirs.

A lunch of hot dogs, hamburgers, drinks, ice cream and donuts was provided by the Rotarians and the Rotary Anns, followed by a sing-song for both adults and the children.

Gordon Holding and his group offered several musical selections after which the children saw rainbow trout from the fish hatchery being dumped into the water.

They were given first chance to fish for them from boats manned by the Rotary Club members.

Madoc pee wees capture Ontario "B" crown

The Madoc Pee Wee softball team travelled to Hornby on Sunday, September 21st, to meet Wardsville in the third and deciding game of the O.R.S.A. Pee Wee "B" finals, winning with a score of 6-1 which was 3-1 up until the seventh inning.

Garry Johnston's single drove in Doug Wood, who had tripled to put Madoc on the score sheet. Wardsville also scored in the bottom of the first. Madoc scored in the second inning when Billy Douglas's triple drove in Tony Douglas and Brian Willemssen, who had hit singles.

That was the end of the scoring until the top of the seventh inning. Good pitching and excellent fielding by the Madoc boys held Wardsville to one run. During the top of the seventh, singles by Doug Hagerman and Doug Wood and a triple by Gary Johnston gave Madoc a commanding 5-1 lead. Paul Hyde's double drove in Johnston from third to make the final score.

Madoc's pitcher, Gary Johnston, walked one and struck out 14 batters.

The road to the Ontario Finals was a long and trying one for the boys. However, encouraged by their coaches and bus loads of fans, the boys beat out Hillsburg two games to one and then took the same number of games from Binbrook.

In beating out Wardsville, they played the first game here in Madoc, winning 7-3. Then they took a loss in the second game in Hornby, with a score of 11-9.

First meeting October 6th

The advertisement for the Madoc Mother's Auxiliary for Minor Hockey in last week's issue should have read FIRST Meeting.

As very few turned out for the meeting, another one has been planned for Monday, October 6th, at the same time and place. It is hoped that a large number of the mothers will be present to discuss the sale of used hockey equipment. See the advertisement elsewhere in this issue.

Bald Eagle

Bald eagles range from southern Florida to Alaska, and are considered a national symbol. The birds build remarkable nests over the years. Each season they add new sticks, trample in new grass, and sometimes add old bric-a-brac. Observers have found fishing plugs, light bulbs, and even a tablecloth in nests. One huge nest measured 10 feet across and 20 feet deep. Another weighed two tons.

Madoc youth shot in hunting accident

A 16-year-old Madoc youth was taken to Belleville General Hospital Sunday afternoon suffering a gunshot wound from a hunting accident.

Listed in serious condition at the time, but slightly improved by Tuesday morning and listed in fair condition but remaining in the Intensive Care Unit is Michael James Genereaux, son of Mrs. Anne Genereaux of Elgin Street and the late David Genereaux.

Michael was shot in the joint of the left hip when hunting woodchucks with a friend on Lot 5, Concession 8, Madoc Township, about one-half mile north of the O.P.P. station. He was taken to the Centre Hastings Medical Centre, where he was treated by Dr. George Adam and rushed on to the hospital at Belleville for immediate surgery.

The companion hunter, Robert Joseph Forestell, 19, of Nelson Street, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Forestell, Madoc, was carrying a 30-30 rifle when the mishap occurred. Police report he had fired one shot at a woodchuck and levered a shell into the chamber of the gun. He was in the process of changing from full cock on safety when his thumb slipped, causing the firearm to discharge. It subsequently struck the young man at a 20-foot range. The accident occurred at about 3:30 p.m.

Constable D. C. Bush of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, was the investigating officer. Officials of the Ministry of Natural Resources are also conducting an investigation.

Marmora IODE holds first meeting of new season

The Marmora Chapter of the IODE held their first meeting of the new season last Thursday evening following a pot luck supper at the home of Mrs. Chris Jones. Vice-regent Bernice Young chaired the meeting in the absence of Regent Eleanor Bicknell and Mrs. Audree Wentworth acted as secretary. It was decided Luella Black and Eileen Demorest and possible the Regent or Vice-regent would attend the area dinner in Belleville on Oct. 2. The dinner is being jointly hosted by Argyle and St. Julien Chapters on the occasion of their 65th and 60th anniversaries. It was decided that half the cost of the delegates' tickets to the dinner should be paid by the Chapter. An invitation was received from J.R. Cook Chapter in Stirling to their second Art Sale and Show, held recently.

Treasurer Luella Black stated she had purchased a filing cabinet for records and volunteered to keep this in her home so that all records could be kept on file.

A request from Mrs. C.T. Lowe, chairman, Attawapisket Committee, for funds for the Greenhouse Project, was held over to the next meeting for consideration.

It was decided that donations to the various provincial and national funds should be made in accordance with last year's.

Plans were made to hold a rummage sale on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 24 and 25. Conveners will be Luella Black, Muriel Regan and Ann Walters. A possible site is being investigated by Mrs. Walters.

Members were reminded to begin making articles for the Christmas boutique. Mrs. Jones displayed some she had already finished.

Mrs. R.C. Ellis, of Belleville, area councillor, has consented to speak at the next meeting, which will be held at the public library on Oct. 23.

Firefighters plan open house for Oct. 8

The Marmora fire department will be holding an Open House Wednesday, Oct. 8 from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. as part of Fire Prevention Week which runs from Oct. 5 to 11.

Residents are welcomed to visit the fire hall and look over the fire trucks, the emergency vehicle and the equipment. Fire Chief Cec Neal and his men will be on hand to demonstrate how some of the equipment is operated and to answer any questions.

Chief Neal said he feels it's everyone's duty to help prevent fires and they can do this by inspecting their homes and garages for possible hazards that could start a fire. Good housekeeping is a very important means of preventing fires, the chief stated.

Minor damage results from high winds in area

HAVELOCK - Only minor damage was reported last week as a result of high winds that passed through the Havelock area.

Mrs. Frank McHay, looking out her kitchen window noticed something different about a tree on the property line between her yard and that of a neighbor. On closer inspection she saw a large portion of the tree had come down during the night. Mrs. McHay said she is quite worried about the damage done to the tree since it may be too dangerous to leave it and too expensive to have it removed.

Mrs. McHay lives on the north corner of Quebec and Union St.

Turner the saviour?

OTTAWA—(SF)—John Turner's departure from the Trudeau government leaves a hole in the cabinet that cannot be filled. Turner has been talking about resignation internally for nearly a year, and in spite of what you may hear to the contrary, he resigned for political reasons.

As Minister of Finance, he was in the hot spot because of Canadian economic performance, but under the Trudeau cabinet system, he had less actual control of the policies which govern the nation's economy than any previous finance minister.

He collected the blame for failure but didn't have a free hand in correcting faults.

John Turner is not ambitious for money, so rule out that motive for leaving the government. John Turner is more of a political animal than any other national public figure, and he knows the party rule — knock the Liberals, leave the Liberals and you're finished. Turner's ambition from youth has been to become Prime Minister and, frankly, I can't think of anyone better fitted, but...

He asked Prime Minister Trudeau to move him to external affairs, and was turned down. Trudeau wanted him to stay in Finance because Canada's business community would place its confidence in no other cabinet minister at the helm of the Finance Department. All signs point to tougher economic times ahead and politically Turner felt he could not survive as the heir apparent, tarred with the blame for economic disaster.

The way he's done it, he's out from under, but still a solid party man. Present indications are that Mr. Trudeau will face an enraged electorate when the next election comes and, if he loses, he would likely leave politics.

That would leave the way open for John Turner's return as savior of the party. If all this sounds far-fetched to you, ask someone who knows Mr. Turner. He's a politician dedicated to winning that top job and he thinks ahead even more than the Prime Minister.

'Tis rotten planning

'Tough' time for teachers

By BILL SMILEY

LAST spring, while perusing about 80 applications for one job teaching English, I expressed sympathy for the young graduates of teachers' colleges, all set to go, wanting to be teachers, and scarcely a job in sight.

At the time, I suggested it was rotten planning: graduating about 10 teachers for each job available. I still think it is.

But the column brought a couple of interesting responses, which I haven't managed to get around to answering. Thought I'd do so now, as we are launched into a new year of teaching and learning.

Miss M. A. Buck of Windsor, Ontario, read the column in the Tillsonburg News, and took issue with it, in a lady-like fashion and the most exquisite handwriting I've seen in years. She writes:

"You have described the situation very well as it applies to the job market in the area of Secondary English; however, it concerns me that young people who are considering a career in teaching might think that there are no opportunities in teaching at all. This is far from true.

"There is a demand for Secondary teachers of Mathematics, Physics, Girls' Physical Education, Home Economics, Art, Music, Business and Secretarial subjects, and Technical areas. There are also excellent opportunities for those who wish to teach in the Public or Separate Elementary schools."

Well, thanks, Miss Buck. This is heartening news. I don't know about the Maths and Physics. I doubt there's a "demand" for them, but there's always room for a good one.

Art and Music teachers are sitting pretty. But only because they are scarce. Any dope can teach English, as I am frequently reminded, but few young people have the talent and training for the arts.

Girls' Phys. Ed., yes. Perhaps this is because of attrition. A lot of the younger ones get married and have babies. And it's tougher and tougher to put the girls over the hurdles with each year you put on yourself.

Elizabeth Taylor, I am happy to say, will be able to make ends meet. And she has no need for a reunion with Richard Burton to do so. Liz is a young friend of ours, a contemporary of my daughter, and I nursed her through Grade 10, 12 and 13 English. She graduated last June as a Phys. Ed. teacher, and was hired by the first school she applied to.

She couldn't believe it when I told her how much money she'd be making — about $11,000 a year. "Migawd, I'm rich!" Then we started to figure income tax, salary deductions for this and that, and cost of living. She won't even be well-to-do.

Home Ec.? Again, I agree. We lost a young lady last June, because she had to move to the city. She had another job in two weeks. I don't know why they're scarce.

Technical teachers? Yes. There's a shortage. And a reason. About 15 years ago, quite a few technicians deserted their trades to enter teaching, not for more money, but for better working conditions, security — many reasons.

Over a decade they saw their former trades become more and more affluent, as wages went up and up, until the former electricians, mechanics, draftsmen, now teachers, were making considerably less as teachers than they would be as skilled workers, and with three times the tension. There are very few young technicians coming into teaching now. Who needs it, when he can make $80 a day at his job, and leave it behind when he finishes work?

From F. W. Reinhold, Superintendent of Schools in the Fort Vermilion School Division, in the Peace River district of Alberta, came another missive.

Written at the end of last June, the letter says: "I read your article in the Brooks Bulletin re Tough Time for Teachers and am wondering if you are serious... There is no surplus of teachers in Western Canada... we still have 22 vacancies at the Elementary level and six at the junior-senior high level." Twenty-eight vacancies at the end of June. In one school district!

Mr. Reinhold enclosed a terse but shocking resume of his school board's attempt to staff its schools.

After extensive advertising in Alberta dailies, American newspapers, and listings with Manpower, here's the picture:

December, 1974: Wrote to 15 first-semester graduates at University of Lethbridge expressing interest in hiring them. Not one replied to my letters.

February, 1975: Extensive advertising and Manpower (received 45 applications).

Feb., 1975: Extensive advertising U.S. papers (approximately 400 applications received).

READS YOUR STARS

Here's what's coming up

ARIES (3/21-4/19): Important news concerning someone you know well should reach you this week. A young person close to you needs your support and understanding. He's trying to grow up and may be totally confused as to how to do it. End of week glows.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Partner's behavior may be on your mind. Expect restlessness and changeability. Help with a problem comes from a hidden source. Love brightens midweek. Then, a tug-of-war, and you may not know which side to be on.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Conflict between the carefree and the dutiful as week begins. You could feel quite impatient with someone you love. Later, you may want to take a gamble; but while you're deciding which horse to back, the race is run.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): A job to do with several difficulties. Meet them, head on and then you can deal with the work itself. Possible contact with an immovable female. You can be stubborn yourself, so there could be a clash. Good luck!

LEO (7/23-8/22): Fun and romance get your week off to a flying start. Look out for possible romantic interference from a friend. Then, with effort, you can pop extra money into your pocketbook. Chance of T.N.T. 'nish.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Misplaced affections could give you a problem now. Take an honest look and be sure your loyalties are with those who merit them. Love life needs plenty of give and little take. Week closes with your help needed in an unusual situation.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): You may get a message bearing a real mixture of tidings from someone far away. An incident at home could begin innocently and then turn into a problem. Don't let it. Week comes to a rosy conclusion.

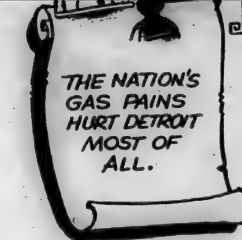

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): You have a particular goal in mind for a certain sum of money — don't be swayed into spending it on something else. Watch out for a friend with a troublesome secret. Steer clear. Week comes to a dizzy end.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Be careful that you don't work against yourself. Let your right know what your left hand is up to. Keep an eye on finances or a deficit may occur. Finally, a pleasant call from someone you haven't seen in a while.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): Week begins with indecision caused by a difficult choice to be made. Listen to your heart. Then, center stage to give your talents a workout. A good investment may show an unexpected flaw.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): Friends are in the spotlight as week starts. All is not well with a lady close to you. Then, a question of beauty or utility — beauty gets the nod. Ups and downs close week busily. Hint: one 'up' is romantic.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): A yen for more freedom may hit, making you mopey and vaguely dissatisfied. A practical friend can point the way out of a problem later on. Then, your quiet time may be suddenly interrupted.

Staying fit

by David Woods

In Ontario, a large number of people are putting their troubles behind them — literally.

In a province with eight million inhabitants, there are an estimated 400,000 new and recurring cases of back pain every year, and the Workmen's Compensation Board deals with some 20,000 claims annually for back problems alone.

One of Ontario's more than 200 orthopedic surgeons describes this as a vast problem — almost an epidemic. Moreover, he thinks that perhaps as much as 80 per cent of so-called low back pain is preventable.

Typically, he says, it accompanies obesity, poor posture and improper lifting. In the obese, the pot belly, with its lack of muscle tone, hangs out and pulls the spine forward in an accentuated arch.

This, added to a steadily decreasing suppleness of the spine that occurs as one gets older, sets the scene for disc problems that cause some, but not all, low back pain. Particularly susceptible to these troubles are manual workers, gardeners, and sportsmen or housewives who engage in sudden movements that put strain on the spine.

Poor posture is a major factor contributing to low back pain. Ideally, people should be taught to sit and stand properly in childhood so they can benefit for a lifetime from good postural habits. It also helps to sleep on a firm mattress offering proper support to the spine. Interestingly, there is less low back pain in certain Eastern countries where people squat to talk or eat — a position that's automatically more natural to the spine than sitting in an armchair.

Lifting the wrong way is another common cause of back pain. The correct way to lift is by bending the legs and not the back. Lifting by stooping over with the arms extended can put many pounds of pressure on the spinal column, inevitably causing damage and pain.

People who wear high-heel and platform-sole shoes can suffer from back pain as a result of spine arching. These people are often seen in doctors' offices and hospital emergency wards for back trouble caused in this way.

The best way to prevent back pain — which, incidentally, can be an extremely painful affliction — is to stay fit and trim and to avoid sudden strain on the spine.

For those prone to the problem, swimming is the best form of exercise because the body weight is supported, while all joints and muscles are exercised. Tennis and golf, by contrast, may aggravate the situation because they involve bending and stooping — and a twisting effect caused by swinging the club or racquet.

Persistent back pain requires assessment by a physician to determine what causes the pain, which could be a manifestation of problems other than in the spine. Problems could stem from the kidneys or other internal organs, for instance.

Also, a great deal of back trouble is related to affluence — too much food and/or too much lounging around doing nothing. People who have had gall bladder surgery, or hysterectomies, may suffer from back pain because of the poor muscle tone that often follows these operations. By doing the appropriate exercises after surgery, they may regain muscle tone. But for the most part, back pain is not only one of our commonest health problems, it's also one of the easiest to avoid, if you don't turn your back on it.

One foot in the furrow' by Bob Trotter

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd., Elmira, Ont. N3B 2C7

Newspaper people are constantly criticized because they seem to thrive on controversy.

Ghouls, they are called. They swarm around tragedy and disaster like flies around a manure wagon.

Over the 23 years I have been connected with the media, though, I have found most newspeople to be dedicated, hardworking, conscientious professionals. As a farm writer, I have come to the reluctant conclusion that the only way to get any response from farmers is to belabor a controversy.

Which leads to the subject of this column, a follow-up to one a few weeks ago about Dr. Ted Burnside of the poultry and animal science department at the University of Guelph.

I quoted Dr. Burnside extensively from a talk he gave at a Western Ontario Dairy Day this summer. Dr. Burnside's theory is that dairy farmers should be looking at production as closely as they look at conformation; that milk production is just as important as a row of ribbons.

I said in that column that it shouldn't matter to a dairy farmer whether a cow has a twisted horn or poor coloring in her switch as long as she produces great quantities of quality milk. Does it matter if her udder is so low you can scuffle corn with her?

Somehow or other, between the time that column left my typewriter and appeared in 15 or 20 papers across this province, attribution for the above statements appeared to come from Dr. Burnside.

He called me personally and it was a pleasure to hear from him. He agreed with most of the column but, in a gentlemanly way, suggested that he still thinks conformation is important. The reference to udders, he suggested, went a little too far.

To clear the record, then, we'll put Dr. Ted in the clear. I was the one who made the reference to the udders, not Ted.

He stoutly maintains that equal, if not increased, attention must be paid to production as well as conformation.

He was not the only person to call. A couple of dairy farmers also contacted me and one even refused to give his name although he was chuckling throughout the conversation on the horn.

"Give it to 'em," he said. "I got a grade cow here that'll out-produce Ragapple Annie. She looks like a beef reject but she sure can give milk."

Another producer was up-in-arms about it. He said writers like me who never set foot in a dairy stable should do more investigating before shooting off our typewriters.

"Why don't you do a story on the service that dairymen are getting from most of the artificial insemination co-operatives?" he said. "They send their so-called technicians hurrying and scurrying all over the province when good dairymen could do the job just as well, even better."

"Why are those young punks galloping all over the country — and the farmers end up paying for it — when we could do it ourselves?"

Now, once again, let me repeat: I often get manure on my boots. I do not live in an ivory tower and I try to get honest opinions which reflect what the farm community is thinking.

But I know little about the service being given by artificial insemination units. Hopefully, the suggestion given by this dairyman will spark some discussion in this column. I'll be glad to give equal space to both sides of the story.

But I'll make a little bet with you. I'll bet the AI boys will respond with dignity and with sound arguments in their favor.

But the farmers, the people most concerned if this turns out to be controversial, will not say a word. They'll sit back and let somebody else do the talking for them.

I'll be pleasantly surprised if more than four or five make any effort on their own behalf to back up the man who feels breeding co-ops should let farmers do their own inseminating, if indeed, they should.

Any takers?

A light snowfall. Reminder to put on your snowtires. Normal traffic will probably make the snow disappear from the roads. A broom is all you need to clean off porch and sidewalks.

Skiers and tobogganers will love it. Snowstorms of this nature will require plows to keep traffic moving. Shovelling your driveway and sidewalks is a must.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I am fourteen years old and I have a problem with my parents. One night I was with some boys and girls. My mother saw me and she thinks we did something wrong, but we didn't. From that time she won't let me go out of the house unless I take my younger sister. My friends ask me to go out with them and my mother won't let me. What should I do to let her think the right way?

OUR REPLY: It is your responsibility to communicate with your mother. Share your feelings with her. Be honest. She loves you and you love her. Make certain she is clear on how you feel about the situation. Then, listen carefully to her side. She is already thinking the right way. Just because somebody disagrees with you doesn't mean they're wrong. There are many ways to look at the same thing. Accept her rules. That's the way things are. Don't struggle with them. If you're responsible about the rules your mother has set up eventually you'll get the recognition you deserve—and things will probably loosen up a bit. In the meantime play it her way. She's the boss!

Because of the volume of letters to this column, requests for personal replies can not be accommodated. Editorial panel selects for weekly use, letter which best represents questions and/or comments from readers. FOR & ABOUT TEENAGERS, BOX 639, FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601

Recycling

Waste paper that is recycled accounts for 22 percent of all U.S. paper and paperboard fiber needs. More total tonnage of waste paper is recycled today than 30 years ago. The rate of recycling, though, has been declining steadily since World War II. Recycling was a necessity then because resources had to be diverted to wartime production needs.

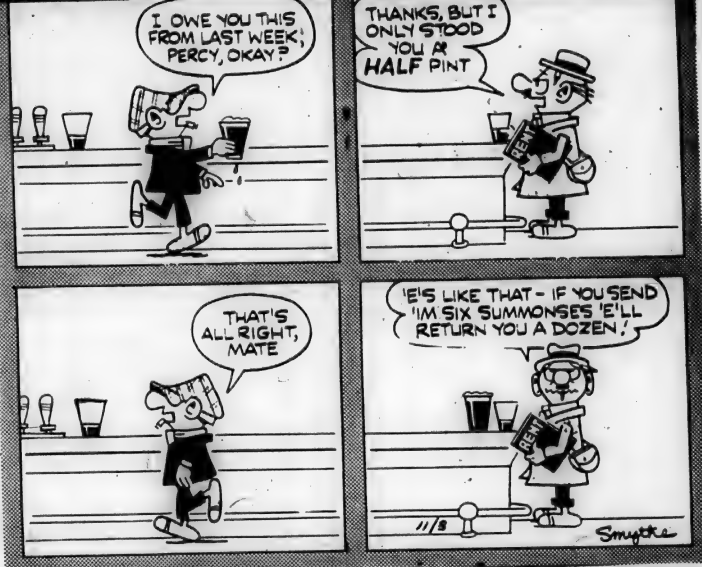

Disability Pay

Over a quarter of a million Americans receive social security benefits because they have severe disabilities which began in childhood and which keep them handicapped as adults. More than 65 percent of childhood disability beneficiaries have some degree of mental deficiency.

Dryer Tips
Don't overload your clothes dryer. Allow clothes to tumble freely, especially garments made of easy-care fabrics. To prevent heat-setting wrinkles, remove clothes promptly when tumbling stops. Even a few minutes delay can result in numerous, unnecessary wrinkles.

TODAY'S ANSWER

Taking Up The Cross...

Then Jesus said unto his disciples, If any man come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.
For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it.
For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?
St Matthew 16: 24-26

'Better days are still to come'?

It came as a shock, but the first thing I noticed upon my arrival at Queen's Park was the statue of Sir James Whitney, Conservative premier from 1905 to 1914, still overlooks the expanse of grass and flowers in front of this historic building.

With the brutal rebuff of Premier Davis' Conservative government, one might have thought Sir James would be looking somewhat peaked, but there was not sign of that, just a stoic acceptance of what will be. He's seen it all before.

Queen Victoria was also looking as dour as ever and the giant pillars at the entrance to the building haven't yet begun to crumble.

There were no reports of senior civil servants committing hari kari by jumping off the top of the Moog building and the lobby or grand staircase was not littered with beaten, bewildered Tories. There was no armed guard, no militia, no electronic scanners, no signs at all that an insurrection had taken place.

There were in fact some indications that in spite of the stunning defeat, and even with the socialist hordes at the very gates, the government really does intend to carry on.

I had not even reached my office when the first two of the several government news releases were handed to me — one about housing and one about animals for research — a sure sign that things are as normal as can be expected after the trauma of the election results which saw the Tories dumped from a majority position to a minority government after 30 years of divine rule.

I even entered my office somewhat tentatively, expecting at any moment a liberated citizen to arrest me for past anti-socialist columns, but there was nothing apart from a mountain of press releases placed there during my absence from this place over the five-odd weeks of campaigning.

Gerry Kaplan, one of NDP campaign architects, strolled by singing. He stopped long enough to say justice had been done, the Tories had been slapped, the Liberals bumped to third, and Ontario really is a wonderful place to live in after all.

Who could disagree? Except perhaps Bob Nixon and Bill Davis. Certainly not me. A brief call to another NDP stalwart, Ellen Adams — "today the opposition, tomorrow the world," she laughed. "Enjoy it while it lasts", I replied.

It probably is an inappropriate time to remind the socialist party, since they are preoccupied justifiably with the joy of finishing second, but their position in the next election may not be quite so rosy, particularly if Davis can isolate them into a right-wing-left-wing battle (the NDP doesn't like being called a socialist party any more). For all their success this time, much of it came by default and their leader, Stephen Lewis, brilliant as he is, does in fact still scare many people with his radicalism.

Having thought about that for awhile, it occurred to me to stroll through the north wing of the building where the MPP's have their offices.

Walking first by the Liberal offices, I noticed large stacks of papers in boxes piled up outside several of them, particularly Etobicoke's Len Braithwaite. Paul Taylor, the defeated Ottawa Liberal, stood alone behind his desk, going through his papers.

Along the Tory corridors, the scene was much the same. Several of the name tags had already been taken off the office doors.

A few secretaries wandered aimlessly around the halls. Nobody was smiling.

The first sound of laughter I heard came from the NDP side of the top floor of the north wing. Until now, they've been squeezed into one corner, but that will soon change, and there's talk of repossessing the entire floor. Ah, the glory of it all.

One could only be happy for the NDP. They have been the only real opposition to the Tories and they did run the most intelligent campaign of the three.

Liberals have been heard to grumble since the election that the NDP doesn't deserve to be second because that party got a smaller share of the popular vote. The only fair reply to that is the Liberals got more votes than they deserved based on their performance in the campaign and in the Legislature. The same is true of the Tories.

But maybe the last word should go to Tom Wardle, beaten in Toronto Beaches-Woodbine, a defeat which in itself is enough to restore sagging confidence in the ultimate justice of democracy.

The day after Wardle's defeat, he typed out a note and put it on the Tory bulletin board for all secretaries to read: "Thanks, for all your kindnesses and co-operation during the past four years. Keep smiling, better days are still to come."

Time will tell. But we'll have to wait and see.

We're being swindled

By KENNETH McDONALD
Winston Churchill once said, "All social reform which is not founded upon a stable medium of internal exchange becomes a swindle and a fraud."

Canadians are being swindled by the fraud of inflation -- the hidden tax which saps the dollar's value. In 1975 we need $140 to buy what $100 would have bought in 1971.

...
Inflation is caused by Ottawa expanding the money supply to cover its deficits. This year Ottawa is spending $5 billion more than it gets in revenue -- three times last year's deficit. It needs the money to pay the soaring costs of unemployment insurance. Local Initiatives Program (LIP), Opportunities For Youth (OFY) and all the other giveaway schemes politicians invent to get themselves re-elected.

Ottawa's overspending is the direct result of the something-for-nothing philosophy which has kidded a lot of young people into believing there's no need to work. By 1973, young single adults (14 to 24 years), who represented only 27 per cent of the labour force, accounted for 48 per cent of the unemployed -- and drew benefits up to $113 a week. UIC spending has gone from $694 million in 1970 to over $2 billion in 1973 to probably $4 billion by the end of 1975 -- a six-fold increase in five years.

Expanding the money supply to mop up the $5 billion deficit at home, borrowing abroad to pay for Canada's $5 billion deficit in foreign trade -- Ottawa is trying desperately to postpone the day of reckoning. As a country we're living beyond our means. Ottawa tries to hide the fact by borrowing to prop up the dollar, because if the dollar were allowed to reach its true value (about 90 cents U.S.), too many Canadians would wake up to what is happening.

To attract foreign money, Ottawa has to raise the Canadian interest rate, which adds to inflation because everyone's costs then go up as well. Cost of financing is one of the five top problems reported by members of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business. Borrowing at reasonable rates for productive purposes -- to build houses or to finance business expansion -- strengthens the economy.

Borrowing abroad to keep our dollar from falling does not solve our problem. We must as a nation get back to work and produce competitively more of what we consume.

Twenty minutes. I don't know what that guy is talking about, he doesn't say. Maybe that's why most granddads talk to themselves. They like to talk to sensible men and they like to hear sensible men talk.

Never put off till tomorrow whatever you can't shove onto someone else's desk today.

One ad that ran last week: LION TAMER WANTS TAMER LION. Why not write your Congressman and demand that advertisers stop defacing our billboards with highways. And finally there's the feed manufacturer's slogan: OUR PIG MASH IS GOOD TO THE LAST SLOP.

Anxious?
You don't know the meaning of the word anxiety unless you're a sports car owner surrounded entirely by dogs. The way things are going you feel like a fool buying a five-year calendar. And everybody has problems -- but the guy next door, he's like a Freudian Smorgasbord.

No, Gwendolyn, the pet shop won't sell you two if you ask for a parakeet.

Service Smiles
Many folks still wonder about West Point. Are they building an army to beat Russia -- or Notre Dame? Of course you know about the recruit who made general in one day. Seems as if he was standing in line, IBM card in hand. When pushed he dropped the card and a guy with golf shoes on walked across it. You can imagine what happened after that.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Andrews, Oshawa, wrote, "God speed the work of peace." "A beautiful tribute to a most loved man," Adele Forby, Scarborough.

Carmen Sauel, Mexico, penned in Spanish, "Satuviniens contigo en pace." We are with you in peace. The Baur family from Niagara Falls, "A very pleasant beautiful place."

There were some brisk questions, such as, "Why do you have so many signs?" "Where can one get a drink of water?" -- but for the most part, the comments were favourable.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Hilen, Belleville, wrote, "This is a good place to meditate." Budie Hare, Kelowna, B.C., "A lovely quiet place."

"This is the strength of a dream coming true," said John Deacon, Ottawa. "In memory of my son," wrote Mrs. M. Williams, Chesore, England.

Perhaps the most touching was that of Rev. Donald Irman, Ridgeway, N.Y. "In memory of my two brothers at Arras and Vimy Ridge."

The Peace Park is different from other parks and that is why the tourists like it. Most important of all, it gives hope, in a world that is beset by wars and rumours of wars.

She loved me more than anything,
She was as sweet as she could be.
No one in this world
Could ever compare,

That person could only be,
My kind and loving mother.
Sadly missed by daughters Kim and Nettie.

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

CHARMER WITH A PROBLEM

Hashearing loss

Jimmy is a golden-haired, blue-eyed charmer with fair skin, rosy cheeks — and a problem. Three-year-old Jimmy has a hearing loss, caused by an injury at five months. Otherwise his health is good. He is learning to talk with the help of a home visitor from the school for the deaf and he is a very vocal child, even when not using words.

Jimmy is cheerful, contented, active and adaptable. He likes company but can entertain himself. He's a good eater and he sleeps well.

It is thought that the injury which caused his deafness also affected his learning ability. He is a slow learner and will need special education.

Loveable, appealing Jimmy needs special parents who will find joy in his winning personality and added joy in helping him to surmount his handicap.

To inquire about adopting Jimmy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life. For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

Claims report delayed on orders of government

Margaret Campbell, Liberal member of the Legislature for the riding of St. George, said that the provincial government delayed until just before the September 18 election the release of a report which did not uphold the government's stand on day-care.

Mrs. Campbell told a news conference that the report, the second progress report of the citizen's advisory committee on day-care, was completed June 30, but not released until September 17.

She charged that the report was delayed by the civil service "on instructions" from the government.

Mrs. Campbell said the report was printed by September 8, but there were "unaccountable" delays in making the report public.

She said the day-care issue is a matter which should have been discussed during the election campaign and that the report agreed with the Liberal position in regard to day-care.

Donna Solish, administrative assistant to Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said no orders were issued from the ministry to delay the report.

The report suggested that skilled personnel are necessary in group day-care programs since such training is required for those in junior kindergarten.

Behind the Seams

BY PEGGY BENDEL

With the cost of fabrics still rising, the home sewing industry shows every sign of wooing the consumer with quality this fall, certainly good news for us all. The companies that make our sewing supplies take their cues from the European designers, and the biggest news from Paris and London now is the classic approach to clothing. "Classic" is a term freely used by many, but in the current application it means clothes that are meant to endure. This is in contrast to the more frivolous and whimsical side of fashion which assumes clothes will be worn for just a season or two, then discarded in favor of the new trends.

For those of use who sew, the question is what fabrics are classics? As long-wearing wool fabrics return, look for the timeless checks and plaids — these are the traditional patterns one never gets tired of wearing. Corduroy is another enduring favorite. While the bulky jumbo wales of seasons past were fun while they were new, what really counts today are the basic small to medium wale types. You can build a wardrobe around them.

Denim is another backbone fabric that people of various ages and fashion persuasions have worn for years. It's no wonder. Denim is sturdy as well as attractive, so what you make from it lasts. Other time-honored fabrics including poplin, gabardine, chambray and flannel apparently are replacing double knits as the staple fabrics to sew for seasons to come.

Sometimes the color of a fabric puts it in the classic category. Black is a prime example. It can be worn all year. You can combine it with white or a bright color, and it never looks dated. Smokey or misty pastels also last through the ages, and no discussion of classic fabrics would be complete without homage to the neutrals, from silver grey to winter white to camel, oatmeal and beige.

Jolly Green Thumb

BY MARY FUREY CRYMES

Who says you have to paint, sculpt or be crafty to express your creativity? Do it by calling on Mother Nature to help you create beautiful, decorative dried plant arrangements. Gather ye materials while ye may — they're free and available right now.

You'll find much of it in the garden, or what's left of it: corn tassels, gourds, seed pods, flowers like Chinese lanterns and starflowers. Other material lies in wait along the roadside. Be on the watch as you travel, but keep your eyes on the road. Look carefully for cattails, yarrow, curly dock or milkweeds; mark the spot and return later. Come armed with cutting shears and a good knife. Remember to wear waterproof shoes for wading in and picking cattails. You take these when they're young and in the thin, spike stage.

Bring materials home and hang in bunches in a breezy, dry spot. A patio roof or rafter of a screened in porch is ideal; but remember that some plants crumble as they dry. Breezes disperse lacy asparagus fern. Sun causes milkweed pods to break open and release bits of fuzz to waft through the house. A light coating of hair spray will help hold them while they dry.

Containers can be anything that suits your fancy — baskets, boxes, tubs. A gilded berry box lined with sphagnum moss becomes a chic container, as does a plastic, boat-shaped meat tray. Have on hand pronged holders, florists' clay and a good acrylic spray. Decide on shapes and sizes for your arrangements, and experiment with different forms.

Family Physician

BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. Do you think that the grade and high schools are the proper place for sex education?

A. This is really a loaded question, since no matter how I answer it, I know I'll find disagreement. However, it seems painfully obvious that a lot of children manage to get through high school with almost nothing in the way of sex education from anywhere — including their homes! I believe that the home is the best place for sex education, but many parents seem unable or too embarrassed to discuss sex with their children. So perhaps its not too bad an idea for the schools to step in and help a little. A simple fact that points out the need for more and better education from somewhere is that the largest reservoir of undiagnosed gonorrhea is in our teenagers! Many schools try to avoid the hassle that can result from all student courses about sex by having courses which are optional and which can only be taken with the parent's permission.

Schools good place for sex education?

Q. Do you think that teenagers should wear internal tampons or external pads during their periods?

A. Whichever is most comfortable. Medically there is no particular reason to advise either over the other.

Q. Is morning sickness a sure way to diagnose pregnancy?

A. By no means! Many women feel unusually good when they're pregnant and never have any morning sickness, while other women who aren't pregnant but fear they might be, vomit every morning. There is even such a thing as sympathetic morning sickness which is suffered by the husband of the newly pregnant woman!

OUR ANCESTORS

"Wenceslas, stop looking out on that frosty morning before you catch your death of cold!"

Liberals a clear second

The NDP and its strategists deserve to be gloriously happy and satisfied with the election. But for those who figure now it's just an easy dance to power for them, they should take another look at the results.

And that second look should include who finished second.

By now most know the NDP won two more seats than the Liberals despite getting fewer votes in total.

The NDP concentrated its efforts on the ridings where victory was possible. The results justified that strategy.

But some would go beyond those 38 seats and forecast many more seats for the party in the next election. Some have also talked about the Liberals collapsing into obscurity.

But consider these facts which show that the Conservatives and Liberals are ahead of the NDP in overall strength.

The Conservatives finished second in 53 ridings. In four of those ridings, the Tory candidate was within 500 votes of the winner; in another seven the Tory was within 1,000 votes of the winner.

The Liberals finished second in 49 ridings. In six, the Liberal was within 500 votes; in another seven the Liberal was within a thousand votes.

The NDP finished a bad third in this number-two-and-trying-harder department. The party finished second in 23 ridings, in only one was the candidate within 500 votes and in only two were the NDP candidates within 1,000 votes.

So the NDP strength fades quickly after the winners. I interpret my figures to show crudely that when winners and seconds are tallied, the Tories are first or a major factor in up to 104 ridings, the Liberals are the same in 85 ridings and the NDP are in the running in 61 ridings at most.

That indicates the two-party system hasn't yet arrived at Queen's Park. The election aftermath saw some experts saying there had been a complete collapse of the Liberals and Ontario would now polarize into conservatives and socialists.

Perhaps, but at present the Liberals join the Conservatives in having more potential for gains than the New Democrats have. I'm sure, however, the financial confusion in Ottawa will continue to blight those Liberal chances just as long as Ottawa Liberals continue to fuddle-duddle the economy.

Most appear to want Bob out!

When, and if, Bob Nixon leaves the Liberal leadership, you can count on a leadership convention in January or early February.

If he doesn't, you can count on him hanging in for a fourth kick at the can. Nixon will quit because of his third loss as leader, despite the fact the party did increase its popular vote and did win more seats than it's held since the 1930's when Mitch Hepburn was premier.

Whether he does pack it in or not is his decision to make, but much of it depends on just how strong the behind-the-scenes urgings are from his caucus veterans, particularly his potential replacements - Sarnia's Jim Bullbrook, Kitchener's James Breithaupt and Ottawa's Albert Roy.

It's unlikely Nixon would want to stay on in the face of hostility from his caucus but, as bad as he is as leader, the party still must face the fact that a new election could come at any time and they have very few personalities to choose from.

The Nixon supporters, and there are a few, argue that their man did well by lifting the party to 36 seats, a gain of 13, and raising their popular vote by six points to 34 percent, just two back of the Tories.

The detractors, and there are many, point out that the man has been leader since 1967, is now a three-time loser at the polls and finished third when he should have won the whole thing.

Personally, I subscribe to the latter view. Having watched Nixon perform for some time, it comes as comfort to see the public view of his worth pretty well parallels my own.

There has of course been speculation for years that Nixon was going to quit, but this time it appears to be for real.

To begin with, Nixon has to decide quickly, since in a minority situation an election can come at any time, and most Liberals are quick to agree privately that they wouldn't want to go through another election with Nixon as leader.

They do have a problem in terms of a replacement, but even a Bullbrook or a Breithaupt would probably do as well, and perhaps better, than Nixon in the next election. At least it would be a new face.

Apart from the provincial Liberals, a whole series of federal Liberals has been mentioned as possible leadership candidates, particularly recently retired finance minister John Turner, although heaven knows why he'd want it, and Energy Minister Donald MacDonald, also unlikely since he may get Turner's old job.

That leaves people like Herb Gray, a former federal minister, but he really blew his chances by refusing to run provincially this time in his Windsor area. There's always Norm Cafik who gave Nixon a tussle for the job last year after Nixon had announced his resignation then changed his mind and contested his own leadership after his caucus convinced him he was the only man available for the job.

One thing the Liberals have to keep in mind is their lack of appeal in Toronto, a factor they'll have to overcome if they ever hope to form a government or even slip back into second place ahead of the NDP.

Nixon, a farmer and former teacher, never seemed able to excite the imagination of Toronto voters, nor has he done well in the 10 additional ridings immediately surrounding Toronto.

He did do well in Southwestern Ontario where he scared people with stories of regional government, but that's not likely to work again next time after people see that in fact the regional governments he predicted simply aren't going to materialize.

In any event, most hope Nixon does quit and most expect he will.

Celebrity Parade
BY CATHY POST FIELD

I was shocked to read that Ethel Merman's daughter-in-law was murdered recently. Didn't the entertainer have a similar tragedy a few years ago? Diane Larson, Meterie, La.

Yes. The singer's daughter committed suicide. Ms. Merman has not had a happy personal life and hopes to return to Broadway soon in an effort to forget it.

Is it true that Raquel Welch, who is suddenly on a Women's Lib kick, wanted the Screen Actors Guild to change their name to Screen People's Guild? T. Hopkins, Galveston, Tex.

Someone jokingly suggested it to Raquel, but the smart actress pointed out that the dictionary definition for actor is "a person who acts" and makes no reference to sex.

Could you please tell me where I can write Mark Shera of "SWAT"? J. Allison, Butte, Mont.

For all readers asking where to write their favorites, please send letters to the networks that carry the series or the production companies that make them. The credits given before or at the end of the show will give you the info. The name, plus the address, Hollywood, Calif. is sufficient, even if the show is filmed in Los Angeles, Burbank, etc. For you, Ms. Allison, the SWAT address is 20th Century-Fox, P.O. Box 900, Beverly Hills, 90213.

I read recently that a Bob Merrill is doing the screenplay for the Errol Flynn biopic. Is he kin to the songwriter by that name? T. Kilm, Brooklyn, N.Y.

It is the same Bob Merrill. He did the lyrics for "Funny Girl," also wrote "Honeycomb," "How Much is That Doggie in the Window," etc. before switching from tunesmith to writer.

Davis & Lewis in 'McCarthy-Bergan' routine

My, my, how the worm turns. Premier Davis and socialist Stephen already doing an Edger Bergen-Charlie McCarthy routine on the Pickering Airport.

At four o'clock, on September 24, Stephen Lewis, now the leader of the official Opposition, called a Queen's Park press conference to urge the Premier to tell Ottawa to stop building the Pickering Airport.

Actually, the press conference began 10 minutes late, which may tell you something since Lewis, when he was leader of the third party up here, was always early for press conferences and now that he has moved up the ladder to quasi-premier, things no doubt will change.

In any event, the press corps dashed out of the Lewis press conference, madly excited at the prospect of a legislative showdown on the issue and the possible quick collapse of the minority Tory Government, only to be greeted with the news that Davis was holding forth at 5 p.m. at Toronto's Harbor Castle Hotel where he had just held the last cabinet meeting of the old gang, eight of whom have either quit or been defeated at the polls.

Lo and behold, we arrived at the posh, marble-infested hotel, to discover Transportation Minister John Rhodes saying precisely what Lewis had urged the government to say — basically, telling the federal government to keep its airport.

Rhodes expressed "complete surprise" that Lewis had just finished a press conference on the same issue, obviously making it the coincidence of the century.

When he was finished his routine, Davis himself arrived to say that Ontario does not need a second Toronto-area international airport.

He of course concurred with Rhodes and Lewis that this sudden upturn in airport interest had nothing at all to do with the current minority situation.

Only those of you who admit to little faith would still harbor such treacherous suspicions.

Since the Pickering Airport situation (now cancelled by the federal government) began, Ontario has always floated ambiguously around with the line that the need for an airport is, after all, a federal matter. Ontario's concern, they said, was to work out some kind of cost-sharing deal with Ottawa for the $400 million it would cost to service the airport with roads, sewers and water.

Why it was just last July that Rhodes met with federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand in Ottawa and asked him to stop construction on the airport until they could work out the cost-sharing formula. There was certainly nothing then in Ontario position to suggest it was opposed to the airport.

But that was when most of the legislative seats were painted blue, as in Tory. Now, with so many painted pink, as in NDP, and the blue ones clearly a softer tone, we discover that new evidence has suddenly come to light to prove conclusively that Ontario does not need another airport.

Airlines are cutting back on flights, says Rhodes. Suddenly, people are just not using airplanes as much as they used to. And anyway, with money tight, there are higher priorities.

The most interesting aspect of all this is that it represents the first clear indication of the kind of government we are going to see in Ontario between now and the next election, whenever that might be.

With the NDP irrevocably opposed to that airport and the Liberals on record as opposing it, Davis wasn't prepared to fight another election on it.

He says, and Rhodes says, that the reason they didn't make the announcement during the campaign or immediately before before is because the press would interpret it as "the Spadina of 1975", a reference to his grand gesture of stopping the Spadina expressway just before the 1971 election, a move, incidentally, which he has since altered slightly.

The past week's events are a clear indication that Premier Davis will be after all those years of arrogant rule by divine right.

It's not necessarily a bad thing, mind you, it's just that it's awfully difficult to tell who is Edger Bergen and who is Charlie McCarthy.

AREA CANCER REPRESENTATIVES RECEIVE CERTIFICATES

Campaign certificates from the 1975 annual Cancer Fund Drive were presented to branch representatives of the Belleville

Marmora, Harold Brintnell, Madoc; Mrs. S.R. Dufoe, Tweed, and Bruce Bell, Stirling.

That daring young man...

A large crowd is expected to turn out to watch the Flying Frenchman at two o'clock on Sunday afternoon, October 19th as he takes his daring ride.

Claude LeClair of Tweed has agreed to attempt to snowmobile across the water from Tweed Park to the Island.

The object of the stunt is to help raise funds for the Kinsmen Club of Tweed Hungerford. They are sponsoring a contest to guess the distance, in inches, the snowmobile will travel on the water.

The winner of the contest will receive a cash prize of $200. In case of duplication, the money will be split.

Man, 20 arrested after police chase

A young Ottawa man was arrested after a police chase on Highways 37 and 7 Sunday evening which resulted in damage to two police cruisers and a motorcycle.

Originating in Tweed, Const. Thomas Andrews of the Tweed Police Department first noticed the motorcycle speeding through the village when he was on radar duty. He took up chase of the motorcycle and attempted to stop the driver five times, while pursuing it north on Highway 37. When he came to the junction of Highway No. 7, the cyclist turned eastward. Help was summoned from the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police and Constable Creelman came to assist Const. Andrews. They caught up to the bike and the Madoc cruiser overtook it. Driving in front of the bicycle, the cruiser was hit at the tire when the cyclist lost control. He regained control and again rammed the cruiser. The door of the Tweed cruiser was torn by the foot rest on the bike.

When the young cyclist was finally halted, it was found that he was resisting arrest only on his own principles. He was identified as Larry James Moffatt, 20, of Ottawa. There were no injuries as a result of the incident, but damage to the Tweed cruiser is estimated at $75 to the right rear door and to the motorcycle at $200. The Madoc cruiser was unharmed.

Mr. Moffatt was charged with dangerous driving by the Tweed Police and the Madoc Officer charged him with dangerous driving and also with criminal negligence of a motor vehicle.

He will appear in Provincial Court at Madoc on Tuesday, November 4th.

The combined choirs of St. John's and St. Oswald's sang the Anthem, "These Holy Things", with Miss Nicola Thompson at the organ. Robert Hudson, acting Lay Reader, read the New Testament Lessons. Rev. J. H. Thompson conducted the service and presented the confirmation class to the Bishop.

The flowers on the Communion Table were given by the Anglican Church Women of Madoc. The church was filled to capacity, with many relations and friends coming from Toronto, Uxbridge, Mar-mora, Tweed and Millbridge.

Going into defence poorhouse?

OTTAWA — (SF) — The cabinet is currently in the throes of a defence decision which could cost the country more than $3 billion. Three times the choice of a long range patrol aircraft (LRPA) has been postponed by the cabinet, despite our dwindling ability to police off-shore and Arctic sovereignty.

That decision has now become meshed with a Defence order for new fighter planes. About $800 million for LRPA's, add another $2.5 billion for fighters.

The incredible thing about this proposal to spend such a monumental sum for a fighter is that it is being considered not as a Defence need, but as a prop for the Canadian aerospace industry.

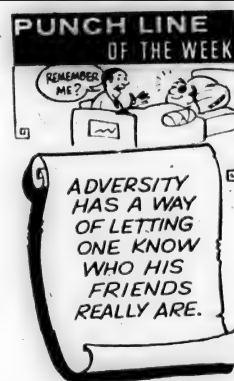

The government already owns deHavilland of Canada, in Toronto. Cost-$34 million. Late this year it is expected to exercise an option to buy Canadair in Montreal from General Dynamics for $38 million. Boeing Aircraft in the U.S. has offered to buy one third interest in the two Canadian companies from the government, and use Boeing's worldwide marketing team to sell Canadair-deHavilland products — provided Boeing get's the order for an LRPA. McDonnell Douglas in the U.S. has made a competing offer — to put its subsidiary, Douglas Aircraft of Canada, into the Canadian aerospace pot in return for 45 per cent interest in the three-company package. That offer is conditional on the government buying the F-15 Eagle fighter from McDonnell Douglas, with roughly half the work done at the three Canadian plants. F-15 Eagles sell for $18 million a copy, counting spares, and Canada's airmen want 125 of them.

Is the dreadful threat of a manned bomber attack over the north pole really so severe that the Trudeau government is ready to spend us into the defence poorhouse to counter it?

Even if the Defence budget were boosted by $500 million annually for the next six years, we still wouldn't have enough funds left to buy uniform buttons, much less the urgently needed equipment to police our Arctic and off-shore sovereignty.

Family doctors look after the whole

by David Woods

The family doctor is the usual point of entry to the health care system. He can deal with an estimated 75 per cent of medical problems, referring to specialists those beyond his scope. And he looks after the whole person — not just the part that happens to be giving trouble at any given time.

In other words, the family doctor provides comprehensive and continuing care to the individual patient within the family and community setting.

Strange then, that many people go about choosing a family doctor with less care than they would bring to selecting a plumber or a TV repairman.

How do you find a good family doctor?

Dr. W. Gifford-Jones, in his helpful book The Doctor Game, says, "Don't expect your fingers to find the perfect doctor by wandering through the Yellow Pages." He also advises that it's a good idea to find a family physician before you need one.

If you're moving to a new location — and Canadians, on the average, do so once every four or five years — ask your present doctor to recommend one of his medical colleagues in the place to which you're going.

But, if you're starting from scratch — ask around in your new neighborhood. You can try the local chapter of the College of Family Physicians, or the switch board at the nearest hospital. But remember: inquire about professional reputation. You wouldn't choose a plumber because he shares your interest in stamp collecting, goes to your church, or avidly supports the same hockey team. It's even more important to select a doctor for his ability as a doctor.

Mind you, you should try to find a family physician you can feel comfortable with; one you can talk with openly and frankly.

Once you've found that doctor, make an appointment with him as soon as possible, even if you're feeling fine. This will provide an opportunity of getting to know each other; the doctor will place on record your family health history, and, when you do need medical help, you'll be that much further ahead.

Today's family doctor works an average of 56 hours a week. No matter how important your problem may be, your physician will likely have about 2,000 patients on his books, and will be seeing 30 or more on any given day. If you want same day service, try to phone for an appointment as early as possible in the morning.

While your family doctor may be busy, he's there to serve you. Don't hesitate to call on him when you really need help. And try to seek that help as soon as possible in the course of an illness when treatment may be simpler.

Responsibility for your health rests with both you and your family doctor. Finding and keeping a good physician is one of the best investments you'll ever make.

BILL SMILEY

Just great to be alive?

By BILL SMILEY

PERHAPS, with Thanksgiving in the air, it's as good a time as any to make a personal inventory of what we have to be thankful for, if anything. Maybe you'd like to join me, substituting your minuses for mine, your pluses for mine.

On second thought, I haven't really a single minus. Oh, there are a lot of little nuisances: arthritis in my foot; rambling bursitis in shoulders, knees and neck; dewlaps; a few less teeth than I'd like.

But everybody has these things. If we didn't, we wouldn't appreciate how great it is when the pains clear up for a few days, or the fact that there's always plenty of good grub to mumble with those ancient molars.

I do have some negative thanks. I'm glad I am, by choice, not living in a city, with everything that entails in the line of human harassment: dirt, traffic, crowds, coldness. Especially when I can, as right now, look out my window and see the yellow October sun blazing into the gaudy flamboyance of the maples, and a little further off, the blue of clean, unpolluted water, and know that if I stepped outside, the air would be champagne, not cheap, scented wine.

I'm glad I don't have six children. Two of them almost brought the Old Lady and me to our knees, economically and emotionally.

I'm grateful that I haven't got stuck into some job that I loathe, as so many men have. What could be more soul-destroying than hating to go to work every morning?

I'm glad I'm not sick, or feeble, or pot-bellied, or ham-handed, or tight-fisted, even though I am bow-legged, forgetful and sometimes, after a sharp exchange with my wife, have a ringing in my ears.

Those are just a few of the negative thanks. They are vastly outweighed, to the point where it is no contest, by the positive thanks.

I couldn't begin to list them in this space, but will touch on a few of the highlights.

I'm extremely grateful, even though it should last only a few more years, that, despite the machinations of the oil companies and the stupidity and shortsightedness of our "leaders," I can still turn up the thermostat on a cold morning and know that I and mine will not shiver through the day.

I am extremely thankful that I am not a young man, recently married, mortgaged to the ears for life, in an effort to provide a roof and food for a family.

It's taken 30 years of slaving on the old plantation, toting many a barge and lifting many a bale, but I own my own house and don't owe anybody a nickel, and I'm grateful.

Another thing to be thankful for is the fatherly benevolence of Pierre Trudeau and his gang (I use the word gang advisedly). They and their provincial and municipal henchmen are content with separating me from only about half of every dollar I make, and there is no indication yet that they will shortly want an arm and a leg each year as additional tribute. Only a few toes and fingers.

I'm very thankful that I live in Canada. It's a magnificent country; a people who could be magnificent, but refuse; and they don't throw you in jail for speaking disparagingly of the gang in power. (They haven't got enough jails, and who would pay the rent?)

I'm happy with my immediate family, though thousands wouldn't be. My son is a failure, in the ordinary middle-class sense. He has never made more than $2,000 a year, has no home, except ours, and couldn't produce the proverbial pot. But he is working with ultra-poor peasants in a South American country, trying to make a better life for them, eating their food, catching their diseases, and I'm proud of him.

My daughter, after adventures in the sub-culture that make me shudder still, knocked them dead with her writing in a university course, got her degree, is in fourth year of a second degree in music, has had a baby, and is about to produce a sister for Pokey, my grandbaby, who is a whipper-dipper, like all grandbabies. Not bad for a rotten kid.

My wife (careful now, Buster, watch it) is still a smashing looking woman, though a granny, an excellent cook, great company, and is becoming virtually serene. She hasn't thrown anything at me for nearly two years, except a wet dishcloth or something like that. It used to be plates of food, telephones, Eaton's catalogue, you name it. She did, actually, throw my typewriter downstairs last year, when I made some mild remark about the bad temp she used to have, but she didn't throw it at me. That's progress. I like my job, working with kids, who are at least alive, not just going through the motions, like so many of their elders.

I have a few friends, whom I cherish, a few enemies, chiefly the town engineer, who does not cherish me, and a host of likeable contemporaries and acquaintances.

My blood pressure is great. I don't wear glasses, my heart hasn't given me a bad knock, I'm chipper as the average eighty-year-old woman and I'm already at work on the book I didn't get around to writing last summer, or the one before, or ...

It's just great to be alive, and I offer my sincere thanks to God or Whoever is responsible for it. How about you?

Samantha READS YOUR STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): A friend could bring to a head an uneasy situation. Lots of common sense is needed with others or you could find yourself in the middle of a not-so-pretty kettle of fish. Week comes to a zooming halt.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): A gentle, trusting person close to you may need your aid in understanding a set of circumstances. Then, YOU must face facts about a certain situation and deal with it accordingly. It's not nearly as bad as you think, once you've done this. Love sparkles at end of week.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): A few hurdles to clear as week starts. A velvet-gloved power struggle could be one of them. Love life takes a winning leap midweek as an obstacle melts away. If practically coaches, a blue ribbon awaits you.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Week begins beautifully. Look for an interesting call. Then, action at home as you see your way out of a small problem there. You get an extra bit of energy: let it help you put your best foot forward.

LEO (7/23-8/22): A question concerning assets may come up. Pay attention to details. Midweek brings good aspects, but may trigger news about someone's problems. Week closes with a bright idea and a jumble of activity.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): Possible contact with an intriguing stranger. Then, you should take an inventory or you'll miss something of value. Your batteries get a free charge, a weight is lifted, and week ends with a smile.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): You may want to close your eyes, but ignorance is not necessarily bliss; so keep 'em open. You could run across a new streak of stubbornness. Use your charm to get around him. You can't miss!

SCORPIO (10/24-11/22): Romance and a bit of luck get your week off to a lovely start. Then, grit your teeth and jump in: for there are work and trouble-spots to cope with. Watch for a capable Moonchild to lend a helping hand.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): You may not know whether to play it cool or allow your feelings to show. Honesty is probably the best policy here. Then, you could become the third side of a triangle. Don't. Mind your own affairs. Week grinds to a stop.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): Keep a low profile at beginning of week. Try not to initiate conversations. Misunderstandings are possible and that foot in mouth could be your own. Later, the rebel in you wants out. Go along for a nice canter, but don't let it run away with you. Love ends week.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): Confusion in finances possible; count carefully. Be sure to use tact and diplomacy this week. They'll work like magic and open even locked doors. Be prepared for a few fireworks from a stick-in-the-mud. Don't prod him too hard.

PISCES (2/20-3/20): You could find yourself saying what you think rather bluntly. Expect some surprised looks. Then no splurging — thrift sees you through. A few clouds are pierced by a big, beautiful ray of light as week comes to a sunny close.

I have an argument going. I'm positive I read somewhere that Nelson Rockefeller admitted when he was being investigated for the Vice Presidency that he had given his wife Happy close to $500,000 in jewelry during the first ten years of their marriage. My husband says this is impossible. Who is right? Mrs. J. Samuel, Blairburg, Ia.

You are. The Rockefellers are very generous to the women in their lives. Remember, each Rockefeller came onto this earth a multi-millionaire, thanks to the clever, tax-evading trusts of their grandfather, John D. (To a Rockefeller, "tax" is a dirty word.) Ten thousand dollars to a Rockefeller is like $10 to the average person.

How is Alice Cooper recovering from that rib injury he recently suffered during a performance? C.M., Houston, Tex.

The entertainer cracked six ribs and the injury's wearing him down. He's having trouble breathing. But he expects to be in shape by fall when he's due to start a film that has him playing a Peter Sellers type role.

Our local paper mustn't have printed what happened regarding that women's case against David Carradine, who she claims assaulted her. Or did it come up yet? T. Blake, Jeffers, Mont.

Yes, the matter was resolved with the lady receiving a $20,000 judgment for his advances which were made while he was completely nude. In granting the money L.A. Superior Court Judge Francis X. Marnell commented: "The court is of the opinion he (Carradine) was bombed out of his skull."

Is Stockard Channing who plays the heiress in "The Fortune" married and also is it her first film? S. Tovar, Athens, Ala.

Stockard landed on the cutting room floor in "Up the Sandbox" and had a bit in "Hospital," but that's all. She's been wed twice, and is still married to her second husband, a professor at the University of Texas. "But we each go our own way," she explains. "We're good friends but I don't know what our future holds."

Health dept to set ground meat standard

Health and Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde has announced proposed mandatory microbial standards for ground meat which, when enacted, will provide assurance to Canadians that the ground meat they buy is safe from harmful microbial contamination.

When the standards are enacted into regulations, Canada will become one of the first countries to have mandatory national standards for microbiological quality of ground meat, Mr. Lalonde said.

The proposed standards are based on the evaluation by Health Protection Branch staff of results of a survey initiated last year to examine the microbiological content of ground beef on the Canadian market.

road subsidy

The Tudor and Cashel Council met on October 3rd at 7:30 p.m., with all members present.

On motion of Bruce-Burkitt, the following accounts were ordered paid: Crowe Conservation Authority, $91.51, Postage $24.00, telephone $5.15, B. Baker, mileage, $32.10, Photo copies $1.50, Municipal World $10.32.

It was moved that the Ministry of Transportation and Communications be petitioned for the interim road subsidy up to October 31st, 1975.

On motion of Phillips-Burkitt, it was decided that the road superintendent be authorized to put marker posts on the St. Olaf Road and markers at the ends of the culvert in front of John Milley's and between the two culverts on the Weslemkoon Lake Road side.

Council adjourned to meet on November 7th at 7:30 p.m.

Plan used hockey sale

A used hockey equipment sale is planned for October 17th and 18th in Harold Brett's show room.

Anyone wishing to clean out the closets and donate any used equipment to the Mother's Auxiliary of Madoc, could leave it at the home of Mrs. Ron Hyde, 122 Durham Street, Madoc, on October 11th and 12th, if possible.

See the advertisement elsewhere in this edition for further details.

It appears to be a promising year for the Madoc Mother's Auxiliary as there are some new interested mothers, and of course, the faithful ones which made the attendance of 13 out of the 65 notices mailed out.

The meetings will be held the first Monday of each winter month at 7:30 p.m., at the Madoc Public School.

The new volunteered president is Peggy Hyde; Vice-president, Sally Tarrant; Secretary, Doris Melvin; Treasurer, Edna Douglas, (for a second year).

After taking a vote, it was decided that the Auxiliary would purchase sweaters for the Pee Wee and Bantam road teams as they are badly in need of them.

It was also discussed what could be done to encourage better participation in the Saturday Morning League. No final decision was reached in regards to this.

Harold Bailey, President of the Madoc and District Minor Sports, and Bev Browning, Convener of Minor Hockey, will be requested to attend the next meeting to give a few pointers on what the Saturday Morning Hockey teams need in the line of equipment.

A millionaires night is being planned for this year. This is the major fund-raising event of the year for the Auxiliary and it is hoped that it will be a success.

The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held on November 3rd, at 7:30 p.m.

Here 'n there around Cloyne

Business was dealt with. A social time and lunch concluded the meeting.

On October 1st, 1975, fifty-two members of the Club journeyed to Bancroft on the colour-tour, courtesy of Clarke T. Rollins, M.P.P. Approximately 1,000 guests were greeted by Mr. and Mrs. Rollins. A delicious box lunch was served by the Anglican Guild of Madoc. Tommy Mason was master of ceremonies. Entertainment was provided by Mr. McMurray on the accordion.

ZENITH
CHROMACOLOR® II

The heart of the Chromacolor II system is Zenith's patented Chromacolor picture tube with a level of brightness, contrast and sharp detail that set a new standard for the TV industry

This brilliant Chromacolor picture tube is featured in all Zenith 100% Solid-State Chromacolor II 18", 20", 25" and 26" models. It represents a significant forward step in the state of picture tube technology... in brightness, sharpness and big-screen color. This patented Zenith Chromacolor tube sharply improves color viewing by achieving increased brightness, concurrent with a dramatic increase in contrast. Every phosphor dot is surrounded with jet-black and fully illuminated. This Black-Surround field provides high contrast for a natural, true-to-life color picture. This allows use of a transparent face plate for a greater degree of light transmission and brighter picture.

Zenith's all-new 14" portable 100% Solid-State Chromacolor II models feature the new 110° Chromacolor in-line picture tube with a unitized in-line gun system where the red, green and blue color guns are aligned in a horizontal row.

The performance features that have made a Zenith Color TV such a good value over the years... are even more important today!

Weston's controls a lot!

A few weeks ago this corner took a swipe at the supermarkets in this country: all of them in general and Dominion Stores in particular.

The suggestion made in that column was that chain stores do not just take a big chunk out of the food dollar at the retail level. They take a bite all the way along the line right from the time food leaves the farm gate.

A few disgruntled chain store people said I should not have stopped with one chain.

"Why don't you do some research into the Weston chain of stores?" one independent store owner asked. "That outfit is even bigger than Dominion."

I have been unable to find out which is the biggest but some research was done into the Weston group.

Weston's fronts a variety of chains that the buying public rarely connects. For instance, you are buying from that group when you shop at Loblaws, O.K. Economy, L-Mart, Super-Valu, Economart, Zehr's and Shop-Easy.

On top of this, Weston controls such retail and wholesale outlets as Red & White, Lucky Dollar, Super Save, Maple Leaf, Shop-Rite and others.

But it doesn't stop there.

The degree of manipulation which is possible through such conglomerates is just amazing. Loblaws, for instance, says it has to raise the price of bread because Loblaws has to pay more for the bread from its supplier which is Westons. But Westons own Loblaws.

Weston's said the price of bread had to go up because of increased costs for milk and sugar used in the bread. But Weston gets milk and sugar from Donlands Dairy and Royal Dairy and West Cane Sugar, all owned by Weston. Of course, the price of flour had gone up, too, but that flour came from suppliers such as McCarthy Mill and Soo Line, both owned by Weston.

Distribution costs also went up, according to the bread-makers. The distributors involved were National Grocers and York Trading, both controlled by Weston.

See the picture? Perhaps the farmer who produced the items that went into making bread got a slight increase. But that increase was magnified all along the line and every one of those increases went into the same corporate superpocket.

Farmers, of course, fight this type of organization.

Is it any wonder why farmers resort to marketing boards and other commodity organizations and groups to be sure they get a reasonable return on their investment and labor?

Under this seeming socialistic exterior, I am a dyed-in-the-wool, small "c" conservative. I would like to see laissez-faire marketing. But when farmers must face such huge conglomerates which control every bit of food from the time it leaves the farm gate to the time it hits your dining table, they must organize or the conglomerates will take over with corporate farms, too. And if you think the price of food is high now, watch it go much, much higher in a very short time.

Because these conglomerates will have everybody's stomach in control. They'll be able to create artificial shortages in every commodity.

This is not to say that such a thing has been done by the corporate conglomerates. It may have happened. But why should any country allow itself to be put in such a position?

The best way to prevent it is to keep the farmer independent; keep him on the land and producing while seeing that he gets a reasonable return on his labor and investment.

Just remember: The next time you go to a supermarket and you see Weston bread, Dietrich bread, Zehr's bread, Hollywood bread or Wittichs bread, you are buying from the same corporation. The money paid goes into the same corporate pocket.

I'm not suggesting that this is all wrong. I am suggesting that farmers must take advantage of every possible method of competing in the marketplace so that the corporate giants won't run off with every penny received for food.

"I can't get a decent rare steak since you discovered the use of fire!"

Bald Eagle
Bald eagles range from southern Florida to Alaska, and are considered a national symbol. The birds build remarkable nests over the years. Each season they add new sticks, trample in new grass, and sometimes add old bric-a-brac. Observers have found fishing plugs, light bulbs, and even a tablecloth in nests. One huge nest measured 10 feet across and 20 feet deep. Another weighed two tons.

With ideal weather prevailing the Madoc Fair excelled itself in every respect, a larger attendance, more exhibits and larger financial returns. From the men at the gate, the Review learned that over 7,000 were in attendance and that there were over 1,100 cars on the grounds. The Treasurer informed us that the receipts for the day amounted to over $2,050. The entries, in every department were more numerous than usual. In the large building there were so many entries that it was only with difficulty that the judges could award the prizes. The poultry exhibit, as usual, was very large, while the cattle, horses, sheep and swine, were about the same as usual. The cheese exhibit was larger than last year with fifty-seven entries for the various prizes. During both days a Midway, consisting of aerial swing, a ferris wheel, as well as a number of fakers' stands, did a thriving business. The Madoc Brass Band furnished music during the afternoon. After the entertainment in the evening, by the Marks Co., a well-attended dance was held in the Armouries. Music was furnished by the Sills Orchestra.

Beautiful summer weather greeted the huge crowd that jammed its way into the Madoc Fair grounds to attend this year's exhibition, and remained for the entire program which was concluded just before dark with the drawing match. On first reaching the grounds one was impressed with the exceptionally large midway, with every available inch of space being taken up with rides, refreshments booths, and games of every kind. The program included the best horse races to date, a full afternoon's entertainment on the platform and a dance at night. Music was furnished by the Havelock Pipe Band, while two professional performers, Claire Rouse, and the Kansas Farmer kept the large crowd entertained with their musical numbers, jokes, etc.

Miss Donna Govier was the winner of the C.C.M. Bicycle for realizing the most money from the sale of peanuts at the Kiwanis Peanut Tag Day.

Fine October weather with bright sunny skies and an excellent program attracted the largest crowd in several years to Madoc Fair. Although all-time attendance records were not broken, the large crowd witnessed one of the best fairs in the history of the Society. There were more entries in the livestock, especially in the horses, an excellent cheese exhibit, a fine horse show and a full afternoon's program that was not completed until after dark. Secretary Francis Tobin was one of the busiest men on the grounds and didn't even have time to eat lunch. He estimated the crowd at 5,800. There were 16 entries in the Madoc 4-H Calf Club, with Robert Keene scoring the highest number of points. The award for the best showmanship went to Robert Sager, who also won the prize for the best calf. The following is the standings according to points awarded: Robert Keene, Robert Sager, Bev. Ketcheson, David Foley, Elizabeth Sager, Marie Foley, Katherine Burnside, Carl Robinson, Don Bailey, Carol Foley, Harold Bailey, Robert Chapman, Terry Chapman, Herman Willemson, Bob Curtis, and Eddy Griffin. Five clubs competed in the Group Championship Show with Allan Thompson, of Tweed, being declared the top Calf Club Man. Stirling Club scored the highest number of points, Madoc 2nd, Coe Hill 3rd, Tweed 4th, and Belleville 5th. It was mentioned by President Allan Ketcheson that Madoc is trying to reach a Class "B" fair which will have entitled it to a grant of 50 per cent from the Dominion Government on all capital expenses. This would allow the association to proceed with a building program.

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I am 13 years old. I've been going with this guy for three months now. At first we were really involved with each other but now I hardly ever see him. He likes another girl too. I love him too much to ever let him go. I'm the one who always has to call because he never calls me. He gets mad when I won't go over to his house. He never comes over here. I'm the one who should be getting mad. Should I forget about him or let him know how I feel?

OUR REPLY: Doesn't sound like you're going to forget about him too easily—so why not let him know how you feel? Share yourself totally with him. Communicate as closely as you can what your feelings are. Take responsibility for making certain he's clear on what you're thinking. Don't worry about him liking another girl. Aren't there some other boys you like? It's pretty early for you to get too deeply attached. Just be happy you've got your friends and don't get hung up on who goes to who's house. Enjoy yourself, it's too soon to get involved.

Because of the volume of letters to this column, requests for personal replies cannot be accommodated. Editorial panel selects for weekly use, letter which best represents questions and/or comments from readers. FOR & ABOUT TEENAGERS, BOX 639, FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601

Spray Cans

Recent undocumented studies have shown that freon from aerosol spray cans interacts with other elements in the atmosphere to form fluorocarbons which may be depleting the layer of ozone around the earth. This ozone layer filters out damaging ultraviolet rays from the sun.

Jesus And The Lawyer

And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

Mrs. Dick Green
Bread Savers....
Bread gives you good food value for your money, especially once you've become wise to the tricks of the subtleties of pick-pocketing at the household garbage can. There's no need to waste money and throw away dry or stale bread! It can be put to good use. Here's how:
Dry bread may be employed as a base for stuffing for poultry and fish, and it can be used in the centre of a meat loaf. Ground up, it will stretch a portion of hamburger. It is excellent in a vegetable dish such as stewed tomatoes, or a dessert like bread pudding, and as a casserole topping. Anyway put crackers in soup when bread cubes will work just as well and taste just as great!
To make bread crumbs from stale bread, dry the bread thoroughly in a slow oven (200°F) and crush it with a rolling pin or a glass jar. Three to four slices of bread equals one cup of dry crumbs.
To freshen old bread, wrap it in tin foil, then heat it in your oven.

KINCAID BROTHERS - MADOC, ONTARIO

Family away in Toronto Home destroyed

The interior of a two-storey frame house in Madoc was completely destroyed by fire early Thanksgiving morning.

The home, at 232 St. Lawrence Street, was owned by Joseph Rooney, who had been in Toronto with his family at the time of the blaze.

Firemen remained at the scene from 3:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m. in an effort to stop the fire from spreading to a gasoline depot to the west of the home, and a second house 50 feet to the east. Damage in the blaze was confined to the Rooney house.

The origin of the fire is as yet unknown, according to fire chief Bob Kirkwood. He said the two pumpers and 15 volunteer firefighters fought the blaze but that the home "was a complete loss", as only the charred shell remains standing.

He added he believed the house had recently undergone some renovations by the owners.

Mr. Rooney was notified of the fire by Toronto OPP.

The Moira River Conservation Authority, in a meeting earlier this month, decided to request the ministry of environment to continue and if possible, expand, the water sampling program in the Moira River system.

In other business during the meeting, the Police report a busy week

Provincial police last week reported a total of ten accidents resulting in damages amounting to $11,760 with 11 people injured.

Police also reported eight thefts, seven reports of break, enter and theft, two reports of wilful damage, one report of assault and one person reported missing.

Ten persons were charged under the Liquor Control Act and two have been charge with impaired driving.

Included in the 39 other occurrences during the week were suspicious persons, trespassers and complaints of speeders.

Lloyd H. Price to resign post

The townships council of Elzevir and Grimsthorpe, in a meeting last week, voted to accept a tender from Doug and Larry Minnie to purchase the 1962 truck.

Delivery of the truck was to be made when the road superintendent returns.

The council members also approved a request that the unused section of road adjacent to the Schneider School of Fine Arts be used as an approach to their studio. Clerk-treasurer Lloyd H. Price advised council he wished to resign from the position at the end of this year.

Project resumed

A project of 4-H Homemaking was once again started in the Hart's-Riggs area. With leaders, Barbara Rivers and Linda Watson, the ten members who have joined are learning all about bread-making.

The following executive was elected at the organizational meeting: Maureen Cassidy, President; Shelley Foley, Vice-President; Jane Evans, Secretary; Wendy Devolin, Treasurer; Kathy Baker, Press Reporter.

The club has had five meetings, in which the girls have learned to make whole wheat bread, freezer bread, barbecued hamburger stacks, brown batter rolls and variations of rolls.

Loses control of car

An Ottawa man travelling west on Highway 7 Tuesday afternoon apparently lost control of his car, left the road and struck a wire fence.

Michael Romanuk, 44, was taken to the Madoc Medical Centre then transferred to Belleville General Hospital.

Damage to his car was estimated at $1,000.

The mishap occurred two-tenths of a mile west of the junction with Highway 62.

Police checking phoney invoices charging merchants

Provincial police this week have reported phoney invoices charging businessmen for non-existent advertising are again being circulated in Ontario.

The police have reminded all individuals and firms to ensure that all accounts payable have been verified before payment is made.

Recently hospitals, colleges and other institutions have been the prime target for the false billings.

Typically an invoice is received requesting payment for an advertisement in a newspaper. The invoice may be on the letterhead of an advertising agency and may be accompanied by a tear sheet from the paper.

Often a disclaimer in very fine print may appear on the back of the invoice stating: "This is a solicitation and does not constitute a right to payment."

Recently a new variation was introduced in Ontario. Several hospitals placed legitimate help wanted advertisements in a Toronto newspaper. Some time later they received an invoice accompanied by a purported tear sheet from a foreign newspaper. This advertisement had never been requested and likely never appeared.

Anyone who receives a phoney invoice is advised to call their local police department or the anti-rackets branch of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Propose increased Moira River budget

The Moira River Conservation Authority, in an executive meeting last month, proposed as the administration budget for 1976 $100,600, an increase of 39.7 per cent over 1975.

The administration budget approved for grant in 1975 was $72,000.

Question Sr. Citizens

By Karen Jones

Within the next week or so, Senior Citizens residing in Madoc Village and the Townships of Madoc, Huntingdon, Tudor and Cashel will be receiving a questionnaire regarding Housing for Senior Citizens.

The Ontario Housing Corporation, via the Madoc Village Council are taking a survey to see how many Senior Citizens (everyone 60 years of age and over) are or might be interested in more Senior Citizens Units in this area. Results of this survey will be based on the number of questionnaires returned.

Accompanying the survey is a pamphlet

"The Cross and the Switchblade"

"The Cross and the Switchblade", one of the outstanding films of recent months, is showing at C.H.S.S., Madoc very soon. It is an explosive motion picture that bares the raw needs at the core of drug addiction, racial hatred and violence. Never has a film been more timely.

Adapted from the autobiographical best-seller of the same title, the film relates the dramatic experiences of Rev. David Wilkerson, fresh from the country... defenseless and alone... facing the New York ghettos with its street gangsters and dope addicts, courageously proclaiming a revolutionary message of explaining the survey and answering some questions which may arise.

The Madoc Council urges all persons receiving this form to fill it out and mail it as soon as possible. Even if you own a home now, it is possible you may very well consider moving into an Ontario Housing Unit later. Any Senior Citizen who fills out this survey is not obliged in any way to rent an Ontario Housing Unit. This is strictly a survey - not an application.

The Madoc Council relies on your full support in responding to this survey. The council expects a unit (or units) to be built in two years time, if the response of this survey is justified for the need of a unit (or units) in this area.

love and hope. "Death was not the only door out of the hell that trapped them". On three occasions, this crusade nearly cost him his life.

The Cross and The Switchblade is a movie for people who care... for people who love... people who themselves seek "a better way". Here is a movie for you.

Pat Boone stars as David Wilkerson, with co-stars Erik Estrada, Jackie Giroux, Dino DeFlippi and Jo-Ann Robinson.

See the advertisement elsewhere in this edition for details of date and time for the showing of this spectacular movie.

Announce $29,000 townships grant

A grant in the amount of $29,000 has been allocated to the townships of Bangor, Wicklow and McClure for the implementation of the Ontario Home Renewal Program, MPP Clarke Rollins reported last week.

The prime objective of this program is the correction of faulty structural and sanitary conditions and the upgrading of plumbing, heating and electrical systems of the owner occupant's home.

OHRP is directly oriented to low and moderate income families at a maximum annual income of $12,500.

The MPP said Bangor, Wicklow and McClure are to be congratulated for using initiative in moving quickly to implement this program which insures the continued usefulness of needed existing housing.

The maximum amount of an OHRP loan, as determined by the local municipalities, is $7,500, less any funding for other home renewal programs.

The municipality is also responsible for determining the rate of interest charged on the loan, from zero to eight per cent, and what portion of the loan will be "forgiven" and therefore need not be paid back.

Jude Handley presents paper on mathematics

Jude Handley of R.R. 4, Madoc, recently spent a long weekend with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kilpatrick of Marmora, while his parents, David and Marianne Handley, were in Ohio. Mrs. Handley, who has been a mathematics teacher at Belleville Collegiate since 1971, was presenting a paper at a conference "200 Years of Mathematics in America", held on October 3rd and 4th at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, in connection with the U.S. Bicentennial.

Mr. Handley spoke on "History of Mathematics - a Grade Ten Full Credit Course". This is an enrichment course in mathematics, first given at B.C.I. three years ago. Mr. Handley was the only high school teacher (and the only Canadian) speaking at the conference, which was attended by teachers and professors from all over the United States.

About 100 people attended the session at which Mr. Handley spoke - among them being Professor Morris Kline of New York University. Dr. Kline has written many books including "Mathematics in Western Culture" and "Why Johnny Can't Add". Mr. Handley also met Professor Dirk Struik of M.I.T. who autographed a copy of his book, "Concise History of Mathematics".

Professor Bill Higginson from the Faculty of education at Queen's University in Kingston accompanied the Handleys on their trip to Oxford, which is a town of 23,000 in the south-east corner of Ohio, some 650 miles from Madoc. While in Ohio, Marianne visited with a former schoolmate from Ryerson Polytechnical Institute, Mrs. Marilyn Whelan and her husband at their home in Franklin, Ohio.

If you are employed and going to have a baby, you're entitled to pregnancy leave.

This is what Ontario is doing to make certain you receive it.

We have a law in Ontario which permits any pregnant woman, married or not, to take a 17-week unpaid leave of absence to have her baby. This law covers part-time as well as full-time employees, provided that they have been working for the same employer for at least 63 weeks before the expected date of birth.

When she returns to work, the new mother is guaranteed the right to her former position or to a comparable position with no loss of seniority or benefits.

Naturally, pregnancy does not prevent an employee from being dismissed for valid reasons not connected with pregnancy, but pregnancy alone cannot be the cause of dismissal where an employee is eligible for leave.

An expectant mother is required to give two weeks' notice in writing of the day she intends to leave. She is entitled to begin her leave any time within 11 weeks before the baby's birth but she must take at least six weeks of her leave afterwards. If the employer wishes the employee to begin her leave before she wants to do so, the employer must prove that she is unable to perform her normal duties adequately.

The employee is eligible for Unemployment Insurance benefits during her pregnancy leave (even if she does not intend to resume work when her leave expires) if she had at least 20 weeks of ensured employment during the year before the birth. At least ten of the 20 weeks should have fallen between the 30th and the 50th weeks before the birth.

If you would like more information about pregnancy leave or other labour legislation of interest to working women, write to:

Ontario 20,
Queen's Park,
Toronto, Ontario.

and we will send you a brochure.

Provincial parks make changes

A number of changes have been made in the provincial parks in the Tweed district following the Labor Day weekend. One of the most noticeable is the disappearance of the camping population and the seasonal student staff.

By September more than 200,000 people had passed through Bon Echo Park, accounting for more than 111,000 camper days of use.

Sharbot Lake recorded 69,000 visitors and 34,000 camper days - an increase of 10 per cent over the 1974 season for both parks.

Eighty people were employed during the summer to provide service for the park's visitors. Of this staff 35 remain for the fall and part of the winter devoting their time to a program of repairs, storage and regeneration.

Pick-up truck damage heavy

A pick-up truck travelling east on Concession Road 14 of Rawdon township Friday evening apparently went out of control, left the roadway and struck a number of trees.

The driver of the truck, Caroline Florence Lush, 36, of Toronto, was taken to Campbellford Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Peterborough Civic Hospital. Damage in the accident was estimated by police at $5,000.

Heifer hit by car

A Holstein heifer was struck by a car Friday evening, one mile west of Tweed on the Crookston Road.

The driver of the car was Douglas L. Gunning, RR 1, Tweed.

The heifer, which belonged to Paul Farrell, also of RR 1, Tweed, was destroyed following the accident. The animal was valued at $200.

Damage to the car was estimated at $600.

A footbridge is being constructed across Bon Echo Creek to join the two beach areas. A water system is being installed in the Hardwood Hill Campground and preparations are being made for the grooming of snowmobile trails during the off season.

Shorbot Lake Park and Bon Echo Park officially closed Sept. 14 but many campers take advantage of the solitude and extensive choice of campsites to engage in fall and winter camping.

$700 damage

Damage was estimated by police at $700 Sunday in a single vehicle accident on the 11th Concession of Hungerford township, about two miles west of Tweed.

Police said Bryan Courneyea, 18, of Tweed, apparently lost control of his car, left the roadway and collided with a tree. No injuries were reported in the mishap.

Rear-end collision

A rear-end collision at the junction of Highways 62 and 7 Friday afternoon has left an estimated $300 damage to a car driven by Russell Blacker, 47, of Belleville.

Blacker was driving a car that was struck by a second vehicle, driven by William Traill, 72, of New Jersey. The Traill car escaped any damage.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Rev. Don McEwen, with organist Mrs. Evelyn Bailey and soloist Katherine Fleming.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore a satin polyester crepe gown with lace trimming the bodice. The four-foot train was made of the same lace as the bodice. Orange blossoms, and seeded pearls held the waistlength double tiered veil. She carried a bouquet of red gladioli.

The maid of honor, Eleanor Reid, sister of the bride, wore a floor-length gown of green polyester crepe with short puffy sleeves and a sheer bodice. She wore a picture hat and carried an arm bouquet of tinted glads.

The bridesmaids, Rhea Hannah, cousin of the groom, and Beverley Stein, sister of the bride, wore gowns identical to the maid of honor in a pastel shade of yellow. They wore picture hats and carried bouquets of yellow glads.

The flower girl, Margaret Stein, sister of the bride, was dressed in similar attire in the shade of pink. She wore pink and white gardenias in her hair and carried a basket of yellow and white mums with pink roses.

The best man was John Storrington, friend of the groom. Ushers were Stan Stein, brother of the bride, and Ken Foster, friend of the groom. The men wore white ruffled shirts, navy bow ties, blue jackets with black velvet trim and black trousers.

The ring bearer, Larry Reid, nephew of the bride, was dressed the same and carried a white satin laced pillow.

At the reception and dance held in the Madoc Kiwanis Centre the bride's mother wore a floor length coat ensemble of lilac sheer over lilac polyester and a corsage of yellow rosebuds.

Assisting her the groom's mother wore a floor-length gown of green polyester knit and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

On returned from the East Coast the couple are now residing at 289 Sidney St., Belleville.

The bride is the daughter of Max and Vera Burnside of Madoc, and the groom the son of Glen Fleming of Madoc and Marie Fleming of Actinolite.

Five teams have entered for O.M.H.A. play this year. Unfortunately, only two of these teams may see action. At the time of this writing, it appears Madoc will have Pee-Wee and Bantam teams. In regards to Juvenile, Midget and Atom teams, the future seems to be uncertain. Why?

Each year, the executive enters teams in the O.M.H.A. offices in Toronto. Next, these teams are entered for scheduling in the Trent Valley League. Unfortunately, boys in the Midget and Juvenile age groups either through neglect or indecision sit back and wait until the last minute to register for hockey. As you can see, this places the executive on the spot. We have to show coaches a list of seven or eight players. No team can operate on promises nor can they operate with half a team. Unless we get registration action "now", we will have no other alternative but to withdraw from the Juvenile and Midget series. In regards to the Atoms, their problem is not as serious. We still lack players in this series, but we may still be able to find some good Novice players to fill in the vacancies.

So much for the negative side. Let's look now on the positive side. That is, how the leagues will operate if all teams take part: (1) Juvenile (17 - 18 year olds, but not 19 years old in 1975) Handling the team, Harold Bailey and Glen Nickle; (2) Midgets (15 - 16 year olds, but not 17 years old in 1975) Handling the team, Ron Powell; (3) Bantams (13 - 14 year olds, but not 15 years old in 1975) Handling the team, Gerrard Forestell, Bill Lahey and Sonny Osborn; (4) Pee Wee (11 - 12 year olds, but not 13 years old in 1975) Handling the team, Bev Browning (Help needed). The Atoms, Pee-Wees, Bantams and Midgets will play in a league consisting of Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Stirling, Frankford and Colborne.

The Juveniles are entered in a similar league with the following exception: Warkworth in place of Frankford.

Home game schedules are as follows: Juveniles, Thursdays at 9:00 p.m.; Midgets, Tuesdays, at 7:00 p.m.; Bantams, Thursdays at 7:00 p.m.; Pee-Wees, Fridays, at 7:00 p.m.; Atoms, Saturdays at 2:30 p.m.

Away games are at the discretion of the other teams.

Presently, that is "What's happening in O.M.H.A. Hockey?"

With two weeks of play left in regular league action, no team has yet made sure of a play-off spot. In the Junior Section, BCI needs only one more victory to ensure first place. They are one of the strongest teams seen in recent years.

The CHSS Juniors are in the cellar (but they have three games to play and have already played the two strongest teams, BCI and Napanee). They are expected to pick up at least three points in their last three games. In Senior play, the CHSS team is in fifth place, but have games in hand over all the other teams in the league. They face a tough schedule with four games (against Quinte, Moira B, Moira A and Nicholson) in ten days, but could provide some upsets against the strong Quinte and Moira teams, following their close game with BCI (who lead the league). The Centurions have a good chance at making the play-offs - they should defeat Moira B and Nicholson, and with a strong effort could upset Quinte or Moira (or both). Leading scorers in the East are Senior - Dave Archer (BCI), 8 goals; Junior - Dwight Begley, Steve Parr (both BCI), 5 goals apiece. Danny Ying of Quinte Seniors has had three shut-outs, Mark Clare and Mike Wright of BCI have two.

This is the year to compare Plymouth

New cars, new car claims. It can be confusing! That's why this year more than ever, you must compare Plymouth. Compare 1976 Plymouth Valiant. What performance! What economy! Easy to see why Plymouth Valiant is Canada's best selling compact car.

Compare 1976 Plymouth Fury. Handles beautifully like the beautiful mid-size car it is, yet gives you all the comfort and luxury of the big ones. And compare full-size Plymouth Gran Fury for 1976. Excellence in engineering, in design, in superb luxury features will make you glad you compared.

Yes, before you buy, make the 1976 Plymouth comparison at your Plymouth dealer's.

Compare!
'76 Plymouth Electronic Ignition
It's the proven electronic ignition system. Proven in every car Plymouth has built for the past three years. Proven to give sure-fire starts in any weather, to be practically maintenance free. Where others are still experimenting, '76 Plymouth has the proof.

1976 Plymouth Fury Sport

Compare!

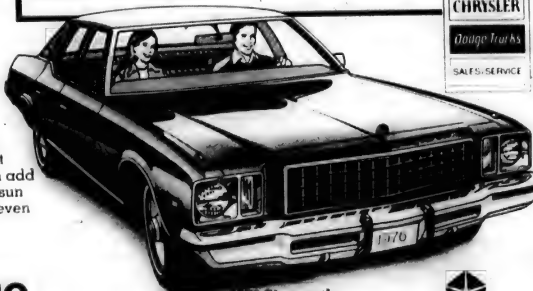

'76 Plymouth Unibody Construction

If you could count them, you'd find more than 4,000 individual welds in the frame of every '76 Plymouth. That's unibody construction, and means you get a tight, tough, shake-resistant structure for a ride that's not only quiet, it's safer too.

Compare!

'76 Plymouth Living Room Comfort

There's head room, leg room, elbow room to spare. From compact Valiant to full-size Gran Fury, every '76 Plymouth has the kind of passenger room that demands comparison. And you can add options like air conditioning and a sun roof to make your '76 Plymouth an even greater pleasure to drive.

1976 Plymouth Gran Fury Brougham

THE CHRYSLER WARRANTY

It's a 12 month unlimited mileage warranty, and that means from the moment you slip behind the wheel of your '76 Plymouth you're covered for a full year, no matter how many miles you drive. Covered for any part that proves defective or wears out including shocks, mufflers, brake linings, disc brake pads. Even the tires are covered, by the people who make them. All you have to do is perform normal maintenance like changing oil filters and wiper blades. (Warranty for taxis and police cars is 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.)

'76 Plymouth Value makes your choice easy.

Regarding Trinity United Church Service

The regular Sunday morning service at Trinity United Church, Madoc, will be cancelled Sunday, October 19th, so that the congregation may join with the congregation at Bethesda on the occasion of their anniversary.

Anyone wishing a ride to Bethesda should be at Trinity between 10:30 and 10:45 a.m. Sunday, October 19, 1975.

For 1976, a proven set of values.

These days, it pays to know what you're buying. And Dodge for 1976 brings you a proven set of values. Values in the form of engineering features that have proven themselves over the years. So when you get behind the wheel of your Dodge, you know you're getting a car that's tried, tested and true.

Dodge engineering: these days it makes an even bigger difference.

Engineering is what makes a car solid and reliable. And engineering has always been a big Dodge plus. Features like the Electronic Ignition System, Torsion bar suspension and Unibody construction are still a part of every Dodge built in North America. That doesn't mean that we've overlooked style. After all we want you to be proud of your new Dodge. But isn't it nice to know that we're just as interested in how well it works? Proof of that is in some of the new features we're introducing for 1976.

New sound deadening packages for more peace and quiet.

We figure there's nothing quite as nice in a car as the sound of silence. So a quiet package is available on every Dodge shown here. And it's as close as we can come to giving you nothing for your money... no rumble, no rattles, no roar of the road. Nothing but peace and quiet.

New braking systems for more peace of mind.

Without getting into a lot of technical talk, we'd just like you to know that for 1976 we've improved the braking system on all our new Dodges. It's just our way of making a good thing even better.

Improved economy with overdrive.

For 1976 Dodge Dart is available with a new optional overdrive-4 transmission. When you're cruising on the highway, just put the car into overdrive. It reduces engine speed by 27% while maintaining highway speed, so it understandably gives you better fuel economy. It's available with either the CID Slant Six engine or the 318 CID V8.

All backed by the famous Chrysler warranty.

We believe in the cars we build. That's why we back them with our one year, unlimited mileage warranty. So when you buy your new Dodge, the first year is on us (taxes and police cars excepted.)

For the first 12 months of use, and regardless of mileage, any Chrysler Canada Ltd. dealer will fix, without charge for parts or labour, any part of any 1976 passenger car (except taxi and police cars) we supply which proves defective in normal use (except for time, and they're covered by the people who make them).

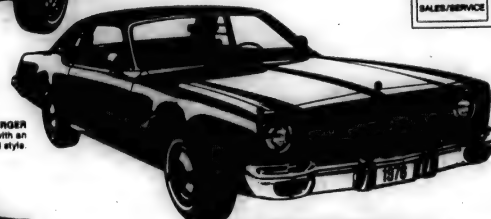

1976 DODGE DART
Economy in hardtops, coupes and sedans.

If you have a head for cars head for Dodge.

1976 DODGE CORONET AND CHARGER
The mid-size Dodge cars for families with an eye towards room, comfort and style.

1976 CHARGER SPECIAL EDITION
The Dodge personal luxury car that's very special indeed.

DODGE MONACO
For all the reasons you need a big full-size car, plus the confidence of owning a Dodge.

15 Years Ago
Fire believed to have started from a nearby incinerator, ignited fuel oil tanks outside Duffin's Home Furnishings storehouse early Sunday afternoon, October 9th, 1960. The flames quickly spread to the metal-clad warehouse and when the local firemen arrived at the scene the interior of the building was a mass of flames. Although the building was badly gutted by the flames and the contents, including mattresses, furniture, etc., is a complete loss, the firemen were able to keep the fire from spreading to nearby buildings. The loss, estimated at $4,500, is partially covered by insurance.

At Norwood Fair on Thanksgiving Day Allan Franks and Sons were successful in obtaining the following top prizes in the Hereford class: Grand Champion senior female; Reserve Grand Champion senior female; and Grand Champion over-all females; also first place in Breeder's herd, and first place in best Polled Hereford animal on the grounds, along with several other prizes.

The tannery Junior Team that was organized last summer went through the baseball schedule to finish in first place. BONUS COUPONS

Letters are appreciated by Bob Trotter, Eldale Rd. Elmira, Ont. N3B 2C7

A few weeks ago, this corner suggested that horses are wonderful animals but, to be truthful, they are also stupid.

In fact, my eight-year-old daughter was quoted as agreeing with that statement. The column drew considerable comment, especially from a few, die-hard horsemen.

One was so indignant in his letter that he suggested I had better get to know my own horses. He maintained they were smarter than most animals and one of the most intelligent of all quadrupeds.

"Look at Trigger, Roy Rogers's horse," he cried. "That animal could do almost anything but talk! He could count. He could untie knotted ropes. He could even open stable doors!"

Most horse-owners would suggest that it's better to have a horse incapable of doing many of these things. A horse able to open a door or untie a knot can be a dreadful nuisance on a farm. Just ask my neighbors.

We had a colt here once that could not be kept in a field. The fool thing would work away at a fence post until she had it knocked down.

She would back up to the post, get it lodged in the contours of her rump and work it back and forth until the post gave in. Then, she'd walk through the fence. Unfortunately, the rest of the horses would follow her.

It's a dreadfully rude way to start the day. Get up in the morning, look out the window, bleary-eyed, and see the fence down.

Look across at the neighbour's field and see three or four huge rumps swaying contentedly in a friend's garden.

One of the most satisfying feelings I ever had came when I hooked up an electric fence wire and watched that crazy colt get set back on her haunches two or three times before getting the message.

Cat-lovers and dog-lovers can become quite vocal in defence of their pets, especially cat people. Some years ago, I suggested in a moment of stupidity — I have a lot of those moments — that I liked cats but they didn't like me so I preferred dogs. That column drew almost as much mail and as many telephone calls as any I've written in the past 10 years.

I did not realize that horse-lovers were almost as vocal until I called horses stupid. Don't get me wrong! With a name like Trotter, I love horses.

We spent most of last weekend on horseback and it was nothing short of glorious.

But this week, I have a story about poultry. It comes from a psychology abstract brought home from university by my daughter. The eggheads at the university level, studying animal behavior, quoted the case of the confused turkey cock.

The sunovagun was gay! He did his job with the hens but whenever a human male walked into the yard, the cock would start going through the courting demonstrations peculiar only to turkeys.

And then there is the story of the gander whose sexual responses were fixated on a dog kennel and who, moreover, behaved as though in mourning when his dog kennel was turned on its side.

I thought horses were stupid! Can you imagine copulating with a dog kennel? It takes all kinds in the animal world, too.

What happened to that colt of ours, the one who broke through fences? She was finally sold to a young lady in a nearby city. We told her — the new owner — that the horse was difficult to keep fenced. We warned her that the only way to keep her in was with an electric fence.

Many months later we heard that the horse had opened a gate in a corral and led a whole herd of horses through a gate and on to a set of railway tracks.

Two horses lost the argument with an oncoming train and she was one of them.

Doctors may want money direct from patients

The president of the Ontario Medical Association said, Ontario residents could end up paying doctors' fees out of their own pockets if the government refuses to give physicians the 35 to 50 per cent increase they are after.

Dr. Donald MacNeill said doctors could opt out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan en masse and bill patients directly at a fee much higher than what OHIP will pay back to the patient. At present, OHIP pays 90 per cent of the OMA's tariff.

Doctors now charge from $7 to $20 a visit depending on their services.

If the government legislates the doctors back into the plan without giving the doctors their fee hike, then, MacNeill said, Doctors would strike.

The strike could be in the form of a work to rule program or a refusal to perform any but emergency services. OMA officials said the province's doctors are divided 'about 50-50' on the question of a strike, regardless of any increase, with many feeling a strike would be immoral. MacNeill said about 13 per cent of the province's 13,000 doctors have already opted out of the OHIP program, "mainly on a matter of principle." He said few of these doctors charge higher than the OMA tariff.

Doctors who decided to charge more than 10 per cent above what OHIP would cover would have an obligation to advise patients of this, MacNeill said.

"This would be policed by the Ontario College of Physicians and Surgeons."

The current agreement between the OMA and OHIP expires April 30, 1977.

The OMA confirms the average Ontario doctor makes about $38,000 a year, through fees.

A formal demand for the fee increase will be presented to the Ontario ministry of health after the OMA's November 12 meeting with Toronto's 3,000 doctors. The OMA represents about 80 per cent of the province's doctors and sets the province-wide rate plans.

Strike victims strike back

By KENNETH McDONALD

A Quebec court has ordered the Canadian Union of Postal Workers to pay $1,000 to Santana Inc. of Sherbrooke, Que., for damages arising out of the 16-day illegal postal strike in April, 1974. The company uses a mail order system and the strike cost it almost $100,000 in lost sales.

Borrowing from the bank to finance day-to-day operations, using costly courier, telephone and telegraph services to replace the non-existent mail - small business people across Canada know the story too well.

After the strike, the Canadian Federation of Independent Business launched a $100 million class action suit against the federal government on behalf of its members to recover damages similar to Santana's. Although the action was dismissed, the public outcry that arose from it persuaded the government to announce a "get tough" policy with public servants who engage in illegal strikes.

Since April, 1974, actions have been taken by the government against more than 1,500 employees who have taken part in illegal strikes. Assuming the Santana ruling stands on appeal, and assuming the same principle can be applied in other provinces, the innocent victims of illegal strikes will in future have recourse to the law. The possibility of legal action and of liability for damages caused by illegal strikes should act as a powerful deterrent.

However, not many small business people can afford to launch costly lawsuits against militant groups bent on destroying what was once, and can be again, one of the world's best postal systems. Nor should they have to. The mail is vital. Moreover, the mailman is a friend. All except a tiny minority of post office employees want to make the service work the way it's supposed to.

The Post Office has been dogged by poor management, high turnover, antiquated facilities, technological change, union rivalry and, in many instances, irresponsible union leadership. Worse, the key post of postmaster general has been used as a stepping stone for ambitious politicians, so that until recently it has been deprived, at the top, of concerned, consistent political leadership.

Now Postmaster General Bryce Mackasey is doing his best to remedy these past failures. His strongest ally is the public to which he owes his duty. He deserves our support.

INTERESTED IN SCIENCE

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Jimmy is an alert, friendly young man — and a most interesting one. He is a student of various subjects, usually scientific ones, and he talks about a lot of things with knowledge and enthusiasm.

At 10, Jimmy is a year behind some of his contemporaries. He was a late developer and repeated kindergarten. This might be because as a young child he was frequently in hospital. Jimmy was born with a hare lip and cleft palate. A very slight scar is the only evidence of the 10 operations he has had to correct the conditions. He is getting over being self-conscious about it.

Anglo-Saxon in descent, Jimmy is blonde with brown eyes and fair skin. He is slightly built and in good health.

He spends much time reading and will work with endless patience on one of his special projects. Astronomy and anatomy are his latest interests.

Though not sports-minded, Jimmy will join in organized activities but he tends to play alone or to enjoy a nature hike with one other person.

To inquire about adopting Jimmy, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

2,000 OHC employees seek 50% wage hike

About 2,000 Ontario Housing Corporation employees started contract negotiations by asking for a 50-per cent raise and setting a deadline on negotiations.

Don Roach, president of Local 767 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, said its members were fed up with long delays in previous negotiations with the provincial government-controlled OHC and wanted the upcoming contract "all wrapped up by mid-November."

If no agreement has been reached by then the union will break off talks, he threatened.

Besides a 50-per cent hike in wages for some 1,000 union members who are OHC maintenance men in the Toronto area, the union wants a dental care provision and improved clauses covering cost of living allowance, long term disability, drugs and vacation.

Average wage of maintenance crews at the present time is $6.15 an hour basic.

One of the bad habits that people fall into in political life is pinning labels on people with respect to their political philosophies.

We tend to decide, often based on scant information, whether a person is left, right, left-of-centre, or perhaps worst of all, middle-of-the-road, when in fact these labels can be extremely misleading.

When we talk of a right-wing Tory for example, all kinds of visions pop into our heads of a guy who is a strong law and order man, who wants to hang everybody, who loves everyone wearing a uniform and hates long-haired, hippie commie-sympathizing, knee-jerk bleeding heart freaks.

The fact that this is only partially correct, and varies from person to person, is too complicated to explain in a nutshell, so we end up by falling into a pattern of easy labels.

What makes me think of all this is Roy McMurtry, our new attorney-general.

He comes to that office with the reputation of a pink Tory. A civil libertarian, opponent of capital punishment.

Here now is a pinko, the kind of guy who, if he wasn't such a close friend of Premier Davis', may have run on an NDP ticket and felt right at home.

But then you sit down and talk with McMurtry about his philosophy, and you find indeed that he is a civil libertarian, as far as that label goes, but he is also a man who wants to see stiffer penalties — yes, even jail sentences — for first offenders and drinking drivers.

He doesn't sound exactly pink either when he calls for tougher gun control laws and a tighter system of bail.

Nor is he a bleeding heart when he says people convicted of capital murder should never ever be paroled. They forfeit their rights to be free again, he says.

And when he speaks of the office of attorney-general, the traditions of that office, he speaks with a reverence about it that would generally be associated with a chairman of the board or a big-name Tory lawyer (which he is), not with some left-leaning guy who wants to change the system.

In short, to call Roy McMurtry a pink Tory distorts several of his positions. It may be accurate sometimes, but not all the time.

Perhaps you could ask yourself where you fit in the political spectrum? Do you know anyone who fits so neatly into a philosophy that you can legitimately label him and expect that to accurately reflect his view on every issue? Of course not.

Then why do we do it? Because it's easy. Neat. It fits into headlines and saves paragraphs of explanations. It's also partially correct at times, which is why, in spite of having said all those terrible things about labelling, Premier Davis' new cabinet tends to be, on balance, more right-wing than it was in the past.

It's not that the terms are meaningless, it's just they are too often thrown around to apply to a person's total outlook, rather than his philosophy on specific issues. A person can, it says here, be considered right wing on some issues and left wing on others. He can also have no particular positions on issues, in which case he is call a Liberal. Or he can lean to the right most times and be a Conservative, or lean to the left and be a New Democrat, or stand up, sit down, fight, fight, fight and be a cheerleader.

It is worth noting here that it was the Liberals who called for a return to smaller government, they called it "home rule" if you can imagine, while the Tories, realizing the error of their ways, promised to abort the birth of any new regional governments.

There was a time of course when political parties first began that it was easier to decide philosophically which one represented your particular point of view, that isn't the case any more. Sure, there's a clear choice between so-called socialism and equally so-called capitalism, allegedly as represented by the NDP and Conservative respectively, but even that becomes awfully grey at times and for the most part, the electorate is really, left to choose that party which they believe most closely represents their own philosophy, either that or simply vote for the candidate they like best or against the one they like least.

Publicly patriotic

OTTAWA — (SF) — It's not very fashionable in the Press Gallery to be schmaltzy and publicly patriotic, but a surprising number of us do harbor such sentiments, carefully screened from our peers.

Not too long ago I was invited to Government House to watch Governor General Jules Leger present bravery awards to 33 Canadians, and posthumous awards to two relatives.

Most of those receiving the awards had never been to Ottawa before, much less in the carpeted ballroom in the Governor General's residence. A string orchestra played in the lobby, dress uniforms clinked with medals, and gilded chairs flashed in the television lights. The people there to receive their awards were ordinary people, most of them civilians, and most of them highly nervous.

There were two British Columbia tug boat captains with two crew members, there to receive four Star of Courage awards for risking their lives in January, 1974. They'd put a tow line on a blazing barge load of diesel oil, and pulled it, flames shooting 200 feet high, clear of a second barge laden with gasoline and diesel oil. A factory sweeper from Fort Erie Ontario picked up a bravery medal for pulling two other men out of a tank full of poisonous fumes.

A 16-year-old Lachute, Quebec, girl won the Star of Courage for pulling her three-year-old niece from a blazing home. Three RCMP officers also won the medal of bravery for capturing a pair of holdup men without guns in a crowded shopping centre. There were countless awards for people who had risked icy water to rescue others in danger of drowning, and even one medal for a woman employee of External Affairs who had done the icy water rescue trick in Peking, saving a small Chinese child who had gone through the ice.

After the ceremony, there was a receiving line, and then dinner at circular tables for eight. The Governor General had his table jammed with a variety of award winners. At the next table, Defence Minister James Richardson chatted with an award-winning corporal.

It was one of those occasions to bring out the schmaltz and patriotism in even a journalist.

I can remember being quite skeptical when those new Canadian medals were first introduced, but I'm sure a convert now. That day made me feel extremely proud.

BILL SMILEY

Should we go to court?

By BILL SMILEY

SOMETHING came up on my Saskatchewan holiday this summer past that rather intrigued me, and I thought it might strike a chord, responsive or otherwise, in the breast, or breasts, of my best friends, the readers of this column.

I had thrown a small and unselect party on the last night of the convention. At least it began small. It grew steadily larger because it was unselect: everybody who passed the open door of my room was hollered at to cummon in.

Fortunately, most of the people who were passing were weekly newspaper people with their wives, girl friends, or grandmothers. With regard to the ladies, I must confess, said he gallantly, that you couldn't tell the girls from the grandmothers.

Perhaps that is because it's Women's International Year, but I doubt it. I have noticed in the last few years that girls are becoming more like grandmothers: the glasses, the long skirts, the humped shoulders; and, for good or worse, grannies are becoming more like girls: smoking cigarettes, drinking rye whiskey, and elevating their bosoms, with the aid of goodness-only-knows-what miracles of elastic, to positively perilous positions.

Well, back to the party. Federal and provincial politics, women's lib, starving editors, rotten kids, and overpaid workers, were dealt with fairly smartly and expeditiously. They were all bad, we agreed, except for the starving editors, the last bulwark in the fight for freedom, law and order, the old virtues, and a return to the "good years" of the Depression.

This was standard for a party, and I was pleased that everything was so cool. But, as every host or hostess of every party, everywhere, and every time, knows, most people sensibly go home to bed, and mine host is stuck with the Rag-Tag and Bob-Tail of the party, who still have a few bones stuck in their craws and want to wash them away with some fairly strong solvent.

It happened. I won't mention names, because they are two fine western editors, good to their children, kind to their wives, pillars of their communities, and I don't want them run out of town on some torn-up rails of a defunct line of the C.P.R., not tarred and feathered, but smeared from head to foot with printers' ink and copies of their old editorials.

I'll just call them Rag-Tag and Bob-Tail. Rag-Tag finally ran out of arguments and steam about 4 a.m., but Bob-Tail kept me up until 6.47 a.m., the bus leaving at 8.30 for the fishing trip, me going, him not, and I hope, if he reads this, he is dying slowly and painfully from an incurable disease.

This is what they got hacking about, with me as the judge; should or should not a weekly editor run in his columns court news?

And that is why I thought your readers might have an opinion. Rat-Tag said: "Absolutely. It is our duty. No one can be spared. We owe it to our readers. If I myself were convicted of impaired driving, I would run it in the paper."

Bob-Tail spoke thus: "Blank-beep! Who do you think you are — God? The guy or the gal has already been judged and sentenced by the law. He or she has been punished. All you are doing by printing it in the paper is doubling the sentence, exposing him or her to the scorn and contempt of friends and neighbors and salivating sensation-seekers who swoop like vultures on the garbage that is other peoples' troubles."

As you can see, Bob-Tail was a little more poetic. But Rag-Tag was not to be downed so easily. He fought back.

"O.K., smart-ass. What would you do if there was a murder in your town? You'll note that he had by now dropped the subjunctive."

Bob-Tail: "I'd ignore it. I'd say in the paper that So-and-So had passed away on Such-and-Such. If the Calgary papers wanted to come in and make a big murder thing of it, let 'em. You know what I'd do? I'd go and see the widow (or widower) and talk to her (or him) as a friend."

I won't bore you with any more. The argument went on for two hours, with the judge (me), looking at a non-existent watch, brightly mentioning that the fishing trip was starting in two hours, and even calling room service to see what time it was.

So what would you do, gentle reader, if you were a weekly editor? Would you run the court news, and break some poor mother's heart? Or do you think that the public has a right to know that the mayor got drunk and beat up his wife?

When I was a weekly editor, I had to cope with this. I decided, with the full concurrence of my partner, that there was no particular point in running court news. Too many people were being doubly punished, and why? Merely for the delectation of the righteous.

Strangely enough, or not, the people who howl and plead the most, when it is their family about to be exposed in public print, are the most righteous. The less righteous are almost proud that nephew Elmer "got his name in the paper."

Three days later, on our fishing trip, I reintroduced the subject, and saw two weekly newspapermen, this time from Ontario, practically come to blows over the issue.

Daily papers treat the subject with the utmost cynicism. They have a court reporter.

READS YOUR STARS

ARIES (3/21-4/19): An unexpected and maybe unwelcome call could shatter your peace. Be fair and keep your temper to turn it into a plus. Then, activity at home as you see the light on a matter there. Week closes with love.

TAURUS (4/20-5/20): Financial gain or loss possible. Which it is depends on your timing. Midweek letters may bring extra dividends. Follow your impulses. Later, chance of a spat at home. Don't let it turn into a major conflict. Keep calm and week ends with joy.

GEMINI (5/21-6/20): Don't allow indecision to cause you to miss a good thing, particularly in the field of romance. A shrewd investment pays off tenfold. Get advice on it from someone older. Week buzzes to a finish.

MOONCHILD (6/21-7/22): Your mind may seethe with ideas and concerns. Don't worry about someone nearby; she has help. This could be your lucky week. Usually you make your luck, but now it could fall in your lap. Romance comes on like gangbusters. It's skyrockets all the way.

LEO (7/23-8/22): Look for good times with friends and the possibility of a secret love beginning. You may need to make a call to finish up a matter. Don't procrastinate. Week closes on notes of duty and decision.

VIRGO (8/23-9/22): It could take a conscious effort to pull your head down out of the clouds and get back to reality. Make it. You may get the chance to start a new friendship. It would prove great for both of you, so jump in. Week comes to a submarine end.

LIBRA (9/23-10/23): A lovely beginning. Libra. Lots of activity and several projects to do. Then, your patience may be tried by someone clucking over you like a mother hen with her chick. Look for an unexpected bouquet later on.

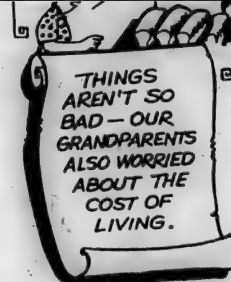

SCORPIO (10/24-12/21): Taking or being taken advantage of may be in the forecast. Don't do either. The sun enters Scorpio this week, bringing energy and initiative. Your plans should include changes, for they're on their way.

SAGITTARIUS (11/23-12/21): Activities with others and a difference of opinion start your week. Stick to your guns and don't be fooled. You'll feel better if you can learn to accept a certain situation. Week comes to a sunny close.

CAPRICORN (12/22-1/19): You're busy with a number of details as week begins. Then, you'll be pleasantly surprised about dealing with someone. He's not as difficult as you'd thought. Week wobbles off.

AQUARIUS (1/20-2/19): Love and harmony open your week. Well, that's the good news, now for the rest of it. There's a good (bad) chance that a difficult situation will occur, concerning someone else and, possibly, your work. Hang in there — you lose if you quit. Good luck!

PISCES (2/20-3/20): There's a new love on the way. Pisces. It could be quite sudden and will be quite good. Matters at home and a bit of extra work take up the rest of your time. Socializing should be on the agenda, too.

VD detection

by David Woods

Like cancer, venereal disease isn't one disease but several.

In all its forms, VD is acquired the same way — by sexual contact — but syphilis and gonorrhea, the two most common versions of the disease, are entirely different in their effects.

The incidence of syphilis is about one-tenth that of gonorrhea. Unlike gonorrhea, it's not confined to the genital area, but can, in its advanced stages, wreak havoc with such organs as the heart, the brain and the liver — and is frequently fatal as a result.

Throughout history many famous people have contracted syphilis: Keats, Oscar Wilde, Jonathan Swift, Napoleon, Beethoven, Henry VIII, and, predictably, Casanova, among them.

Today, we have the means to treat syphilis — principally penicillin and tetracycline — but the problem isn't so much a matter of treatment as of detection. It's not easy to tell if you've got syphilis, and many cases of the disease are discovered during routine blood testing.

Dr. Ralph Persad, a medical consultant with the Ontario Ministry of Health, says that every case of early syphilis is a potential epidemic. In fact, Dr. Persad says, the disease is more serious from the standpoint of potential complications than typhoid. There were 421 reported cases of syphilis in Ontario in 1958; 2,162 in 1974.

Syphilis, he explains, is caused by a corkscrew-shaped organism, called a spirochete, which enters the bloodstream and has an incubation period of from nine to 90 days following intercourse with an infected person.

Primary syphilis often starts as a pimple or sore (a chancre) at the point where the germ enters the body, but, says Dr. Persad, in about 40 per cent of syphilis cases there's no sore — so it's possible to have early syphilis without knowing it.

The secondary stage includes such symptoms as transient rashes, sore throat and general malaise. It occurs anywhere from six months to two years after the initial infection. Third stage syphilis is when the spirochetes really go to work over a period of 10 to 15 years in the untreated person — and this is when they can fatally damage the body's vital organs.

The important thing to remember, says Dr. Persad, is that one-third of syphilis cases heal spontaneously; one-third have no serious effects, and the other third can lead to chronic disease and even death. Trouble is, once you've contracted the disease, you don't know which of the three categories you're going to be in.

Therefore, it's vital to detect syphilis early — not only for your own protection, but also for that of your children, since the disease can be passed on to the next generation.

If you think you may have contracted syphilis don't be afraid to seek out medical help. A specific blood test is the only way of finding out — and early treatment is the best approach.

The Ontario Ministry of Health's pamphlet, VD — Sexually Transmitted Diseases, provides facts and information about syphilis.

This pamphlet is available in government or physicians' offices, or you can get it by writing to the Health Resources Centre, Communications Branch, Ministry of Health, Hepburn Block, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario M7A 1S2.

reveals facts on oil profits

A recent speech written for Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell was so filled with industry jargon that it takes a great deal of dedicated effort to wade through. But, once it's translated into English, it contains some interesting facts and strong words about oil company profits.

Basically, the speech asks the question that if the oil companies are doing as poorly as they say they are and there really is a serious shortage of the resource, why is it their profits keep going up? How are they making their money when all we hear from them is gloom and doom?

The speech was designed to represent the Ontario view, a view from Canada's largest oil and natural gas consumer.

It points out that oil company profits last year were up significantly over the year before -- as much as 36 per cent -- and some economists predict even higher profits in 1975.

"And you will clearly see that the oil companies are well represented on the Financial Post's list of the country's 100 largest corporations."

"In short, you will see that the petroleum industry is apparently doing very nicely."

That no doubt will cause oil company executives from coast to coast to demand an apology, or worse, and naturally bring on a series of famous "you don't understand the oil industry" statements, the oil company way of telling critics they're stupid and should shut up and leave them alone to milk the public for all they can.

Only a few years ago, the oil industry was doing well on $2 and $3 a barrel for its oil, making future exploration plans, but the OPEC started crashing up the prices "and then suddenly this new price is exactly what the Canadian oil industry needs to make ends meet."

It points out that some companies claim they will get nothing from the latest $1.50 per barrel oil price increase, yet another says it may get from 4 to 25 cents per barrel and still another from 4 to 64 cents per barrel.

Who is telling the truth? OR is anybody?

The speech points out that the oil companies like to say government just doesn't understand them, but "by the same token, I could say that the industry sometimes doesn't seem to understand government when it is responding to public concern."

"I see the industry challenge government, corner government, offer quick and critical comments -- sometimes fatuous comments, and I have to wonder. Does the industry think this kind of stance accomplishes anything other than the creation of misunderstanding? And more importantly, does the industry consider the public's reaction which is likely to be further misunderstanding?"

Basically, what he is saying is that he doesn't believe the poor-boy cries of the oil companies. That's the kind of stuff that's going to be popular anywhere outside the board rooms of the companies.

If Davis backs down on rent review boards, election possible

It did not come as a particular surprise that former Sault Ste. Marie mayor John Rhodes was given the job of housing minister, unquestionably the most critical post in the minority Conservative government.

Not only are the two opposition parties chomping at the bit to proclaim exclusive territorial rights for themselves on the issue, but the folks showed clearly how they felt about it September 18, especially in Toronto where the NDP capitalized on the issue and turfed out a bunch of stuffy old Tories.

So it was clear from the outset that former Prescott mayor Donald Irvine, a hard-liner on rents, was gone, and that Davis would need somebody tough enough to stand the strain and smooth enough to pull his government through to fill the post.

Rhodes seemed like a good choice.

But then he opened his mouth, and suddenly something happened.

Rhodes said he is opposed to rent review boards. He does not think they're a good idea. He believes they only serve to add another layer of bureaucracy at the municipal level. And he's simply not going to recommend them because there are other -- unnamed -- ways of dealing with the problems of rent.

Perhaps Rhodes wasn't listening to his leader who to be sure often is difficult to listen to, but nevertheless spent much of

May stop stocking rivers with salmon

The provincial government may stop stocking rivers with coho salmon because of the possible health hazard to fishermen eating their catch, a ministry of natural resources official said.

Kenneth Loftus, director of the sports fisheries branch of the ministry, said the stocking program will have to be "re-examined" if comprehensive tests now under way show there is danger.

The salmon stocking program has led to a sports fishing boom along the Credit River. But studies have shown that the salmon contain the chemical PCB (polychlorinated biphenyls), which has made test animals prone to cancerous liver tumors and deterioration of the reproductive organs. The provincial ministry of health has warned against eating the salmon more than once a week, and not at all for pregnant women.

Doctors' threat not taken lightly

Health Minister Frank Miller said he does not "take lightly" a threat by Ontario doctors to opt out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP) unless their wage demands are met.

Ontario doctors have asked for a fee increase of between 35 and 50 per cent. Doctors who opt out of OHIP bill patients directly, and OHIP refunds 90 per cent of the bill.

Miller said he believes a number of doctors will leave the plan, but not enough to hurt the operation of OHIP. He said negotiations on fee are "working well" and predicted the matter will be settled "amicably" despite the threats. No doctors have so far given the required three month notice of quitting the plan.

the last few weeks of the campaign trying unsuccessfully to placate the renters out there by promising, faithfully I presume, to bring in a system of rent review boards retroactive to July 30.

It may have been an unusual enough thing for Premier Davis to be so specific, but there it is. On the campaign trail he promised absolutely guaranteed, a system of rent review boards.

And then Rhodes says he doesn't believe in them.

This is in part what he said:

"I'm not overly enthused with rent review boards. I think that's just setting up another level of bureaucracy and would not be effective. There are other ways."

But Mr. Rhodes, sir, ah, er, about Mr. Davis and his promises, er, don't you think sir, your government is, ah, how shall we say it, committed?

"We're committed to doing something, but I'm not committed to setting up a rent review board," he said, apparently not joking.

He went on to explain that he doesn't like the word control, and he certainly wouldn't even consider the kind of flat-out rent control the British Columbia NDP government practises: He says that simply scares away somebody who might normally build more housing and makes matters worse.

But he does believe in doing something. He said that. He just doesn't want to talk about it.

"I've always felt there has to be some sort of regulations how rents are going to be increased...some sort of formula that has to be followed," he said.

"We're not talking about a free market when you get down to zero vacancy rates." His comments not only puzzled the Queen's Park reporters, they upset Liberals and New Democrats, leading to predictions of an early demise of the minority Conservative government.

NDP leader Stephen Lewis said he was initially pleased with the appointment of Rhodes, "until I heard his comments on rent review boards. I don't know what he's talking about...I found them startling to the extreme...Rhodes took the central issue of the Premier during the campaign and discarded it."

James Breithaupt, the Liberal House He predicted a quick election if Davis and Rhodes try to back out of their commitment on rents.

If they're trying to get out of it, "then they don't wish to continue long in office," said Breithaupt... "and the Premier must be planning to have a very early dissolution and a new election."

This really is confusing, but perhaps it's because Rhodes is a newboy in that portfolio and Premier Davis will straighten him out.

A Queen's Park Viewpoint by Don Fredericks

Now that Bob Nixon has recognized the futility of his own political aspirations and decided to step aside before having to be pushed, the question remains whether in fact it really is better late than never.

Did Nixon, a farmer and former teacher, do his party any favours by staying on as long as he did?

Does the party owe him a debt for leading them into third place at a time when their chances appeared better than they had for 32 years of actually beating the mighty Tories?

But what must be even more depressing for the Liberals is the realization that Nixon did not quit earlier simply because there was nobody to take his place.

He is, believe it or not, the best they've got.

Apart from the remote possibility of former federal finance minister John Turner actually contesting the leadership, the Liberals are likely struck with somebody who is now a member of their caucus.

Clearly, their best choice would be Sarnia's James Bullbrook, a bright, articulate, but somewhat lazy veteran, but it's doubtful that even he could appeal to Toronto voters, the voters that Nixon candidly admits aren't turned on by him and the voters the party needs if they ever hope to win.

In resigning as leader -- but hanging in as acting leader until a new one is chosen -- Nixon said it is in the best interests of the party to contest the next election under a new leadership.

He's probably right about that, although what new leadership?

In a minority government, an election could come within a few months of a new leader taking over. What chance would the new leader have of turning around so many dismal years and making the party a winner in such a short time, unless of course he had the magic of a Turner.

But even Turner would have trouble winning. The reason his name is being talked about so much is because he's available now and there's nobody else.

Bob Nixon has not been a good leader. He has consistently failed to come to grips with problems as quickly as the other two parties and on those few occasions when he has recognized an issue, has lacked the leadership it takes to follow through on it.

Witness the recent election campaign as an example. Nixon complained the Liberals ran hard in Toronto but for some reason didn't do well.

The reason is obvious. Just ask the socialist leader Stephen Lewis why. He knew enough to hit hard at the rent situation, an issue that appealed to people who saw their rents going up 35 or 40 per cent. Nixon meekly pointed out that Toronto MPP Margaret Campbell had a rent review bill on the order paper for well over a year, but didn't explain why he and his party left it sit there that long without raising hell about it. They simply let Lewis waltz right in and co-opt the issue, which explains why they finished third and why Nixon is a three-time loser.

For years people used to say that Nixon isn't much of a leader but at least he's a nice guy, an indication that there was very little else to say about him. Thing is, he isn't really that nice a guy. He is impatient, quick-tempered and often downright nasty to people, and there are not many Liberals fighting with him to stay on as leader and have yet another go at the Tories.

Now the party is faced with choosing a new leader from among its own caucus. If not Bullbrook, then perhaps Kitchener's James Breithaupt, Ottawa's Albert Roy, Rainy River's Pat Reid or Huron-Bruce's Murray Gaunt.

There's also some talk the party might do well to choose a brand new face such as the one belonging to 31-year-old London lawyer David Peterson, but the odds on that are pretty long since the convention will be held in December or January and he was just elected.

The grim fact is that even though the Liberals did win 13 more seats, most of them were in Southwestern Ontario and there's little guarantee the Tory demise in that area is permanent.

The party still has been unable to make any impact in Toronto, Eastern Ontario or even Northern Ontario and until they find some way to shed the albatross of the federal Liberals calling the shots for them and build up their own organization riding by riding, their chances are not good no matter who the leader is.

But that's all for the future. The story is now that Robert Fletcher Nixon has packed it in.

With way entrances left

MARMORA - Residents at the east end of Matthew Street in Marmora are not happy with the way their entrances off the highway have been left from the sewer installation.

Earl Clemenger has asked the Village Council when he can expect the contractor to finish the job. Several loads of gravel and fill are needed to restore the entrance and cover the area around the manhole which was left sticking up. Mr. Clemenger claimed.

Roads chairman Grant Airhart assured Mr. Clemenger that Council is working on his and other complaints and in some cases the municipality is doing the work and charging the contractor.

Temporary road to be permanent?

MARMORA - Should the temporary road bordering the Marmora approved municipal park be made a permanent one?

The suggestion that it be left so as to provide an alternate route to the busy main street of Marmora has been made by Dr. H.G. Parkin. The road was built and used during the sewage project as a means of getting around blocked off areas.

Dr. Parkin said he feels the road should be made a permanent one because a lot of people are using it to escape traffic on Forsyth Street. "It's good for business not to have unnecessary traffic travelling through there", Dr. Parkin pointed out. He is personally interested in having access to a house built at the back of his property, he told Marmora Village Council.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Walker also attended the recent Council meeting to ask where the proposed fencing of the municipal park would be placed. They said they are concerned that they might lose the use of a laneway adjacent to the temporary road which gives them a second access to the Feed Mill. Mr. Walker pointed that elimination of this right-of-way would make it difficult for transport drivers especially in the winter time, who have been in the practice of entering one way and leaving by the other.

Reeve Jack Reynolds suggested that the Walkers plan their requirements and then meet with the Parks committee to discuss some arrangement that would be satisfactory to everyone concerned.

"Now we go on honeymoon to Niagara Falls!"

Roblin entrant judged the best

Wants village do something for youth

MARMORA - A plea for the "village fathers" to do something to provide some form of recreation for the young people of Marmora was conveyed to Marmora Village Council by Murray Walker at the request of his two daughters.

The question was tossed by Reeve Jack Reynolds to Councillor Gord Bennett to answer. Mr. Bennett is chairman of parks and recreation committee and a member of the Marmora Recreation Committee.

Mr. Bennett revealed that the Recreation Committee has been discussing plans for a cross-country ski club and he pointed out that the arena will soon be ready for use again. "Sometimes kids are over-organized," Mr. Bennett commented, adding that he feels the kids themselves should be able to provide their own recreation.

Mr. Bennett reminded Mr. Walker and Council that when the Recreation Committee called a public meeting some time ago to find out what parents would like to see organized, only a handful of parents turned out for it; also the skating rink at Legion Park provided by the Recreation Committee to take up the loss of the arena wasn't used very much.

Mrs. Walker said the young people would very much like to have a dance once a week. Mr. Bennett agreed that it was too bad the dances at the Town Hall had to be discontinued because they got out of hand. "I can't see why they have to have expensive orchestras. If the kids would organize something on a smaller scale and police it themselves, we might consider their request. Deloro young people put on dances and they don't seem to have any trouble."

"Tell your girls they have our sympathy but suggestions have to come from the bottom up", Mr. Bennett advised Mr. and Mrs. Walker.

Honor Holstein members

On Tuesday, September 30, 1975, the Hastings County Holstein Club held its annual banquet at the I.O.O.F. Hall in Stirling. Approximately 125 members and guests were in attendance.

Prior to the program, a delicious turkey supper was served by the Stirling Rebecca Lodge.

The club president, Douglas H. Detlor, and chairman for the evening, opened the program and welcomed the members and guests. The guests at the head table were introduced by Ralph Jeffs, 1st Vice President. Alton Goodman, Past President, thanked the women of the Stirling Rebecca Lodge, for the wonderful supper, and the fine job of serving it.

Entertainment for the evening was supplied by "Dad and the Lads" (Ken Couch and his three sons).

The guest speaker was Lloyd Wilson, a prominent Holstein breeder and a Holstein Sale Manager and Auctioneer from Uxbridge. Mr. Wilson spoke very candidly on some of the problems in Canada today. He related them to the problems within some Holstein Clubs and how they can be recognized and prevented. Mr. Wilson congratulated Holstein breeders in Hastings on the quality of animals and encouraged them to exhibit at their local Black and White Show.

Following the guest speaker came the presentation of awards which was handled by Gerry Nelson, Area Fieldman. The 1975 trophy and award winners were as follows: Best Uddered Female, donated and presented by Iverson Tamblin to

Glenalcomb Farm - Delbert McComb and Sons; Grand Champion Female, donated by Alton Hadley Ltd. and presented by Gordon Parks to Glenalcomb Farm - Delbert McComb and Sons; Junior Champion Female, donated by Master Feeds and presented by their representative, Earle Allan to Elmford Farms - Harry Danford; Breeders Herd, donated by Bishop Seeds to Glenalcomb Farm - Delbert McComb and Sons; Premier Exhibitor Award, presented by Doug Detlor to Glenalcomb Farm - Delbert McComb and Sons; Master Feeds Tray for Most Improved B.C.A. in County, presented by their representative Earle Allan to Elmford Farm - Harry Danford (second consecutive year); Highest B.C.A. Land purchase closing extended

Because of a delay in completing a survey of the land for the proposed senior citizen housing project, the closing date of the land purchase has been extended to October 17th. Marmora Village Council has been advised by the Ministry of Housing. The Village is in the process of closing the undeveloped portion of Pearce Street, future location of the geared-to-income rental units.

Council stops for fire visit

MARMORA - Marmora Village Council interrupted business last Wednesday evening long enough to visit the Fire Department hall next door as part of Fire Prevention Week.

Fire Chief Cec. Neal and his men showed the visitors around the orderly looking firehall and answered questions. The visitors were impressed with the amount of equipment which the emergency van now carries.

On return to the council chambers Reeve Jack Reynolds congratulated fire committee chairman Bert Gray on the modern equipment compared to a few years ago. The urgent need for replacement of the 30 year old Village fire truck was brought up again but no action taken.

The Village's oldest piece of equipment, a 1937 King Seagrave truck with its 60 foot ladders, is stored elsewhere. "That's enough to reach the highest skyscraper in Marmora", someone commented facetiously.

Offers for the antique vehicle have been received but the Fire Department isn't selling.

"I'm sorry, Donald, you're a half carat too short!"

Family Physician BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. My son will be going out for Junior High football this year. What do you think of youngsters on this age group playing contact sports?

A. The improvement in physical fitness and the exercise of self-discipline which can be learned from these organized sports can be very beneficial to the participants. However, there are a couple of safeguards to consider. First, all junior high age students — boys and girls — who are going to participate in contact sports should first have a good physical examination in order to make sure that no underlying condition exists which might make the sport hazardous for them. Over the years I've picked up previously unrecognized heart problems, high blood pressure, and diabetes, to say nothing of hernias, anemia, etc. Second, if the sport is one in which bodily contact will take place, I believe that some grouping of the kids should be done in order to avoid pitting the very mature and heavy 13-year-old against the immature and light students of the same age. Those programs which are designed to allow every person to play are better, in my estimation, than those programs in which only the "first" team really gets a chance.

Q. Do you have any special recommendations about the first few weeks of high school football training?

A. Since many of the students may be out of shape at the first of the season, their physical activity should be graded until they are built up to tolerate harder, rougher, and more prolonged exercise. This will avoid the sprains and strains which will otherwise occur. Also, since football training now begins in late summer when it is still hot, replacement of fluid requires particular attention. Every year somewhere in this country we lose a boy or two from heat exhaustion. Exercising without replacement of perspired liquid is about the same as driving a car with the radiator only partly full — it doesn't make sense and can cause real damage.

Premier William Davis fired the opening volleys in the minority government battle by appointing 25 of his Conservative troops to the front lines.

The new cabinet, with 26 members including Davis, one less than before, features seven new faces, eight old ones in different portfolios and another 11 in the same spots.

It also includes three women, believed to be more than any other cabinet in the country, and a total of eight Toronto ministers, including two who were elected for the first time three weeks ago.

The major appointment was the shifting of John Rhodes from transportation and communications to housing to replace hard-liner Donald Irvine.

Housing promises to be the most critical portfolio facing the Davis government in light of NDP and Liberal demands for stringent rent controls and Rhodes, 45, wasted little time in showing he's going to be controversial when he told reporters he does not like rent review boards, something that Davis promised to introduce shortly after the Legislature re-opens October 28th.

Roy McMurtry, 43, a Toronto lawyer and close friend of Davis' gets the important post of attorney-general, an appointment which didn't surprise anyone in spite of the fact McMurtry is a political rookie. He and Dr. Bette Stephenson, of York Mills (Toronto) who takes over labor, are the two new ministers who have not been in the Legislature before.

Dr. Stephenson, former president of the Canadian Medical Association, becomes the first woman labor minister in our history. She said her medical background will help her in dealing with the difficult problem of occupational health hazards and called for a review of the Workman's Compensation Act.

Accuses gov'ts of 'greed'

Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell accused the federal and Alberta governments of "greed" in setting new natural gas prices, which will cost the average Ontario consumer $60 or $70 a year.

Timbrell said the recently-announced Ottawa-Alberta agreement will more than double the revenue for producers.

He said he has asked for a meeting of all energy ministers before December 1st to discuss the natural gas question.

According to Timbrell, if the National Energy Board approves the Trans-Canada Pipeline rate request, the producer of natural gas in Alberta would get an average of 98 cents per thousand cubic feet as of November 1st, compared to 46 cents a year ago.

In most of Southern Ontario, consumers would not likely be hit with the new prices until December or January because Timbrell said the Ontario Energy Board will not allow the gas companies to charge the new prices until their inventories are used up.

He also criticized NDP leader Stephen Lewis for not doing his homework in calling for a freeze on natural gas prices during the recent election campaign. Timbrell said in fact, a freeze already exists and there can be no increase without an Ontario Energy Board hearing.

Timbrell chided the natural gas companies for advertisements which suggest that natural gas will be cheap and plentiful.

He said that may prove to be optimistic and "the conservation ethic cannot be properly conveyed to our citizens if they are continually barraged with inducements to acquire larger and more energy intensive appliances."

Ontario depends on the West for 99 per cent of its natural gas, Timbrell said, and the federal government has the right to set prices on interprovincial trade. He said Ontario does not agree with Ottawa's intention to eventually peg the price of natural gas to that of petroleum, a move which will see gas continuing to increase in price.

Sandra Fleming receiving the trophy for the Most Valuable Player from Lloyd Holmes.

Bonnie Jones accepts the trophy as the 'Most Improved Player'.

Top Players - Joan Bailey, the Most Valuable Player; Carol Holland, the Most Sportsman-like Player; and Bonnie Jones,

Purina-Ettes honored with two individual trophies

On September 28th a league banquet was held in the Oddfellows hall in Belleville for the presentation of the trophies to the deserving players of the Belleville District Ladies Softball League.

Although the Purina-Ettes were runners-up this year in the league, being beaten out by the Belleville Yardmen in the finals four games to none, they walked away with two individual trophies out of the four presented.

Sandra Fleming, the Purina-Ettes pitcher, earned the "most valuable pitching" trophy for the second year, while Bonnie Jones of the same team earned the "most improved player" award in the league. Carol MacFarlane of the Yardmen received the "most valuable player" trophy and Chris Fyke of Belleville Broadloom earned the "most sportsman-like" award, also for the second time.

Each team was presented with three trophies given to three members of their team. The team members voted on (1) Most Valuable Player; (2) Most Improved Player; and (3) Most Sportsman-like player. For the Purina-Ettes, Joan Bailey earned the most valuable award; Bonnie Jones, the most improved, and Carol Holland, the most sportsman-like.

The Purina-Ettes had a good season this year. In the League schedule, they lost one and tied four games, and they went on to the semi-finals in the P.W.S.U., being beaten out by Kingston.

On October 25th the team is going to the Reim Club in Marmora at 6:30 for a smorgasbord and then on to a dance at Lingham Lodge. Anyone wishing to attend the meal and dance with the Purina-Ettes is most welcome.

Minor hockey gets underway this Saturday

Madoc and district minor hockey will begin this Saturday, Oct. 25.

During the first three Saturdays Sonny Osborne and Glenn Nickle will be conducting a clinic to help hockey players learn the fundamental skills of skating and hockey.

All boys registered are invited to take part at their given times. Men who have volunteered to help on Saturday mornings and to help with OMHA teams are also invited to bring their skates and hockey sticks at the times that interest them.

Boys should wear their equipment. A hockey helmet, skates and stick are minimum equipment.

The schedule for Saturday Oct. 25, Nov. 1 and Nov. 8 is: 8:30 a.m. - 9:30 a.m.: all boys 11 or 12 years old in 1975.

9:30 a.m. - 10:30 a.m.: all boys 7, 8, 9 or 10 years old in 1975.

10:30 a.m. - 11:15 a.m.: all boys 6 years old and under.

11:15 a.m. - 12:30 p.m.: all boys 13 or 14 years-old in 1975.

Any changes in the schedule will be sent home with the boys through the schools.

Parents who haven't registered their sons can do so Saturday morning at the Madoc arena. Registration forms must be signed by one parent before players can take part. Fees are $5 for Saturday hockey, or $15 if the player makes an OMHA team. For registration see Bev Browning, Peggy Johnston or Harold Bailey.

Poor or non-skaters are also welcomed to take part in the hockey program, which will be adjusted to suit each boy.

Conduct housing survey here

The Ministry of Housing will conduct a survey to determine the need and demand for senior citizen housing in the Village of Madoc and the Townships of Madoc, Huntingdon, Tudor and Cashel.

A research analyst from the Ministry of Housing, the Ontario Government's housing agency, will estimate the number of senior citizens living in these municipalities whose housing is inadequate or beyond their financial capabilities.

The demand in the area for housing on a rent-g geared-to-income basis will be determined from information gathered through advertising, direct mail questionnaires and interviews.

The study, which begins immediately was requested by the Councils of the above municipalities.

It will include an assessment of economic trends, growth factors and current and future housing needs in the municipality.

Senior citizens in the area will receive letters outlining the Government's housing program and asking them if they wish to participate.

Some interested persons may not be reached by direct mail. The Ministry of Housing urges them to obtain a questionnaire from the municipal offices.

If the survey shows a need for senior citizen's housing, it will likely be an apartment building, although consideration is given to one-storey units which do not require stairways. All apartments have a living room, bedroom, bathroom and kitchen, and are equipped with stove and refrigerator. Rent is geared to income and the minimum is $37. a month, including services.

After considering the survey report, Council can initiate the program. It outlines by adopting a resolution requesting the Ministry of Housing to go ahead. Capital costs are shared by the Provincial and Federal Governments.

Those receiving questionnaires are asked to return them as soon as possible to assist the survey.

Mrs. F. Dafoe 95 yrs young

Mrs. Frank Dafoe, a Madoc resident for almost 70 years, celebrated her 95th birthday at her daughter's home in Toronto on October 12th.

Despite her years, Mrs. Dafoe was "the life of the party", and everyone, family and friends, thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

Mrs. Dafoe was most appreciative of the many cards, notes and greetings from her long-time friends in Madoc.

There was only one regret expressed by Mrs. Dafoe, and that is that she is unable to thank each person individually for their kindness in remembering her on this occasion.

Radiation levels too high

MARMORA - The residents of Deloro received some disquieting news on the weekend.

Radiation levels of some slag at the abandoned property once owned by Deloro Smelting and Refining have been found to be at a higher than normal radiation background level, a news bulletin released in Ottawa on Monday by the Atomic Energy Control Board has stated.

The communique goes on to say that while there does not appear to be a widespread health hazard, there is some concern regarding areas a few feet from piles of slag and the Board would like to take further measurements to establish the extent of the problem.

The higher levels were found generally on or near the black slag distributed around the property but air samples taken at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Galloway, adjacent to one of the slag piles, was found to give radon concentration readings that were as much as 15 times higher than that recommended for continuous exposure for 24 hours per day all year. The report went on to point out, however, that radon is a gas and the measured concentration at a particular point is highly variable and depends quite strongly on weather conditions, so the number given may not be typical.

The problem was discovered by representatives of the Atomic Energy Board during visits to the site carried out in August and September of this year, during the course of other investigations.

The findings of the investigation were brought to the attention of Deloro Village Council at a meeting last Thursday night with representatives of AECB. The Council was informed that a press release would be made on Friday in Ottawa but after a review of the statement, the members of Council requested that the wording of the bulletin be changed and not issued until Monday, because they felt that some people might construe the report as affecting the whole of Deloro Village.

AECB also gave the Council information sheets to distribute among the 220 residents of the Village. This was done Saturday evening and Sunday afternoon.

Madoc CNIB canvass

The annual CNIB canvass of Madoc, conducted Oct. 14, topped the previous years with a total of $382.45. In 1974 the total, including late arrivals, reached $330.11.

The canvass was conducted by 14 canvassers from St. Peter's Church, with the results tallied by Lamoine West.

The canvassers were: Jennifer Aylsworth, Deborah Raynsford, Allan Gaebel, Brian Gaebel, Laurie Love, Shelley Burris, Kimberly Matchett, Robert Matchett, Loree Reid, Lorie Matchett, Shirley McCoy, Carla Gaebel, Sherree Bateman and Brenda Gaebel.

A number of people were missed during the canvass. Any person or groups wishing to contribute to the CNIB are asked to call 473-2950 or contact one of the canvassers before Oct. 28.

A new film

"Isn't It Good To Know", a new film that abandons traditional story lines to involve the viewer in the life-experiences of real people, will be shown on Sunday, November 2nd, at the Madoc Wesleyan Methodist Church on Elgin Street. The latest film from World Wide Pictures, producer of Time to Run, will be shown on this evening at 7:30.

"Isn't It Good To Know" was edited and directed by J. Michael Hooser, a young 26-year-old film maker who brings provocative new techniques to his first major film. Using a varying number of images on the same screen, Hooser creates a multi-media effect that draws the viewer into the picture. Included are scenes from Dino De Laurentiis production of "Barabbas" through the courtesy of Columbia Pictures.

By shifting the viewer's attention from the true stories of the people who lived them, to brief appearances by Billy Graham, to video-vignettes coupled with original new songs - "Isn't it Good to Know" and "Gone Away" by Ted Smith and the "The Soap-box Song" by Judy McKenzie - Hooser created a film conveying ultimate drama - the drama of change. Purpose comes out of emptiness. Silence becomes communication. And from the disillusionment of drugs, violent protest, and witchcraft, there comes a new beginning - new life.

"Isn't it Good to Know" is currently being shown in thousands of locations across the country each month. Rev. Lawrence Mack, who has made the arrangements for this special free showing of "Isn't It Good to Know", extends a cordial invitation to all families in the area to attend.

$600 damage

Six hundred dollars damages resulted to a 1975 pick-up truck which slipped into a ditch when the shoulder of the road gave way on Monday afternoon.

Derrick Traviss of the Madoc Detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, reports that no charge will be laid in connection with the incident.

Liberal hunting money!

Liberals in every federal constituency in Canada are canvassing for financial support during October, November and December. In 1974, political fund-raising in Canada was transformed by the Election Expenses Act.

The purpose of the Election Expenses Act is to open completely the question of the financing of political parties. That Act encourages all citizens to support political parties financially through a generous income tax credit. The Act encourages regular annual giving. If an individual gives $100, he or she can deduct $75 directly from their federal income tax payable. The contribution costs $25. If the individual gives $25, the contribution costs only $6.25.

The success of this new fundraising depends on a large number of individual citizens making contributions to the party of their choice under the tax credit system - many will be financial contributors for the first time.

Liberals are not restricting their canvass to known party members. The voting public will be asked to participate. More information is available from the Liberal Party in each federal constituency, the Liberal Party Office in the province, or from the National Office, 102 Bank Street, Ottawa.

Benefit dance big success

The benefit dance, which was held in Ivanhoe Hall to raise funds for the Madoc Pee-Wees, the All-Ontario Champs, to buy jackets, was a tremendous success.

Manager, Doug Wood, and Coach, Jack Douglas, told everyone of the ups and downs involved in managing a team, but commented that these boys were the "greatest". They said, when everyone made up their minds to win a game, it was win or else. The beautiful trophies show the boys worked hard to come home champions.

Doug Wood presented Captain Doug Wood Jr. with the trophies and the badges for their new jackets. The boys presented Doug and Jack each with a beautiful plaque showing the appreciation of the team for such good management.

Ted Blair, David and Doug Tebworth played and sang for the dancing. Bill Young accompanied them on the violin for some good old square dancing. Rosemary Critch sang a few solos with the boys, which was very much enjoyed.

A silver collection was taken for the boys in the band. On behalf of the band, Ted Blair donated the collection back to the ball players.

Lunch was served by the boys and girls of the community.

After lunch, the remainder of the evening was spent in the young and old alike enjoying some good swinging music.

Appreciation was extended to everyone who came and helped make the dance so successful.

The first used hockey equipment sale, sponsored by the Madoc Mothers Auxiliary, was an even more successful event than was anticipated. Although only one pair of hockey pants were donated on Tuesday night, by the end of Saturday, the sale had brought in a total of $56.25. Although this isn't a large sum of money, the purpose behind the event (to benefit people who are looking for certain items in used hockey equipment) was accomplished.

It is hoped that next fall when people are clearing out their closets and come across some hockey equipment, that they will keep this sale in mind.

The courtesy of Harold Brett and the helpers and all those who donated items of equipment certainly was a big help in introducing this new type of sale. There are still a few pair of good used skates available, which may be obtained at the home of Peggy Hyde.

Tied for the lead

Mrs. Dan Bronson, convener of the program on Canadian industries, was absent. The program was conducted instead by Mrs. Albert Bailey and her assistants.

Take steps control mice

Now is the time to take steps to control mice in your garden over winter, recommends J.K. Hughes, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist. Conditions have contributed to an above normal population of mice this year. The long growing season, rapid growth and lush vegetation have been factors in their increased numbers. Therefore, definite measures should be taken now to reduce mouse damage.

Have one-point lead

The Night Trips have a one-point lead over the second placed Unpredictables in the Thursday night Madoc mixed bowling league.

Point standings give the Trips 22, the Unpredictables 21, John's Jinx 18, Gord's Lost Lambs 16, Barney's Rubbles 14 and Leo's Lucky Six 14.

Ladies high single went to Jean Rodgers with 227, the high triple to Marion Van Heukelom with 576.

The men's high single went to John Van Heukelom with 266; the triple to Ken Denyes with 654.

Other high scores were by: Ken Denyes 256-225; Paul Jones 248-223; Leona Armstrong 219; Ruth Holmes 218; Gordon Holmes 225; Theera Reid 218; Marion Van Heukelom 217-202; Bill Armstrong 215-203; Joe Mallia 204-203; and Jack Reynolds 200.

Road's shoulder gives way

The weight of a fully loaded bulk fertilizer truck caused the road's shoulder to give way Wednesday evening, one mile east of the Madoc provincial police detachment office.

The truck, owned by the Madoc Co-Operative Association and driven by John Patrick Bradley, 22, of 303 St. Lawrence St., Madoc, was able to return to the roadway but continued on into the opposite ditch where it rolled over onto its side.

The driver escaped injury and damage to the truck was confined to $200.

Pull or cut away all grass and weeds around your trees and shrubs. Clean cultivation discourages mice from burrowing around this growth.

Mouse guards, made of plastic or wire, can be wrapped around tree trunks. These, coupled with coarse gravel around the tree's base, will also be helpful in controlling mouse damage. If your problem is serious enough to warrant the use of poison, follow manufacturer's direction explicitly and keep it out of reach of children and pets.

"Plan now to protect your garden from mouse damage and save yourself costly losses and repair jobs in the spring," advises Mr. Hughes.

Estimate $300 damage in morning mishap

Damage was estimated at $300 Sunday morning in a single-car accident on County Road 8, 1.3 miles east of Highway 14.

Police said Rev. Roy A. Taylor, 34, of Stirling, was westbound on the road when a vehicle coming from a side road forced him to veer to the right. His car went into the north ditch but was able to return to the road.

A passenger in the car, Dorothy Taylor, 54, was taken to Belleville General Hospital with bruises.

Use hot water wisely Save energy...Save money

Apart from home heating, a family usually consumes the most energy in producing hot water. Here are just a few small things you can do, that can add up to a considerable energy saving. Turn off hot water taps so they don't drip, fill clothes washers to match the size of the load, wait until you have a full load before using a dishwasher and remember showers usually require less hot water than baths. Try not to use more hot water than you need.

The Cascade electric water heater will give you a dependable supply of hot water, but it's up to you to use it wisely.

WANTS

a nuclear power plant!

By Don Fredericks

(Red) Venturi is a husky ruddy complexioned man who in addition to running a hotel has been mayor of Blind River for nine years.

He, along with a host of other individuals and groups, met the new Ontario cabinet at Sault Ste. Marie for another in their continuing series of cabinet meetings to meet the folks and hear their problems and from time to time do something about them.

But unlike the others, Venturi wasn't here looking for a handout or increased grants. He was looking for a nuclear power plant an odd request in this time of environmental sensitivity.

So you ask yourself why does this man in this town want a nuclear power plant when almost every other municipality in North America would likely string a politician up at the very suggestion that a plant might be built within a hundred miles of where they live?

Venturi speaks in the hushed tones of a man who lives every day with a desperate situation. He tells you that his town had 3,600 people just a few years ago and is now down by 300 since the biggest sawmill east of the Rockies closed down.

He talks of the people who are unemployed, about 12 per cent or double the provincial average. He talks of the men on welfare who have lost their will to work, the young people who leave town as soon as they leave high school and the five industries which came to town in the last few years with the help of governments grants but soon had to pack their bags and move along leaving behind skeletons and more disillusioned depressed town folk. "Some of the people here have been on welfare so long they have lost all their ambition," he said, "and if they can hunt and fish and live within these means that suits them fine. They don't even care anymore."

"But it's our young people who really get hurt. For them it's a hell of a mess. What else can they do? They get out of school and go south, leaving their families behind, their loved one but they have no choice. This is why it's so important. This is why we want that nuclear plant."

While most towns would worry about the potential environmental disasters, to Venturi, a nuclear plant would be his town's salvation. It would be permanent, not just another industry which comes to town, raises hopes, then goes belly up.

The town's industry, if you can call it that, consists of a hospital, a department of lands and forests' office, a district high school, two separate schools and a public school. In addition many men work in the mines in Elliot Lake, 38 miles away, or other mines 50 miles away, a treacherous daily drive in the winter conditions which exist along the north shore of Lake Huron.

Ontario Hydro is considering three sites for that nuclear plant, all of them in Northern Ontario, but Venuri wants it built at his site, specifically, Dean Lake, near Blind River.

Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell told him that Hydro is still considering the various sites and won't make a decision until at least the spring of 1977 and even then it would be 10 years before any plant is built.

"But there'd be jobs in the meantime, construction jobs," Venturi said, "and we could start training our young people for jobs in the plant, good jobs that would keep them home. And besides all that it would give our community a boost psychologically something that's hard to measure or explain but we'd all feel it."

Timbrell, recognizing the uniqueness of a community actually seeking a nuclear plant, rather than objecting to one, said the importance of a reliable electricity system in this province is becoming more obvious all the time, particularly with the supplies of oil and gas in doubt, "and it's nice for once to have somebody say they want a hydro station in their community."

It's not something that happens too often."

The town argues that all necessary land for the project is available, a large chunk of it already owned by the province. As if to illustrate that they expect to get the plant, the Blind River planning board and town council have completed the planning and preliminary work needed for a subdivision. Dean Lake is chosen.

In addition the present school facilities can hold 160 families and Algoma College is already locating a satellite campus in Blind River, to "take care of" any upgrading necessary for future jobs in the nuclear plant."

In a prepared brief read by Ron McKinnon chairman of the Blind River industrial committee, the town officials said "in the final analysis the most important factor that should be considered...is the serious economic situation of the north shore area. The Dean Lake site would benefit all persons concerned in the north shore area as compared to the other two locations where the economic situation is not in such a depressed state since industry is in existence."

Venturi is a bit more up "It's got to wind in Dean Lake because if it doesn't, there's going to be a revolution on the north shore."

These are desperate people living under desperate conditions. Government should take them seriously.

SUBURBIA

"Hurry, Phyllis, the garbage man is here!"

Could face fines of up to $10,000

Store keepers staying open on Sundays could face fines of up to $10,000. If proposed government legislation to curb Sunday shopping goes into effect shortly.

John MacBeth, solicitor-general, said he thought $10,000 would toughen the law up but stressed the legislation, which might go into effect by Christmas, deals only with Sunday shopping and shopping on unspecified public holidays. The present fine under the Lord's Day Act is $250.

Uniform store hours affecting night shopping is a more controversial issue and will be left with the municipalities to resolve.

The Davis government, which has been studying Sunday shopping and uniform hours for more than two years, would still allow gas stations, drug stores, variety stores and restaurants, vegetable stands and antique markets to stay open.

MacBeth said the government did not want to "close everything up tight" on Sunday.

Ready for trick or treat!

Although he's not the traditional black cat of folklore, this little kitten is on top of the Hallowe'en situation — keeping the lid on the grinning 'Jack-o'-Lantern' and the lady approves. Once a celebration of All Saints' Eve, Hallowe'en has become a night of merriment and trick or treating popular with children of all ages. To many of us, Hallowe'en also signals the end of this year's harvest and the start of the long winter months ahead.

The mentally retarded deserve environment same as others

The mentally retarded deserve as rich and as satisfying an environment as anyone else.

Associations for the mentally retarded have been advocating this philosophy for years, but now the Ministry of Community and Social Services is taking steps to make this a reality.

In April, 1974, new legislation - The Developmental Services Act - was introduced. Following the principles outlined in this legislation, wherever possible, there will eventually be a network of services for the retarded, in their respective communities, rather than within a larger institution or residential facility.

The Ministry has hired twenty district co-ordinators of services for the mentally retarded across Ontario. These persons are initiating Adult Protective Services in conjunction with a variety of service agencies and interested groups.

The major function of the Mental Retardation Co-ordinator is to facilitate planning for services for the mentally retarded by establishing District Mental Retardation Re-orientation Working Groups. The Belleville Group will plan services for Lennox-Addington, Hastings, Northumberland and Prince Edward Counties.

The Belleville District Re-orientation Working Group was formed in early July, with representatives from the Ministry of Community and Social Services, Prince Edward Heights, D'Arcy Place Developmental Centre, Hastings Board of Education, Loyalist Community College, and five persons from the Lake Ontario Regional Council on Mental Retardation.

The task of this working group is to take an inventory of services for the mentally retarded in our four counties; to assess those services; to determine the satisfied and unsatisfied needs; to prioritize development and ultimately to plan a network of effective services for the future.

In the past there have been many funding mechanisms for programmes, yet no system for setting priorities for needs. Now, any proposal for services for the mentally retarded will be channelled through the Committee and, if it fits the overall planning scheme for this geographical area, then letters of recommendation will accompany it to the funding source. This will enable us to move away from fragmentation and duplication of services.

The key to the Ministry's new approach to mental retardation is community involvement. Essentially the Ministry supports the idea that local associations for the mentally retarded will provide service. However, further to that the Ministry is promoting the partnership approach, whereby the Ministry, Associations for the Mentally Retarded, other Ministries and government organizations, and private organizations will together provide for the needs of the mentally retarded.

As outlined in the varied pieces of legislation, the Ministry will attempt to purchase the needed services for the mentally retarded from a variety of community agencies. In this way there will be developed a co-ordinated system of community based services, rather than developing new provincially operated programmes.

The Belleville District Working Group would invite comments and concerns from all interested persons. For further information and clarification, contact the Working Group via the Chairman or the District Co-ordinator at the Ministry of Community and Social Services in Belleville, or your Local Association for the Mentally Retarded.

A community approach has only the momentum introduced by that community.....

Misconceptions are like traditions: It is difficult to discard them.

It is amazing how many people have a misconception of what a farmer is and what he does. Defending the agricultural industry in this country seems to get more difficult instead of easier.

For instance, not long ago I was involved in a discussion with a city-born political writer.

"Don't cry about farmers to me," he said. "They've got more opportunities to cheat the government than any other segment of the population. How many farmers pay income tax? They have all kinds of loopholes in the tax act."

"How many of them pay gasoline tax? I'll bet every one of them can show a loss every year on their operation and then chuckle all the way to the bank with their tax rebate cheques. They aren't producers; they're parasites. They live off you and me as much as the hippie who won't work because he figures the country owes him a living. In fact, the hippie is better for the country than the farmer because the hippie is at least honest about taking the nation for a royal screwing."

In some ways, that political writer was correct.

Some farmers do cheat on their income tax forms, just the same as a great many people such as political writers. Some farmers do cheat on gasoline tax.

But in my experience, most farmers are more honest than the rest of the population. I know a great many farmers who are scrupulous when using their tax-free gasoline. And most of them are using diesel fuel these days anyway and cannot cheat. Try diesel fuel in your car and see how long it lasts.

Most farmers take advantage of tax loopholes simply because those loopholes were put in the laws for their benefit. Why shouldn't they get some tax relief? Every industry I know hires expensive corporation experts to take advantage of every loophole in the acts governing taxes.

Work habits have changed a great deal over the years in the industrial sector. Get as much as you can for as little work as possible. Simply looking for bigger pieces of pie only obscures the fact that what is needed is a bigger pie. Only more productivity can produce a bigger pie. If industrial workers could understand this principle, they wouldn't be demanding bigger pieces of the pie until productivity increases.

And what does this have to do with farming? Let's quote a few figures from a speech given recently by Earl Butz, the U.S. secretary of agriculture when he spoke in Bloomington, Ill.

Output per man hour on farms is three times higher today than it was 20 years ago. Output per man hour in manufacturing is only 1.8 times higher than it was 20 years ago.

And that is because agriculture has not resisted change, contrary to popular opinion. Agriculture has seized technology in a welcome embrace. It has not resisted the application of scientific and technological development as many labor unions have done.

"The farmer doesn't stand by the water cooler bragging about yesterday's accomplishments while today's work goes undone," said Mr. Butz. "He goes to work to produce more than ever before. The family farmer has not learned to punch the clock at 40 hours (or 38 or 34 or 32, I might add). The family farmer does not go on strike to put two men in a tractor cab."

Right on, Earl, baby!

The family farmer cannot go to the barn and say, "Look, Bossy, I'm going away for the weekend so just shut off the milk for two or three days."

Call it the work ethic. Call it old-fashioned, but the answer is simple: We get only what we work for and what we produce. That's all there is in the pie. There isn't any more.

USE FEED TO YOUR ADVANTAGE

Livestock of every kind depend on high quality feeds to carry them through Ontario's winter months. Producers, too, depend on these feeds to obtain the best possible production from their cattle. Home-grown feeds can be made more productive and, in the long run, more profitable, by basing livestock rations on the results of the Feed Analysis Service provided by the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

Catholics turning to NDP

Ontario Catholics voted heavily for the NDP in the recent provincial election indicating "a change in the political orientation of Catholics that will be an object of growing concern," according to a survey reported in the Catholic Register.

Father Edward Jackman who conducted the survey said that in high density Catholic areas "the NDP accumulated 38 per cent of the popular vote, compared with 32 per cent for the Liberals and 30 per cent for the Conservatives."

"In other words," Jackman said, "of every eight Catholics who voted in Ontario, five went to the NDP, two to the Liberals and one to the PC's." He said combining both the Roman and Ukrainian Catholic churches, the Catholic population in the province represents about one-third of the electorate.

NEEDS SPECIAL PARENTS

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Hughie is a small, blonde boy with blue eyes and fair skin — and a problem. He was born with Downs Syndrome (mongolism) which means he will be limited intellectually, though he is developing well now and is considered educable. He also has a heart defect which may require surgery later on.

Scottish in descent, Hughie is 14 months old. He gets around by rolling, which he can do rapidly in either direction. He has not attempted to crawl and his foster mother thinks he won't. She feels that any day now he'll be on his feet and walking. He chatters a lot but it takes imagination to know what he's saying. Hughie eats and sleeps well and he loves to cuddle.

He needs special parents and perhaps older brothers and sisters. The ideal family for this little fellow will appreciate his loving, cheery nature while being realistic about his limited potential and the possibility that his heart condition may affect his life expectancy.

To inquire about adopting Hughie, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

Store your plants properly

If you store your favourite plants properly over the winter, you will likely be assured of strong healthy plants the following year.

"Many plants die after frost occurs," says R.F. Gomme, Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food horticulturist. "However, dahlias, begonias and gladioli will bloom for many years if they are properly cured and stored indoors for the winter."

Dig up dahlias carefully and remove most of the soil from their roots. After cutting off dead stems, air-dry the tubers for two to three days on your lawn. When the dahlia tubers are dried, they can be placed in plastic bags containing air holes, or in a box of dry sand or peat. Store them in a cool, dry location in the basement at about 4.5 degrees C. (40 degrees F.).

"After digging up your tuberous begonias, remove most of the stems as these can cause decay that will spread into the tubers," advises Mr. Gomme. "Clean off the soil and store the begonias in flats or in a bag of dry peat moss."

Gladioli corms should be thoroughly cleaned of soil and their stems removed after they are dug up. Air-dry the corms for several days before placing them in a cool, frost-free area.

The effect of federal anti-inflationary legislation on doctors' fees in Ontario is a matter of conjecture at this time, Dr. D.C. MacNeill, president of the Ontario Medical Association, said today.

He said OMA officers have not yet seen copies of the bill introduced in Parliament Thursday, nor have they any advance information on the precise guidelines that are to be developed by the proposed Anti-Inflation Tribunal.

"Until these guidelines are developed, interpreted and discussed, the OMA will continue the course of action determined by its governing council several months ago," Dr. MacNeill said. "That action is to continue negotiations with the Ontario government on the schedule of OHIP payments for medical services and at the same time to produce a realistic fee schedule that will reflect the value of doctors' services in relation to the cost of other goods and services in society."

He added that the governing council will meet again in December, or earlier if necessary, to consider the profession's economic position in the light of the legislation.

Staying fit

by David Woods

In Ontario, a large number of people are putting their troubles behind them — literally.

In a province with eight million inhabitants, there are an estimated 400,000 new and recurring cases of back pain every year, and the Workmen's Compensation Board deals with some 20,000 claims annually for back problems alone.

One of Ontario's more than 200 orthopedic surgeons describes this as a vast problem — almost an epidemic. Moreover, he thinks that perhaps as much as 80 per cent of so-called low back pain is preventable.

Typically, he says, it accompanies obesity, poor posture and improper lifting. In the obese, the pot belly, with its lack of muscle tone, hangs out and pulls the spine forward in an accentuated arch.

This, added to a steadily decreasing suppleness of the spine that occurs as one gets older, sets the scene for disc problems that cause some, but not all, low back pain. Particularly susceptible to these troubles are manual workers, gardeners, and sportsmen or housewives who engage in sudden movements that put strain on the spine.

Poor posture is a major factor contributing to low back pain. Ideally, people should be taught to sit and stand properly in childhood so they can benefit for a lifetime from good postural habits. It also helps to sleep on a firm mattress offering proper support to the spine. Interestingly, there is less low back pain in certain Eastern countries where people squat to talk or eat — a position that's automatically more natural to the spine than sitting in an armchair.

Lifting the wrong way is another common cause of back pain. The correct way to lift is by bending the legs and not the back. Lifting by stooping over with the arms extended can put many pounds of pressure on the spinal column, inevitably causing damage and pain.

People who wear high-heel and platform-sole shoes can suffer from back pain as a result of spine arching. These people are often seen in doctors' offices and hospital emergency wards for back trouble caused in this way.

The best way to prevent back pain — which, incidentally, can be an extremely painful affliction — is to stay fit and trim and to avoid sudden strain on the spine.

For those prone to the problem, swimming is the best form of exercise because the body weight is supported, while all joints and muscles are exercised. Tennis and golf, by contrast, may aggravate the situation because they involve bending and stooping — and a twisting effect caused by swinging the club or racket.

Persistent back pain requires assessment by a physician to determine what causes the pain, which could be a manifestation of problems other than in the spine. Problems could stem from the kidneys or other internal organs, for instance.

Also, a great deal of back trouble is related to affluence — too much food and/or too much lounging around doing nothing. People who have had gall bladder surgery, or hysterectomies, may suffer from back pain because of the poor muscle tone that often follows these operations. By doing the appropriate exercises after surgery, they may regain muscle tone. But for the most part, back pain is not only one of our commonest health problems, it's also one of the easiest to avoid, if you don't turn your back on it.

BILL SMILEY

The tale of a tooth

By BILL SMILEY

ONE of my recurring dreams is that all my teeth are crumbling, and breaking off like toast. It's a terrible nightmare and I always wake up sweating, jam some fingers into my mouth and groan with relief when I find the teeth are still there, and with pain because I have bitten my fingers.

Today I feel that I'm having a daymare, rather than a nightmare. Last night at dinner, one of my front teeth came away in the midst of a glorious dish of curried chicken. I love curried chicken, and this time my wife had excelled herself, whatever that means, but I am not keen on curried chicken with teeth in it, even when they are my own.

However, this incident did not alarm me, unduly or otherwise. It was only my peg tooth. Every couple of months it comes unscrewed or whatever, I carefully comb it out of the soup or spaghetti, trot down to the dentist with it clutched in my hand; he dusts it off, pops it back in, cements it in place and I'm back in business, stuffing my guts.

But this morning, munching my matins (in this case a ripe yellow pear that tasted, as so much fruit does nowadays, like wet cardboard), I crunched on something hard. Now I know that pears do not have either bones or stones. They have pips. And I knew that this particular pear did not even have a pip, because my loving wife, knowing I was one tooth short from the night before, had disembowelled it. Right, another front tooth broken off, just beside the missing peg.

There was no pain in either case. Just a sense of horror and self-disgust, as I have in the nightmare. It's bad enough to pull a filling when eating toffee, or to snap off a bit of molar when you crunch down on an unsuspected beef bone, or even to have an aching tooth yanked. But to have one break off when eating an over-ripe pear... Yeeecch!

I still wasn't plunged into the depths. Some people go for years with no hair on their heads (and plant articles in magazines suggesting baldies are more virile). Others go all their lives with no brains to speak of. I reckoned I could get through the day without two teeth.

And I did. But by noon, the tip of my tongue was raw and shredded, from thrusting it into that jagged crevice (crevasse?).

But I was coping. And I knew that if I hustled down to my friendly dentist, he would squeeze me in somehow, and patch me up somehow.

I should have known better. From my air force days, I know that disasters always come in threes.

Right in the middle of a brilliant lesson on the use of four-letter words in Victorian literature (such as "legs"), somebody, somehow, rammed a red-hot needle into a tooth in my lower jaw-bone, four teeth and two spaces from the missing ones.

I almost screamed aloud. I screamed silently. The needle was removed. Two minutes later, that red-hot needle plunged into the tooth directly above (I have two teeth on that side, upper and lower, and they are fairly friendly with each other, because there is nobody else around.)

This time I couldn't help it. I emitted, "Huh!", as though someone were driving a stake through my heart. I sagged into my chair, white and shaken.

You can always depend on students. They rally around when things are tough, despite their outward cynicism. They're all heart inside that tough exterior.

"I think the old sod's havenna hardatak. Wuddell we do?"

"Jeez, I hope he hazzen godour tests marked yet, I think I failed mine."

"Maybe he's just godda bad hangover. Slap him in the face a coupla times and he might come around."

I came out of it, of course, and pretended I was enacting Heathcliff's grief in Wuthering Heights. When they looked as though they didn't believe me, I curled back my bottom lip and snarled at them with my new gap-toothed look. They shut up.

When everything cooled down, I realized that my back teeth were merely expressing sympathy for my lost front teeth. It made them lonelier than ever. But they didn't have to shriek their sympathy at such volume.

My whole jaw has been aching for the remainder of this dark day, but the red-hot needle has cooled to a blunt instrument.

As soon as I finish telling you this fascinating episode of a continued story called "One Man's Fangs," I'm going straight to the dentist, and have him rip every tattered remnant of bone out of my head.

Then I am going up to the hospital and have the calcium chipped off my right foot-bone, my gall-bladder removed, just in case it ever acts up, a heart-pacer put in, and three or four pints of blood, in the event of anemia. I might even have my ears pierced, just for the hell of it.

I don't trust the old carcass any more. If my teeth start crumbling when I'm just a broth of a boy, who knows what bits and pieces may fall off when I'm 85, as I fully intend to be?

Learn what it means to pay another $3. a month for hydro

By Don Fredericks

And now folks, thanks to the efforts of Ontario Hydro and the Ontario Energy Board, we bring you live, right here on our page, the world famous accountant's juggling act.

Yes sir, folks, step right up and watch in horror as Hydro and the energy board juggle figures to justify a 27 per cent rate increase in your electricity bills.

Learn what it means to pay another $3 a month beginning in January in order to preserve what the board calls Hydro's "financial integrity."

Find out for yourself, right here on the printed page, why a profit isn't a profit. Discover how the energy board was so convinced by Hydro's act that it's even recommending two per cent more than Hydro asked for.

These and many other exciting facts are contained in the 78 page energy board report entitled: Ontario Hydro Bulk Power Rates for 1976: Part I. every word a gem, every page a masterpiece.

The report is the result of 55 days of hearings and 9,000 pages of transcript, an increase of 14 days and 3,200 pages over the 1974 hearings, almost enough in itself to justify a rate hike.

It all began way back last April when Hydro asked for 30 per cent, and will likely continue early next year when you start reaching a little deeper into your pocketbooks to pay for it. But then, somebody has to pay for those marvelous new offices Hydro has down the road from Queen's Park.

It's hard to imagine that one public body would go so far out of its way to help another public body take our money. And it illustrates once again the built-in arrogance of boards and Crown corporations which often feel responsible to themselves but not the public they're supposed to serve.

But you can bet, and Dennis Timbrell can bet, the suggestion will bother the NDP and Liberals, and in a minority government, even some of the traditional Tory support for big business may waver on this one.

Hydro, never famous for its largesse, reduced its initial 30 per cent request last July after Treasurer Darcy McKeough, in his July 7 mini-budget, said he was appalled by the Hydro proposal. After much soul-searching and public sacrifice, Hydro chairman R.B. Taylor announced the corporation now only wanted 25 per cent next year. Wow!

It seems however that Hydro's sacrifice was just too great for the energy board to bear, so after all those hearings and all those lawyers' speeches, they decided to recommend a 27 per cent hike.

It now goes to cabinet where, if Premier Davis and his new gang have any sense, they'll short-circuit it.

Like midway through the report it says Hydro expects to export $189 million worth of electricity between 1975 and 1977, most of it to the U.S., but... are you ready folks ... that revenues shouldn't really count as revenue because it is "secondary energy" and because it depends upon a "volatile market" Hydro cannot always control it.

They still expect the money mind you, but because it won't count, poor old Hydro will have a deficit of $138 million over those three years and because of that our rates are going up. What about that money from export sales you say? Couldn't that wipe out the deficit and turn it into a $51 million profit? Ah, foolish people. Don't you know that money is what the accountants like to call "extraordinary" revenue? And don't you know Hydro and the board believe that "as a fundamental policy Ontario Hydro should recover from its Ontario customers, revenues at least equal to the total costs of serving them?" How could Hydro build new offices if it kept using its revenues for heaven's sake?

Having established that principle, the report then goes on to say that export money should "be applied against any revenue deficiencies that may occur from year to year and to assist in financing the expansion of the system," a useless, ingoluted piece of fluff if there ever was one.

On the one hand the board says that money doesn't count and Hydro will have deficits, on the other hand it says that money does count and should be used to offset these deficits, except there's the inviolate principle of Hydro's Ontario customers paying the whole shot, so it doesn't really count after all.

So they recommend an extra two per cent which, according to Hydro, will wipe out its estimated 1976 deficit of $16 million (still not counting export sales of course) and, if cabinet approves, you and I will end up paying for this madness.

It will be interesting to see Part II of the report, in the meantime, we'll just have to carry on living better electrically.

HEES ON CONTROLS:

Making it work won't be easy

Making the federal government's attack on inflation work "will not be an easy task" according to Northumberland MP George Hees.

The former minister of trade and commerce in the Diefenbaker government told this newspaper that "many changes will be necessary as unseen difficulties appear in the months ahead."

He said, however, that for the past three years it has been clear that government action is necessary to curb inflation and stop the cost of living from rising at a steadily accelerating rate.

"In February, 1973, the Conservative Opposition in Parliament urged the government to introduce a policy of price and income restraints, as a means of curbing inflation. As you know, the government refused to follow this suggestion, and price and income restraints became the main issue in the general election a year ago.

"Now," Mr. Hees continued, "the government has finally come to realize that price and income restraints are necessary, if the cost of living is to be brought under control."

"While the government's plan differs in many respects from the plan which the Conservative Opposition proposed nearly three years ago, it has the same objective in mind, and must be given every chance to succeed.

"Every Canadian should get behind this plan, and in the national interest, help it to succeed in every way he or she can."

OTTAWA and Small Business

Battling monopoly power

By KENNETH McDONALD
Ottawa does news. What Ottawa does from day to day is given the flavour of urgency. What matters, however, is what Ottawa does from year to year. One thing is plain: Canada's economy is being changed from a system of free competitive enterprise and free democratic institutions to one of arbitrary rule in which the power is shared by monopolies in business, government and labour.

Global corporations maintain profit levels by transferring cash reserves, earnings, production and jobs around the world. Government pay scales -- including those of MPs -- set the pace for organized labour. All three groups have the power to protect themselves against the inflation they cause. Inflation's victims are the farmers, the unorganized workers and the small business community which together amount to some 60 per cent of all working Canadians.

The same forces that are destroying free competitive enterprise are also destroying our democratic institutions. Rule changes and a mushrooming bureaucracy are destroying parliamentary control of spending.

Business monopolies set prices because of market dominance and by controlling the production process from raw material through manufacture to retailing. Labour monopolies fix the price of wages through compulsory unionism and the collective blackmail of the strike.

Of four alternative economic systems, laissez-faire capitalism tends to concentrate power in the hands of a few. So does a socialist system of state control. Regulated enterprise so common in utilities, the professions and areas of private business often works against the consumer by restricting new competition. The bureaucracy and the paper-work burden create costs borne by all Canadians.

By contrast, free competitive enterprise, the socio-economic philosophy of the Canadian Federation of Independent Business, is based on the formation of new businesses, breaking up monopoly power and rewarding individual effort and initiative.

In 1975, Canada's is a mixed economy, but the trend is towards the increasing growth and power of large private and public bureaucracies. That trend can be reversed by restoring power to individual Canadians and, through them, to their elected representatives. It will not happen overnight. But a continual movement in the direction of free competitive enterprise is essential, not just for a healthy economy, but for the preservation of the traditional checks and balances on our democratic institutions.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business

Davis all smiles now!

By Don Fredericks

When Premier Davis stepped off his chartered airplane after his meeting with Prime Minister Trudeau he wouldn't comment on our fearless leader's anti-inflation plans.

But he was smiling, and no wonder. What it does is take him off the hook from some potentially nasty showdowns with doctors, teachers and civil servants, and makes his 1974 support of tough wage and price controls look pretty good now.

In a statement, Davis promised his government would co-operate fully with the proposals to limit wage hikes to eight per cent and urged all the folks to do the same.

His statement stayed away from any cheap but easy shots at Trudeau -- the old "Ha! Ha! I told you so" trick -- and instead concentrated on the seriousness of the problem and promised unflinching co-operation.

Smart politics that. Now when the teachers come looking for their 40 per cent and the doctors for their 35 to 50 per cent and the civil servants for whatever it is they're concocting, he can say "Sorry gang, times are tough, but old Pierre has put the lid on and for heaven's sake don't blame me."

"If these proposals are to be effective," says the preem, "they will require active co-operation not only from the provinces but the people of Canada as a whole."

Be assured Ontario will provide this co-operation and I take this opportunity to urge every citizen of this province to practise the self-restraint on which the success of this program will rest."

He went on to say that we have a common goal to overcome the debilitating effects of inflation, "and if we set our minds to the task and are firm in our resolve I am confident we can meet the challenge." At that point, bugles can play and flags raised and you can all join in for a chorus of We (and Bill) Shall Overcome.

Davis can point to many of the proposals, such as a cutback on the civil service, and say he's already doing that in Ontario -- he cut his salary by five per cent as well.

But one of the more interesting aspects as it affects Ontario was Trudeau's somewhat vague references to trying the guidelines to rent increases. With Davis facing the dizzy prospects of being forced to clamp down on rent gougers or be turfed out of office by Liberals and New Democrats, perhaps that reference may turn out to be handy in helping him smooth over relations with some of the traditional Tory friends, i.e. big landlords and big developers.

In any event, Ontario, which houses most of the big manufacturers and most of the major unions, is in a key position to help this plan work, a grand opportunity for Davis to place, or appear to place, duty to country ahead of personal political considerations, naturally banking on future dividends from the grateful masses.

Newly-elected NDP Marion Bryden, an economist, said the program won't do much to help those people already way behind in the economic picture and she wonders if a control on professional fees means simply a control on, say, a doctor's fee schedule or an actual control on his income. She points out that a percentage basis increase is unfair.

She adds that the unions still maintain that the majority of the increases they've received are "still catching up with price increases," something I suppose all New Democrats are forced to say, but don't try to tell that to the guy who just paid a plumber for a house call.

Liberal James Breithaupt, the party's House leader and possible leadership candidate, says it shows Trudeau is "certainly serious about the whole situation."

He says there was a "sense of disquiet" during the provincial election that the federal Liberals were not showing the kind of leadership people thought they should "which, of course, didn't help us any," and perhaps Trudeau's latest moves will help dispel that. Perhaps.

Basically, the opposition parties are in an awkward position on this kind of thing. They can't really dump on it too hard but if they say too many nice things about the government they lie awake nights tossing and turning in agony.

The following day Premier Davis opened up more and appointed a cabinet committee to review and report on the implications to Ontario of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau's anti-inflation plan.

Following a special cabinet meeting, Davis said Treasurer Darcy McKeough will head the committee composed of Management Board Chairman James Auld, Attorney-General Roy McMurtry, Health Minister Frank Miller, Labor Minister Bette Stephenson, Energy Minister Dennis Timbrell, Education Minister Tom Wells and Housing Minister John Rhodes.

Davis said his government would follow the 10 per cent wage guidelines for public servants outlined by Trudeau for federal employees.

He also hinted the 10 per cent figure could be applied to rent increases, although he said a means has to be found to encourage private investment in the rental housing market.

The Premier said Ottawa officials told him the wage and price policy would be in effect for three years and "I want to see it work...inflation is a major problem in this country...and while no one likes this sort of approach governments have to deal with it as they see fit."

Davis reiterated his commitment to institute some form of rent controls, adding he is waiting for details of the federal plan to see if Ottawa is planning a nation-wide control program on rents.

He said the wage guidelines will definitely apply to civil servants, doctors and teachers, and he hopes the people of Ontario generally will co-operate with the federal program.

Davis said some of the problems could have been solved if the federal recommendations had been instituted a few months earlier, but said this is no time to be critical... "we've asked the federal government for leadership and they've given it."

Pentagon planning incredible

At a time when most people are wondering whether or not they can balance next month's household budget, it seems incredible that the Pentagon is planning to send more than $100 billion in the coming year on defense needs. Defence Secretary James Schlesinger has submitted a budget of $105 billion, and the Pentagon says that within one decade these costs will double to more than $200 billion.

The standard answers given by military men when questioned on the mushrooming costs of armies, warships, bombers and nuclear weapons have become clichés: national security demands that weapons must be of the best and latest design; armies must always be ready to repel a foe; and, what's more, the defense industries give jobs to countless millions around the world. And it must be remembered that the United States is not alone in spending many billions on arms. The Soviet Union, the European powers, and now the oil-rich nations are equally guilty of contributing to the arms race.

There is no doubt that the men and women who help to build nuclear submarines, conventional bombs, machine guns and intercontinental ballistic missiles with multiple warheads get paid for their labors. They contribute to the economy in the same way as other consumers. But would it not be wiser to have them engaged in more productive pursuits?

The super powers bear a special responsibility. They lead the way in the arms race, and other nations - who really can't afford to spend these astronomic sums on nuclear weapons - try to follow their example. And when they can't acquire nuclear weapons, they often go overboard buying conventional military equipment.

It is simple to rebut the argument that a nation must stand guard at all times with the latest weapons. In the case of the great powers, who are the worst offenders in squandering their people's wealth on arms, most generals are convinced that nuclear and thermonuclear weapons will never be used. They realize a nuclear war could destroy mankind.

How much longer will the rich nations waste hundreds of billions on arms they can't use? How much longer will they build up their armed forces instead of trying to build up both foodstocks and good will in the poorer lands? The rich nations should straighten out their priorities if they are genuine in their stated desire for a peaceful world.

Family Physician BY DR. JAMES G. PRICE

Q. I saw a TV show the other night in which goose eggs were implanted or imprinted with the voice of a human being which in this case was a college girl. After hatching, the baby geese recognized this voice and followed the girl around like it would have it's own mother. Is there anything like this in humans?

A. Yes, but at this time we know less about the "imprinting" of a human baby than we do about the same thing in baby geese. Current studies are underway which seem to demonstrate that the first few hours of life are a very important time in which a mother-baby relationship is established which may carry on for years. There are even studies which indicate that the way a new mother acts when she first sees her baby - and especially the way in which she holds her head - may be a tipoff to how well the child may grow, even whether it is likely to end up as a battered child! Recognition of the importance of these early relationships has helped to foster the ideas of rooming in, fathers in the delivery room, etc.

Q. Can babies hear before birth?

A. This is pretty hard to prove definitely, but there is very strong evidence that if they can't hear, they can at least "feel" in the general sense. A Japanese physician recorded the sounds inside a pregnant woman - her heartbeat, placental sounds, and ordinary digestive sounds. A tape of this recording played to a nursery of crying newborns quickly settled almost all of them into a peaceful sleep. This likely indicates that babies hear to some degree before birth.

Q. Is it true that the sex of an unborn baby can be told by how the mother is carrying the baby?

A. Despite many old wives' tales to the contrary, this isn't true, not can the sex be predicted by swinging a coin over the abdomen. Examination of cells from the amniotic fluid do provide a highly accurate means of predicting sex, and a recent report indicated that this same thing may be possible by the examination of cells from the mother's cervix. Knowing ahead of time is particularly important in those instances where children of one sex can be expected to develop a fatal inherited disease while children of the other sex will escape it.

What was the real reason that Elvis Presley canceled his recent stint in Las Vegas and — do you think he will return there soon? Susan Moss, Kansas City, Mo.

The real reason was the one given — Presley's health. He is obviously having emotional as well as physical problems. He is still very much overweight and that naturally tires him. He has never been the same since ex-wife Priscilla left him. Will he return? Well, he's lost a lot of fans due to his last outing in Vegas which was so bad many said he should have paid them for seeing him. So — I'd say if he's smart he'll take a full year off to shape up."

Whatever happened to that "red-hot" romance between Richard Chamberlain and Taryn Power (the late actor Tyrone's daughter)?

Richard says simply: "It broke up without reason. She's very young (he's 38), and I believe with her talent and beauty she will be a very big star, and since she's only 21 she should concentrate on her career. But we're still close friends because if you really love and understand someone, how can you become bitter when it's over?" By the way, Taryn's sister, Romina Power, has just had her first LP released on which she not only sings (in Italian), but composed most of the songs.

Would you ask Loretta Swit, who is Major Hot Lips Houlihan on "MASH" what she thinks of the part? C. J., San Jose, Cal.

"I really don't approve of Hot Lips," the actress, who is currently also starring in the feature, "Race With the Devil," says. "She's a bitch. She's uptight, officious and a hypocrite. But she did make it possible for me to live in the Hollywood Hills, and that sure as hell beats living in Passaic, N.J."

Please settle a dispute. I say Barbra Streisand was born in Brooklyn. A friend insists she is foreign. A.G., Houston, Tex.

Barbra told her first interviewer that she was born in Madagascar and grew up in Rangoon. However, investigation proved she never left Brooklyn until she was 15.

Now that they have reconciled, what do you think the chances are for Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton to remain together? C. George, Altoona, Pa.

I would say excellent. In fact when they parted I predicted that there would never be a permanent replacement in either of their lives because their love is too deep and they've gone through too much together. Liquor broke them up but both have licked that problem — and their separation only convinced them they couldn't live apart.

Please settle a bet. I believe that Stevie Wonder is the highest paid recording artist today, but friends insist Elton John or Paul McCartney holds that honor. Who is right? L. Gillis, Tampa, Fla.

You are Stevie, the most honored American record artist of the '70's has a contract giving him the highest guarantee — $13 million for the next seven years — in the history of the record industry. Wonder will receive a royalty rate of over 20 per cent on all sales. The usual superstar rate is 15 per cent tops. But despite this great Motown deal and his 10 Grammy awards, Wonder says: "The biggest award I ever received was on April 7, 1975 the date my daughter, Aisha, was born."

For And About Teenagers

THIS WEEK'S LETTER: I'm 14 years old and I have a very personal problem. It's my mother. She hasn't told me the facts of life yet. All my other friends have been told. I'm sort of close to my mom but I could never bring myself to asking her. Should I have been told by now? What should I do?

OUR REPLY: First of all, don't assume so much. We doubt if all your friends know as much as you think they do, especially if they're your age. Basically, if you're concerned about something, ask your mom. She loves you and wants you to know everything you need to know. Communicate with her. Share your feelings. Ask her the same questions you've asked us. She's the one who will give you the right answers. Make certain she is clear about what you want to know. Don't be afraid to ask her about anything. Just be honest. The truth is you already know most of the answers. Mom will just clear things up for you. That's what moms are for!

Because of the volume of letters to this column, requests for personal replies cannot be accommodated. Editorial panel selects for weekly use, letter which best represents questions and/or comments from readers. FOR & ABOUT TEENAGERS, BOX 639, FRANKFORT, KENTUCKY 40601

Chocolate Crunch

In 1968 enough chocolate was consumed in the United States to provide more than 20 pounds of candy for every man, woman, and child in this country. This year the national average will be closer to 17 pounds. Chocolate production was off by 4 percent in 1974. In the first three months of 1975 the amount of cocoa beans converted into chocolate dropped 34.5 percent.

Insomnia

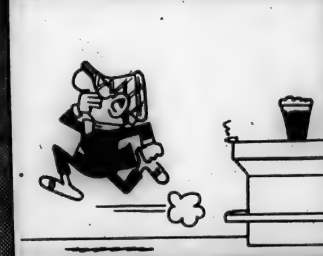

Insomnia can't be cured with pills, dark curtains, sheep-counting or other such devices, a California psychiatrist contends. Increased daytime exercise, regular bedtime schedule, pre-dinner relaxation, regular and satisfying coitus, and a ban on naps and caffeine after mid-day are the best bets to get you to sleep at night.

THE GOOD WORD from the Bible

Truly, truly, I say to you, the hour is coming and now is, when the dead will hear the voice of the Son of God, and those who hear will live. For as the father has life in himself, so he has granted the Son also to have life himself.

Jesus And The Children

Then were there brought unto him little children, that he should put forth his hands on them, and pray: and the disciples rebuked them.

But Jesus said, Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven.

And he laid his hands on them, and departed thence.

Madoc firemen move

The Madoc fire department has moved to new quarters.

The firemen vacated the old fire hall on St. Lawrence St. W last Monday, leaving behind the home of the dept. since 1927. The new fire hall is located on Seymour St. E., just behind Kramp's BP Station.

The firemen were busy last Monday morning moving the equipment, trucks and the old siren. Also moved was the old bell that was used as the alarm before the new sirens came into use.

The firemen have now put into use a system where certain members of the 22-man department have a pocket-size "beeper" system; which they will carry with them at all times. When an alarm is sounded the units will send out a beeping signal alerting its carrier.

A social evening was enjoyed in the comfortable family room of the Bateman home, after which a lovely lunch was served. A 30th Anniversary Cake, appropriately decorated in white and yellow with a school bus in the centre, was served at the conclusion of the lunch.

A kitchen clock and a coffee set were presented to the happy couple by Mrs. Toni Adams, with many good wishes for a continued happy married life.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman were married in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Madoc, by the Rev. Wm. G. Robinson, and their attendants were Madeline Bird, Shirley Pigden and Dean Shaw.

Mrs. Bateman is the former Arlie Bird, daughter of Mrs. Alice Bird of Madoc, and the late Harry Bird. Burrell is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bateman of Madoc.

The Madoc detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police last week reported five accidents, with damages amounting to $3,375 and two persons injured. Two charges were laid as a result of the mishaps.

Five thefts were reported, six break and enters, three assault complaints, four of wilful damage.

One person has been charged with impaired driving, six have been charged under the Liquor Control Act, and one person has been charged with narcotics. One person has been reported missing.

Approximately 31 other occurrences have been investigated by the detachment, including trespassers, cattle complaints and erratic driving.

Find body 72-yr-old

The body of a 72-year-old Millbridge man, missing since the first week of September, was found early Sunday afternoon in a bush area at Millbridge, one-half mile from Highway 62.

An autopsy performed in Toronto determined that Camille St. Cyr had died of natural causes.

The body was badly decomposed and positive identification had been delayed, according to provincial police.

All searches for the man had been unsuccessful until neighbours banded together Sunday to continue the effort.

He had been living alone at the time of his disappearance but has a wife and son believed to be living in Quebec.

Sour dough bread

The third meeting of the Crookston 4-H club, Let's Make Bread, was held recently at the home of Mrs. Mavis Blackburn.

The members were to bring a picture of bread.

In the fourth meeting the 15 members present took part in making different shapes of buns, later sampled by the ladies.

Meeting five saw the members taking a loaf of sour dough bread which they made at home.

dinner marks 50

A family dinner and open house was held Saturday at St. Bartholomew's Anglican Church, Bannockburn, in honor of the 50th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Derry.

All but five grandchildren were present for a turkey dinner served by the ladies of the church.

Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Bert Derry and family, Barrie; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Derry and family, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Max Derry and family, Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Ashe and family, Breslau.

Richard Ashe was unable to attend being stationed at Cornwallis, N.S. with the armed forces. Jo Derry, of Winnipeg, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ashe, Kitchener, and Mr. and Mrs. Terry Madden, Belleville, were also unable to attend. Robert Ashe Jr. was unable to attend the dinner but came later in the day.

Seasonal weirs are removed

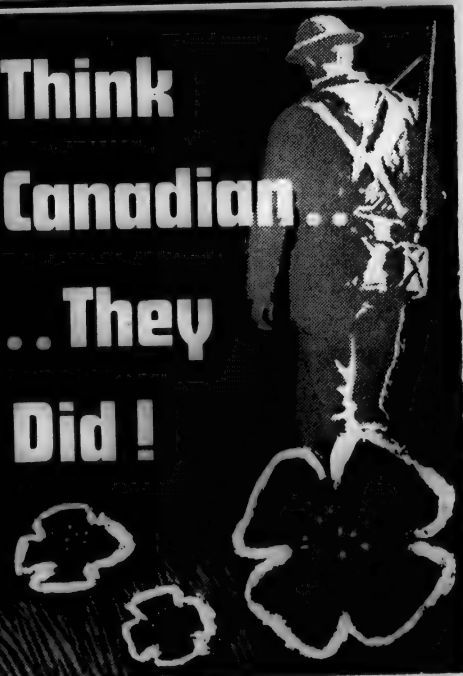

The present low levels of Moira Lake and Stoco Lake have been caused by the removal of the seasonal weirs at Downey's Rapids and Caton's Weir, according to the Moira River Conservation Authority.

The weirs were removed in anticipation of Hurricane Eloise dropping a large amount of rain on the Moira River Watershed. The area did not, however, receive any flood rains but the after-effect has caused very low levels in the two lakes.

The authority said it wished to assure cottage owners, fishermen and other users of the two lakes that the weirs will be placed in again in 1976 and that this year, hopefully, has been a freak year for such low water levels.

Further inquiries should be directed to John Johnston, Resources Manager, Moira River Conservation Authority, Box 68, Cannifton (968-8688).

THROUGH WHICH LENS DO YOU SEE OUR TOWN?

As you see it...

Peculiar days with troubled climate

By Bruce West

These are peculiar days, when the troubled economic climate of our own country and many others makes it more difficult for the average person to decide what to do in order to protect or increase hard-earned savings. Being no expert economist myself, I'm as puzzled as the next man or woman.

Should we invest in some stocks? Or hide the money at home in a sock? No matter what we choose, it often seems, an expert shows up from somewhere urging us to beware. There are even people who bought gold a while ago and are now nervously wondering about the wisdom of it.

But of one thing we can be reasonably certain and that is that if we can't have faith and confidence in the basic stability of the country in which we live, we can't have faith in anything else in it.

That's one reason why I believe Canada Savings Bonds are sound investments. It seems to me that if we can safeguard our own spare money and at the same time strengthen the economy of our country, we are surely helping to protect ourselves both collectively and in the individual sense.

Usually, when we place some of our money in someone else's hands, we receive a piece of paper which vouches for the transaction. Personally, I feel that the name of the Government of Canada on such an important document gives me an extra feeling of security, even in today's hectic and sometimes baffling world. In fact, because of today's hectic and baffling world.

One of the several handy features of Canada Savings Bonds is that they may be purchased on the instalment plan through regular payroll deductions. By using this method we can create at least one deduction in which we are not sorrowfully bidding farewell to part of our weekly or monthly salary before we even get our hands on it. The money, in other words, is going from us to us - which is a refreshingly attractive route, when you think of it.

The average annual yield to maturity of the 1975-76 series Canada Savings Bonds works out to 9.38 per cent over a nine-year period. They are cashable at any time for their full face value, plus earned interest. And don't forget that we are now allowed to earn up to $1,000. worth of interest during any calendar year without having to pay any income tax on it.

There are now 5,000 participating firms and other concerns across the country who are making it possible to purchase Canada Savings Bonds through payroll deductions. The bonds are available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000 and $25,000.

It's truly amazing how money not firmly earmarked for special commitments of various kinds has a way of sneakily flying out of the window, so furtively and mysteriously that we often wonder, at the end of the year, where on earth it ever went.

When you sign up for a Canada Savings Bond from payroll deductions, you'll certainly know where the money went. It went to you. And you'll be mighty glad it got there.

McKinnon, Richard Moynes, Garnet Pigden, Marlene Preston, Betty Reid, James Tompkins, Alida Tuinman, Deborah Van Heukelom and Margaret Woolfrey. Valedictorian was Miss Sharon McCrae, who is now attending the University of Waterloo.

"Mr. Chairman, Teachers, Fellow Graduates, Guests:

The calendar tells us that it is five years since we first entered this school. I think we all have to agree that these past five years have slipped by faster than we ever expected. When we first started at Centre Hastings, this evening was but a date in the far future.

Some people say that to remember the past is to live without regard to the future. Now that our high school days are over, we can see that this statement is not completely true. We can now see that the past is the key to the future. Things that we have done or experienced are what effect our behaviour in the days to come. We can now see that the past is the key to the future. Things that we have done or experienced are what effect our behaviour in the days to come. We can judge the values of our experiences at Centre Hastings in many ways: through athletics, academics, school activities, or through socializing.

We have all participated in these areas during our high school career. Sometimes we may have emphasized one area a little too much and neglected some of the others. At least this is what some of our teachers may have felt when we were more concerned with socializing than we were with our studies. But I don't think anyone regrets our days of celebrations.

Through our experience we develop into individuals with our own ideals and goals. What would we be like if we conformed to everyone else's opinions?

Sometimes we may feel that it is easier to conform than to use our own brains and stand up to what we personally think. We can even see some examples of students submitting to teachers. Sometimes it seems that if we don't agree with what they want, then we will lose out, so students adhere to their teachers views so they won't lose any marks.

I don't mean to say that the only people that we can conform to are teachers. This also can occur with our peers, so we can be accepted into a group, parents, the media, etc. For example some advertisements make it look that if you don't drink a certain brand of beverage that you'll never be a "somebody".

Really it seems to me that if you adhere to these advertisements you'll never be a "somebody". - You'll just be another machine with no personality, living for others and not at all for yourself.

Many students feel, as do many people, that the judgment of others is more important than what they feel and think about themselves and their world.

This doesn't mean that we should become selfish and think that we are the only ones on this earth that count. This isn't true. But we are all unique and each have our own mind.

Tonight, we have received our graduation diplomas. Although this is a happy occasion it also can make you feel a little sad. Graduation has connected with it the idea of completion....our high school days are over. But if we think of tonight as our commencement, we remember that this is our start or our beginning. The past five years have represented the sorting out part of our life when we discovered who we are and what we want for the future. Centre Hastings helped to prepare us and we will always remember C.H. some more fondly than others...but the identification will still be there.

We, as graduates, will always identify with each other. Our experiences here have molded us into a group - 1975, and it looks like a vintage year.

It is indeed an honour to have represented you tonight, and I thank you

County, and by Trustee Kenneth Lattue, on behalf of the Hastings County Board of Education.

The Invocation and Benediction were pronounced by Rev. John Peters of Marmora.

After welcoming the large audience of parents and friends of the graduates, graduates and teachers, Principal Robert Henderson spoke for a few minutes on a new program which will change the focus of education over the course of the next two or three years.

The new concept is called "Learning Outcomes" and is an extension of the white paper issued by Director of Education Eric Runacres earlier this year. Up till now teachers have been outlining on a day-to-day basis what they will be teaching. Now teachers will concentrate on what they can expect children to do in a day and over the course of a term.

Mr. Henderson said that the 1300 teachers in Hastings County were involved in studies of the new concept during the two days of Professional Development last week.

C.H.S.S. band played for the processional and contributed other numbers during the program.

A reception and graduation dance followed the ceremony.

Cheque distribution plan is set up

The Workmen's Compensation Board has again made arrangements for area cheque distribution throughout Ontario during the mail strike.

The Board will operate courier service, which will deliver cheques, and collect mail, for Belleville: Hastings & Prince Edward Counties to Four Seasons Hotel, 11 Bay Bridge Road Belleville, Ontario.

Payments should arrive on the day that they would normally be received by mail. Claimants should telephone 968-3441-3442 first, to ensure that their cheque has arrived. When collecting their payment, claimants will be required to produce identification showing their claim number.

The Workmen's Compensation Board sincerely regrets the inconvenience to claimants, especially to those people who will need to travel a considerable distance. With an average of 4,000 cheques issued by the W.C.B. every day, it is impossible to arrange individual deliveries.

MARMORA - As a result of the problem they have been having with radon gas in their home, Ted and Sylvia Galloway of Deloro have been much sought after by newspapers, radio and television to present their case.

As Mrs. Galloway said, "The media has shown more interest in our problem than the authorities. We are still waiting for word on whether to move out. You just can't help worrying about it."

A press release by the Atomic Energy Control Board on October 20, of their findings at the abandoned site of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company and at the Galloway home adjacent to the site was the first public announcement.

The story was then covered by Belleville radio station CJBQ and two area dailies, The Peterborough Examiner and The Belleville Intelligencer, with follow-up stories.

As news of the Galloway's problem spread by Canadian Press, they were contacted and agreed to be interviewed by well-known Barbara Frum for the program "As it Happens" on Radio Canada.

The next day CJOH in Ottawa called and then came to Deloro to interview Mr. Galloway for their late news report and Thursday's newscast at 6 p.m.

Also on Thursday the director of "Take Thirty" TV program asked for permission to visit the Galloways and tape a show on Monday last with Paul Soles, well known co-host on that show and star of "This is the Law" show.

Deloro residents must be very blasé about visiting celebrities for no one turned out to see Mr. Soles nor the film crew which consisted of David Robinovitch, producer, Eric Lindgren, sound technician and Leo Zourdoumins, cameraman. The crew arrived before two o'clock and didn't finish up until 5:30. Mr. Soles arrived in his Porsche about two, after completing a show in Toronto.

It is not known at this time when the show will be aired. Mr. Robinovitch promised to let the Galloways know but it may be short notice.

Paul Soles looked and acted like a friendly neighbour who had just dropped in for a visit. Some of the interview was carried out around the Galloways' kitchen table, later moving outside to take in shots

A total of 88 children were entertained nightly by "Uncle" Bill Morrison and his puppet Arnold in the Madoc town hall.

Friday night was parents' night and saw Uncle Bill speaking to the audience on the meaning of the quote: "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and Thou Shalt Be Saved." Refreshments were served at the close of the show.

Manager Doug Wood Sr. and Coach Jack Douglas, along with Captain Doug Wood Jr. display the trophies that the Pee-Wees won as O.R.S.A. Champions and the Trent Valley League Champions.

HE'S A HAPPY BOY

TODAY'S CHILD

BY HELEN ALLEN

THE TORONTO SUN SYNDICATE

Wally is 18 months old — healthy, strong and big for his age. A handsome, happy fellow with beautiful dark eyes, black curly hair and dark skin. Wally almost never cries.

He used to be a pretty placid fellow, calmly accepting everything that happened, but recently he's been having his own ideas about things and can be quite determined when he's made up his mind.

Wally is a sound sleeper — right through the night — and has a fine appetite. He wants to eat whatever the rest of his foster family is having.

Active and inquisitive, Wally has become quite adventurous in exploring his foster home. No longer is he content to stay in his playpen — he wants to be up and doing.

This little fellow needs a warm, loving family who will give him lots of attention. Since he is used to older children, it is hoped there will be big brothers or sisters in Wally's adoption home.

To inquire about adopting Wally, please write to Today's Child, Ministry of Community and Social Services, Box 888, Station K, Toronto M4P 2H2. In your letter please tell something of your present family and your way of life.

For general adoption information, consult your local Children's Aid Society.

Deceptive business practices hurt everyone.

This is what Ontario is doing to protect you.

We have a new law in Ontario called the Business Practices Act. Its purpose is to prevent unfair business practices in sales to the public. Here's what the law does:

- it prohibits false, misleading or deceptive tactics in the sale of products and services.
- it prohibits too high prices, unfair contracts and high-pressure sales methods.
- helps people get their money back if a seller has taken unfair advantage of them.

The Province of Ontario wants you to get your money's worth when you buy. Expensive items such as cars and homes require a lot of thought, so the Government of Ontario has prepared some simple booklets that tell you what to watch out for when you buy, explaining the do's and don'ts about:

- "Buying a Car"
- "Buying Real Estate"
- "Buying a Condominium"
- "Getting a Mortgage"

You can also get a booklet called "Balance in the Marketplace — The Consumer's Guide to the Business Practices Act."

If you would like a copy of any of these booklets, or if you wish to report an unfair business practice, write now to:

but almost no progress

By Don Fredericks

Almost five years after the spectacular announcement of a $35 million Ontario government anti-pollution lawsuit against Dow Chemical, the case has made almost no progress.

Critics now say the government would be quite satisfied politically if the case were tied up in legal tape forever or quietly resolved out of court.

The suit, initiated in March, 1971, asked $25 million for Lake St. Clair commercial fishermen whose business was destroyed by commercial mercury pollution, and $10 million to clean up tons of dumped mercury from the bottom of Lake St. Clair and associated waters. Dow operated a caustic soda plant on the lake which used tons of mercury for many years.

The Ontario Government announced in 1971 the case would be considered a landmark, establishing a badly needed precedent against industrial polluters. Ministry of the environment and attorney-general department officials said other large-scale pollution damage suits would not be initiated until the Dow case was resolved.

Yet the Dow case has still not reached court and sources close to the case say it may never see court -- and if it does a decision cannot be expected for at least another five years.

Officially, the attorney-general's department considers the case as before the courts and refuses to discuss it or its slow progress. Deputy Attorney-General Frank Callaghan says the Dow litigation "one of the most complex ever undertaken by the Ontario government", involves thousands of documents and tortuous details.

However, in the same period of time, the Manitoba government took a similar case all the way to the Supreme Court of Canada. It lost on a constitutional technicality but Manitoba officials said recently the fight isn't dead yet.

The Canadian Environmental Law Association has fought for accelerated go government action since the beginning of 1972.

John Swaigen, one of the association's resident lawyers, said "it is simply a case of one government being serious in the suit and another not being serious." He said the Ontario suit was not being pursued with particular vigor.

Swaigen said it is important the case reach court quickly and not be settled quietly on the side. Environmental law is badly lacking legal precedents which allow subsequent lawsuits to proceed quickly against polluters.

Unless Dow is ordered to repair the damage, Swaigen pointed out, it will be the Ontario taxpayer who will ultimately clean up the mess and put the fishermen back in business. The government has already made substantial loans to the affected people to allow them to make their payments for boats and equipment which might otherwise be repossessed.

The Dow case is now in the stage of the litigation where the government and Dow are exchanging documents and questioning expert witnesses.

In July 1971, then-attorney general Allan Lawrence accused Dow of trying to stall the case. Dow has thrown up virtually every conceivable challenge to the lawsuit forcing rulings on nearly 20 questions by officers of the Supreme Court of Ontario. Many of these took more than a year to resolve.

Meanwhile, the Lake St. Clair fishing industry remains at a standstill. No improvement can be expected until the Dow case is solved.

Swaigen said Ontario's attempts at producing effective anti-pollution law lag far behind other areas such as Michigan. The state recently enshrined the public's right to a clean environment in new laws which also force polluters to prove they did not cause environmental damage rather than asking the government to prove they did.

"We wouldn't be in this mess now if we had the Michigan act," Swaigen said.

The CELA criticized the government's Environmental Assessment Act for excluding provisions for a judicial review of decisions made by the politically appointed assessment board.

This board is designed to examine project plans which might endanger the environment. Swaigen said it is common practice for Ontario government agencies to insulate themselves from review by the courts.

The final version of the assessment act was amended 32 times after the CELA termed the first-reading version "worse than useless."

In October, 1775, King George expressed his growing concern about the situation in the American colonies to the English

Parliament. He said: "The rebellious was now levied...is manifestly carried on for the purpose of establishing an independent empire."

Because of the beauty of our land: the majesty of the mountains; the far horizons of the prairies; the sweep of the shorelines; the abundance of the farm lands; the sparkle of ten thousand lakes and rivers...even the forbidding barrens of the North.

Because of the rich diversity of our people. We are not a melting pot, but a unique union of minorities: each of us proud of his origins but prouder still to be a Canadian.

Because we are a multilingual country: two basic languages and - woven through the fabric, and enriching it - the sound of other tongues, all united in praise of "the true North, strong and free."

Because our country was not born in nor does it live in violence. We harbour no hate, we covet no territory, we envy no other people.

Because our heritage confers such bounty. Our laws and our traditions have been built on faith in God and man, on an unflagging love of freedom, and on respect for the rights of others. Our physical resources have not yet been fully contemplated much less measured.

Because in Canada the operative word is Tomorrow, not yesterday. Our greatness rests not only in our history but in our future. Our destiny has yet to be fashioned.

Because my pride in Canada does not cause me to respect other nations or other peoples less. I am a Canadian, yes; I am also a citizen of the planet earth and a brother of every other man.

Snow houses seem purely a Canadian invention as they are absent from the Alaskan variants of Eskimo and Thule culture.

Tuktoyaktuk, in the Northwest Territories, is built on ground permanently frozen to a depth of more than 1,000 feet.

In the Yukon Territory, the total labour force is about 10,000; approximately 1,300 of this number are directly employed by the five mining operations in the Territory.

OTTAWA and Small Business

The paperwork jungle

By KENNETH McDONALD

Ottawa says business won't be hurt by that 10-cent a gallon raise in the federal gasoline tax because it can be reclaimed. Which just shows how remote the mandarins are from reality. How much will it cost to keep track of the extra tax? What happens to cash flow while waiting to get it back? How many new forms will have to be filled out in how many copies? What about the extra costs to suppliers? They, too, have to pay more every day so how do they hold their prices?

Dr. Donner, the economist, calculates the extra 10-cent tax, plus the $1.50 rise in the price of crude oil (most of which is tax), plus the rise in natural gas rates, will bump the Consumer Price Index by three per cent by July of 1976. If all this is in aid of saving fuel, why not reduce the speed limit to 55 mph and save lives as well? Ottawa says the 10 per cent tax is to help pay the cost of importing foreign fuel to Quebec and the Maritimes. But gas is selling for 61 cents in Quebec versus 75 cents in Ontario!

Gas, beef, eggs — once Ottawa gets into the pricing business it distorts the market system. As if new battalions of civil servants can regulate demand and supply as effectively as millions of Canadians do every day by their individual choices. Even worse is the growth of paperwork that results from each new Ottawa ruling. A national survey conducted for the first two quarters of 1975 by the Canadian Federation of Independent Business showed "government regulations and the paperwork burden" to be the single most important problem facing businessmen today.

The effect of all the interference from Ottawa is to discourage businesses from expanding. Who wants to grow bigger when growth merely aggravates the problems? More business means more taxes, more paperwork, more personal worry in a 70-hour week to satisfy the 9 to 4 experts in Ottawa.

Canada could grow and prosper by encouraging small business to develop. Encouraging this would also strengthen the commercial base of Canada's smaller communities and help reverse the movement to big urban centres. Ottawa could help this in a positive way by setting aside a proportion of all government contracts for small firms. Ottawa's Supply and Services Department could set the example for the provinces to follow. How about it, Mr. Goyer?

It's sometimes said that in Canada today the only growth industry is the civil service at all three levels. But as it grows, it imposes more restrictions, more harassment, more paperwork on a business community struggling to produce the goods and services on which Canada's prosperity depends.

CARDS OF THANKS

WE WOULD LIKE to thank our family and many friends who helped make our 50th Anniversary such a happy occasion, also a special thanks to the ladies of St. Bartholomew's Church for the lovely dinner. -- Richard and Annie Derry.

I WOULD LIKE to thank all my friends, neighbours and relatives for the kindness and support in the recent loss of a dear mother and grandmother. Special thanks to Mr. Howden and Rev. Gerald Kemp, and Susanne's Flower Shop. -- The family of the late Mrs. Florence Stewart.

PEAR HONEY

3 pounds ripe pears (8 cups)
1 cup crushed pineapple
Grated rind and juice of 1 fresh lemon or lime (optional)
5 cups sugar

Wash, pare and core the pears; slice before measuring. Put through a food chopper using the fine blade. Combine pears and pineapple. Add the lime or lemon rind and juice (optional). Add sugar and cook over slow heat, stirring frequently. Cook for 20 minutes. Pour into sterilized jars to within 1/4 inch of top. Put on cap, screw band firmly tight. Process in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Yield: 8 half-pints or 4 pints.

Whatever became of Carrie Snodgrass? I know she gave up her career a few years back, but surely that wasn't meant to be permanent. And who was the man in her life? J.C., Cadiz, O.

The actress just may be making a comeback soon. She retired to a Northern California ranch to live with singer Neil Young. But now they have split and Universal (who still has her under contract), is anxious to get her back.

Do you think that Cher will remain reconciled with Gregg Allman? Harry Parks, New Orleans, La.

Only if Gregg gives up his "extra-curricular" activities. Cher won't stand for it and that's why the original split. During all her years with Sonny, the pair were faithful to each other and Cher is old fashioned enough to expect the same from Gregg.

Does Nancy Kissinger have any secrets she'd like to offer as to how to be hostess to the most important people who surely must visit husband Secretary of State Henry's home? Ann Dubec, Hingham Bay, Mass.

Mrs. Kissinger is a delightful person in her own right mainly because she concentrates on being herself. Re: entertaining she says: "I try to create as relaxed an atmosphere as possible when people visit our home as I believe that people in that kind of surroundings discuss things more calmly." Incidentally, Mrs. K. has no full-time maid and hires a cook and other help when entertaining.

That cop-turned author (he wrote "The New Centurions") — could you tell me if he's still writing and how he feels about the transformation from policeman to writer? M. Lewis, Lambert, Mo.

You're referring to Joseph Wambaugh who also wrote "The Blue Knight" and "The Onion Field." Naturally he enjoys the fame and money, but he says: "To be perfectly frank, I was happier as a cop. I don't think I'll ever enjoy life again as much as I did during those 14 years I was on the force." Incidentally, Wambaugh adds: "There are three requisites to being a good policeman — 'Common sense, a sense of humor, and compassion — and none is in the manual.'"

.RAMSAY - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Minnie May Ramsay, who passed away Oct. 25, 1966. A face that is haunting us ever, A voice we are longing to hear, A smile we'll remember forever, While we try to forget every tear. A sad, but sweet remembrance, A memory fond and true, And a token of affection, dear, And heartache, mother, for you. Lovingly remembered by son, Albert; daughter-in-law, Pat, and Family.

.GRIFFIN - In loving memory of our dear father, George Griffin, who passed away November 2, 1974. I had a Dad I was proud to own, How much I miss you will never be known. Please God, forgive a silent tear, A fervent wish our Dad was here, There are others, yes, we know, But he was ours, we loved him so, To our Dad in Heaven above, Tell him how much we miss him. And give him all our love. Sadly missed by daughter, Darlene, and son-in-law, Eugene.

.GRIFFIN - In loving memory of a dear husband, father and grandfather, George Griffin, Tweed, who was killed instantly November 2, 1974. A sad and lonely year has passed, Since our great sorrow fell, The grief that we received that day, No one could ever tell. God gave us strength to meet it, And courage to bear the blow. But what it meant to lose you, No one will ever know, You bade no one a last farewell, Nor even said goodbye, You were gone before we knew it, And only God knows why. Ever remembered by wife, Edith and Family.

.TENNYSON, GILBERT - In loving memory of a dear husband, father and papa who passed away Oct. 30, 1967. To live in hearts we leave behind, is not to die. Lovingly remembered by Your Family.

.GEROW - In loving memory of Howard who passed away Oct. 30, 1973. He left us quietly, His thoughts unknown, But left us a memory, We are proud to own. So treasure him Lord, In you Garden of Rest, For when on earth, He was one of the BEST. Always remembered by wife, Marilyn and girls.

.SMITH - In loving memory of a dear father, Hugh Smith, who entered into rest, October 28, 1968. Looking back with memories, On the path you trod, We bless the years, we had with you, And leave the rest to God. Always remembered by daughter, Diane, and son-in-law, David.

.SMITH - In loving memory of a dear husband and father who passed away October 28, 1968. There's a family who misses him sadly, In the home where he used to be. There's a family who wanted to keep him, But God willed it not to be. But as the rainbow is a promise, Of a new and brighter dawn, So has God our Father promised, That our loved one will live on. In a place of light and beauty, That he has set aside, A house of many mansions, Where our loved one does abide. Ever remembered by wife, Ellen, and son, David.

.IN LOVING MEMORY of our dear Mother who died Oct. 21, 1941. In a quiet country graveyard, Where the gentle breezes blow, Lies one we love so dearly, And lost many years ago. We do not need a special day, To bring her to our minds, For days we do not think of her, Are very hard to find. Always remembered by Earl, May and Family.
